RIVER FLOODS SUGAR LANDS

Today

Ready to Fly.
An Optimist.
A Real Building.
Milking a Lioness.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

WEATHER CONDITIONS, fog, cold and head winds prevailing over a wide stretch of the Atlantic make transatlantic flight especially dangerous. But courage overlooks fog and wind, and it is likely that some one, or two or three determined American flyers may be on their way across the ocean within a day.

THE latest arrival on the Atlantic coast, Capt. Charles E. Lindbergh, young six-foot-tall air mail pilot from St. Louis, is a flyer for America to be proud of.

He broke two records coming from the Pacific coast to New York in two hops, making the trip in 21 hours, 20 minutes. He is the only man that ever flew that distance alone.

AND on the 3,600-mile non-stop flight across the ocean he will go alone in his slim gray monoplane, named "The Spirit of St. Louis." He sits in a tiny compartment, with wings and fuel tanks so arranged that it is impossible for him to look ahead. To see before him he must use a periscope, like the captain on a submarine. On either side little windows let him look down. He steers by compass.

THIS young American boy's plan to cross the ocean in a monoplane with only 43 feet wing spread, without a sextant, without any companion to allow him a few hours sleep or cheer him on the journey is something altogether extraordinary.

If this effort of extraordinary courage is successful, you may be sure that Lindbergh will be welcomed in France and wherever courage is understood.

MR. JUDD GRAY, who confesses that he helped Mrs. Snyder murder her husband, is an optimist. He says: "Mrs. Snyder got me into this jam, and I don't want ever to see her again, except in heaven."

CHISAGO invented the skyscraper, means to keep ahead, and now plans a fifty-million-dollar building. That would make the General Motors building, in Detroit, or the Equitable building, in New York, look small. Chicago's building will contain an auditorium, seating 75,000; a 4,300-room hotel, a convention hall with 300,000 square feet of space, garage room for 1,500 automobiles, an athletic field for pageants, etc., and a quarter-mile

3,000 SQUARE MILES COVERED BY WATER WHEN LEVEES CRUMBLE

5,000 Refugees are Received at Red Cross Camps.

NO LOSS OF LIFE

More Than 200 Miles of Louisiana Under Water.

By Lawrence Sullivan.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 16.—Blanketing new reaches of the world's most productive sugar country at the rate of almost 200 miles a day, the flood waters of the Mississippi are rolling southward today in the last hundred mile stretch separating them from the Gulf of Mexico.

Levee Disappearing.

Today the forty-mile stretch of levees from the Mississippi river westward to Cottonport is lost in the muddy, yellow sea which obliterates some 3,000 square miles of the heart of Louisiana. Here and there along the Bayou dikes a tiny streak of the old protecting wall is visible in the churning waters, but even these honeycombed islands disappear hourly.

River engineers already are basing their calculaions upon the premise that within 48 hours the entire levee will have been sunk without trace. One crevasse near the village of Tilden, is ten miles wide. Through this spillway, alone, a 20-foot wall of water rushes into the lowlands.

Three other openings in the dikes which held back the flood waters for a whole week are measured in thousands of yards. Ten others are hundreds of feet wide. At each opening the waters are eating away the ends of the soaked ridges, joining streams to make rivers and rivers to make a sea.

"There has never been anything in history to compare with the phenomena," said State Relief Director John M. Parker. Sufficient water has been diverted from the Mississippi and her overflow area to check the anticipated rise of six inches daily in the 200 miles stretch of the main channel between the mouth of the old river and the Poydras crevasse, twelve miles south of New Orleans.

The opening of the Bayou dikes has carried off so much water within the last 36 hours that the Mississippi gauge at Angola, La., directly opposite the mouth of the Old river, has been lowered four-tenths of a foot. As far south as Baton Rouge, fifty miles below Angola, the stage has fallen two tenths of a foot in 24 hours.

Refugees Rescued.

A few more than 5,000 refugees have been received in seven Red Cross and National Guard camps from the Bayou Des Glaises area since Saturday evening. Alexandria is prepared for 10,000 before the week is out. Marksville will have 3,000. Two boats docking before daylight brought more than 500 to the Baton Rouge camps.

Although the dikes crumbled faster than they would be reported through the naval wireless facilities of the rescue patrol, not a single loss of life had been reported to relief headquarters here today. At one point, 500 people were stranded on a five-mile stretch of levee which had been cut off at both ends. All were removed

Prosecution Has Surprise In Streitenberger Trial

Prosecutor Asserts Defendant's Alibi Will "be Torn to Pieces" When Rebuttal Witnesses are Called.

CANTON, O., May 16.—The prosecution has promised a surprise in the trial of Floyd Streitenberer, former member of the Canton detective force, charged with first degree murder, for alleged participation in the killing of Don Mellett, Canton publisher, here ten months ago. Following the testimony of remaining defense witnesses, Prosecutor Henry Harter was to call rebuttal witnesses whom, he declared, "would tear Streitenberger's attempted alibi to pieces."

Today the defense had summoned three new witnesses. Two of these witnesses are expected to throw discredit upon the testimony of Louis Mazer, Canton, third man indicted in the Mellett slaying, who turned state's evidence, and implicated Streitenberger in the crime.

The trio is composed of Charles Smith, a pugilist, Bessie Zimmer and Leo Shumaker. The latter two were state witnesses during the trials of Pat McDermott and Ben Rudner, both convicted of complicity in Mellett's murder, and sentenced to life terms. Defense attorneys expect the Zimmer woman and Shumaker to testify that Pat McDermott was not the only man on the "firing line" the night of the killing.

The defense has promised to rest its case not later than tomorrow.

Chief's Bull Dog Lost.

Sedan is Stolen From Wasbutzky Garage Last Night

Automobile thieves smashed the lock on the garage door of Mrs. Fred Wasbutzky, in Rural lane, last night and made their escape with a Studebaker sedan, carrying license number 386-552. The theft occurred after 10:30 o'clock Sunday night when the car was left in the garage by a member of the Wasbutzky family.

FLYERS AGAIN DELAY HOP-OFF IN NON-STOP PARIS FLIGHT

Storms Over Atlantic Ocean Cause Another Postponement.

PLANES TESTED

Trip May be Started Tuesday if Weather is Satisfactory.

MINEOLA, N. Y., May 16.—Owing to wind storms over the Atlantic and fog the American aviators who will attempt a non-stop flight from New York to Paris have postponed their hop-off for another 24 hours, it was announced today. According to meteorologists the present bad weather may continue for several days.

Capt. Charles Lindbergh's Ryan monoplane has received its final test and Lindbergh may be the first to get away if the stormy weather moderates sufficiently within the next 24 hours to permit flying over the ocean.

Dissension arose between the Bellanca flyer—Lloyd Bertand and Clarence Chamberlain—and Charles A. Levine, the owner of the Bellanca plane, but it has been adjusted. The trouble was due to three points which the airmen brought up: (1) the necessity for some sort of financial protection for their families; (2) full amount of the $25,000 prize money to go to the aviators instead of being split up with the Columbia aircraft corporation, and (3) abrogation of a clause in the contract with the corporation by which the airmen had promised to fly for a year for the Columbia corporation if the New York-Paris flight was successfully made.

If any of the aviators hop off tomorrow they will have the protection of about 50 United States shipping board vessels which are enroute between America and Europe over the North Atlantic steamship lane. Should the airmen get away tomorrow morning the ships will be notified by wireless and instructed to give every possible aid in the event any of the aviators meet with accident over the ocean. The average distance between the ships at the present time is 60 miles.

The Bellanca monoplane was taken from its hangar on Roosevelt flying field at 4 a. m. today, leading to reports that Betrand and Chamberlain were planning to hop off immediately, but officials of the Columbia Aircraft corporation denied these reports.

There was considerable activity on both Roosevelt and Curtiss flying fields. Capt. Lindbergh's monoplane was wheeled from its hangar about the same time as the Bellanca monoplane.

Pair Convicted For Murder Transferred To "Death Chamber"

In Separate Automobiles and Under Heavy Guard, Man and Woman are Spirited From New York to Place Where They Will Pay Death Penalty, June 20.

"ICY WIDOW" WEEPS AS SHE ENTERS AUTO BESIDE TWO JAIL MATRONS

Cars Fail to Stop at Warden's Office But are Driven Directly Through Prison Grounds — Crowds Assembled at Prison Fail to Get Glimpse of Slayers.

OSSINING, N. Y., May 16.—Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, condemned slayers of Albert Snyder, the woman's husband, arrived at Sing Sing prison shortly before noon today.

Accompanied by an escort of motorcycle police, the two automobiles containing the doomed pair swept through the main street of this village, and into the gates of the prison. The shades of the cars were tightly drawn and the crowds that had assembled on the sidewalks had no opportunity to glimpse the famous pair.

Without stopping at the warden's office, which is the general rule, the line of cars swept straight into the prison grounds. The doors clanged quickly shut, and Gray and Mrs. Snyder had entered their final place of living until the hand of the law calls them to death in the electric chair.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., May 16.—Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, convicted of murdering the husband of Mrs. Snyder, left Long Island City jail this morning for the "death house" in Sing Sing prison. The two former lovers left in separate automobiles under heavy guards.

The slayers of Albert Snyder are scheduled to be executed the week of June 20, but appeals by their lawyers are expected to cause a postponement.

A squadron of policemen on motorcycles guarded each automobile as thousands of spectators lined the streets for a last glimpse of the notorious murder pair.

Both Mrs. Snyder and Gray were shackled to their guards. The shades on Gray's machine were drawn but the curtains on the automobile containing Mrs. Snyder were up. The so-called "icy widow" was weeping. She sat between jail matrons, Irene Wolfe and Nan Hart, and was handcuffed to the former.

When the big green gate at the jail swung open two motorcycle policemen shot out and behind came a big blue automobile. Gray was in his machine with Sheriff Joseph Quinn and three deputy sheriffs.

Then followed another squad of motorcycle policemen and behind that a big gray car in which Mrs. Snyder sat on the back seat.

Other motorcycle policemen surrounded the two machines which sped off toward Sing Sing prison. Thirteen other machines containing detectives and newspapermen followed.

AUTO TAKEN FROM LISBON GARAGE

Lisbon authorities today were searching for the unidentified thief who last night jimmied the lock off the garage at the home of J. W. Burnett, Lincoln highway, Lisbon, and got away with a 1924 Nash touring car.

The theft is believed to have taken place between 10 and 11 o'clock.

LEGION COLLECTS APPROXIMATELY $500 IN POPPY DAY CAMPAIGN

Rain Interferes With Sale of Silk Poppies Here Saturday — Prize Winners are Announced.

Despite rains which fell a greater part of the day, approximately $500 was raised in the American Legion's annual Poppy Day sale in East Liverpool Saturday. Approximately 5,000 silken flowers, a replica of those which bloom in Flanders' fields, were sold during the day by a corps of girl workers under the direction of Mrs. R. W. Johnson, Poppy Day chairman.

First prize for the workers, $5 in cash, went to Mrs. John Bucey, Newell, who collected $47.04. Second prize, $3 was awarded to Miss Gertrude Croxall, Fifth street, Wellsville, who took in $35.26. Third prize, $2, was won by Miss Florence Watson, 842 Chester avenue.

Through the courtesy of the managers of the Ceramic, American and Strand theatres, 40 other workers, who failed to win cash prizes, received theatre passes as a reward for their efforts.

Funds raised in the Poppy Day campaign will be used to meet expenses of the Memorial Day observance, to provide funds for relief work among needy ex-service men and to assist in liquidating the bonded indebtedness on the Legion home, 633 Dresden avenue.

Accompanied by an escort of motorcycle police, the two automobiles containing the doomed pair swept through the main street of this village, and into the gates of the prison. The shades of the cars were tightly drawn and the crowds that had assembled on the sidewalks had no opportunity to glimpse the famous pair.

Without stopping at the warden's office, which is the general rule, the line of cars swept straight into the prison grounds. The doors clanged quickly shut, and Gray and Mrs. Snyder had entered their final place of living until the hand of the law calls them to death in the electric chair.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., May 16.—Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, convicted of murdering the husband of Mrs. Snyder, left Long Island City jail this morning for the "death house" in Sing Sing prison. The two former lovers left in separate automobiles under heavy guards.

The slayers of Albert Snyder are scheduled to be executed the week of June 20, but appeals by their lawyers are expected to cause a postponement.

A squadron of policemen on motorcycles guarded each automobile as thousands of spectators lined the streets for a last glimpse of the notorious murder pair.

Both Mrs. Snyder and Gray were shackled to their guards. The shades on Gray's machine were drawn but the curtains on the automobile containing Mrs. Snyder were up. The so-called "icy widow" was weeping. She sat between jail matrons, Irene Wolfe and Nan Hart, and was hand cuffed to the former.

When the big green gate of the jail swung open two motorcycle policemen shot out and behind came a big blue automobile. Gray was in his machine with Sheriff Joseph Quinn and three deputy sheriffs.

Then followed another squad of motorcycle policemen and behind that a big gray car in which Mrs. Snyder sat on the back seat.

Other motorcycle policemen surrounded the two machines which sped off toward Sing Sing prison. Thirteen other machines containing detectives and newspapermen followed.

AUTO TAKEN FROM LISBON GARAGE

Lisbon authorities today were searching for the unidentified thief who last night jimmied the lock off the garage at the home of J. W. Burnett, Lincoln highway, Lisbon, and got away with a 1924 Nash touring car.

The theft is believed to have taken place between 10 and 11 o'clock.

LEGION COLLECTS APPROXIMATELY $500 IN POPPY DAY CAMPAIGN

Rain Interferes With Sale of Silk Poppies Here Saturday — Prize Winners are Announced.

Despite rains which fell a greater part of the day, approximately $500 was raised in the American Legion's annual Poppy Day sale in East Liverpool Saturday. Approximately 5,000 silken flowers, a replica of those which bloom in Flanders' fields, were sold during the day by a corps of girl workers under the direction of Mrs. R. W. Johnson, Poppy Day chairman.

First prize for the workers, $5 in cash, went to Mrs. John Bucey, Newell, who collected $47.04. Second prize, $3 was awarded to Miss Gertrude Croxall, Fifth street, Wellsville, who took in $35.26. Third prize, $2, was won by Miss Florence Watson, 842 Chester avenue.

Through the courtesy of the managers of the Ceramic, American and Strand theatres, 40 other workers, who failed to win cash prizes, received theatre passes as a reward for their efforts.

Funds raised in the Poppy Day campaign will be used to meet expenses of the Memorial Day observance, to provide funds for relief work among needy ex-service men and to assist in liquidating the bonded indebtedness on the Legion home, 633 Dresden avenue.

"DAREDEVIL" MATHEWS READY FOR 120-HOUR DRIVING TEST

San Antonio Cowboy Will Make Endurance Drive of Five Days and Five Nights, Beginning Tonight.

Everything was in readiness at noon for the 120-hour endurance drive which "Daredevil" Mathews, cow-boy from the Rio Grand Valley, near San Antonio, Texas, will begin at 7 o'clock tonight when he leaves the Buckeye Motor Sales garage and Sales room, corner East Sixth and Walnut streets.

Mathews, who will drive continually for five days and five nights, will be at the wheel of a stock Hudson coach. He will be fastened to the car and will not sleep during the 120-hour drive. His only nourishment during the trip will be milk and black coffee.

Chief of Police McDermott will fix the handcuffs on Mathews before the drive starts and will be on hand next Saturday evening when he returns to the starting point to release him. Miss Barbara Cox, his nurse, will spend about 16 hours out of each 24 with Mathews.

Mathews' daily schedule during the five days of his drive will be as follows:

ANDREWS MAY RESIGN POST

Dry Czar Refuses to Confirm or Deny Report.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews declined today to confirm or deny reports that he is again about to submit his resignation as assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition.

Commenting on a statement attributed to Wayne B. Wheeler, Andrews declared he came to reorganize and coordinate the various law enforcement branches of the treasury, and that it was "up to Secretary Mellon, not Mr. Wheeler, to say when that has been accomplished."

"Mr. Wheeler evidently thinks I have finished my work," commented Andrews.

The general announced he was sailing on July 2 next to arrange cooperation with ploice and customs officials of several European countries for the suppression of narcotics smuggling.

"Rum smuggling has been virtually wiped out through effective measures of cooperation, and we hope to be equally successful with narcotics," he said. He probably will sail on the French liner Isle of France.

Andrews submitted his resignation more than a year ago, but was persuaded to withdraw it by President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon. Wheeler and Andrews have recently clashed over the appointment of a prohibition commissioner, the anti-saloon league head insisting upon Roy A. Haynes.

AN UGLY SKIN AND HOW TO CLEAR IT UP

Finding the Base of Beauty and Building On It

American women are usually considered the most beautiful in the world, but at that one has only to walk the streets of East Liverpool to see that many are not making the most of themselves. The droop of the figures that denotes constant fatigue, the eyes that show a weariness always, and the yellowish, clogged skin shows that many women are foregoing their birthright.

Beauty is always based on health. The greatest foes to it are that congestion we call catarrh and that condition generally known as constipation. Catarrh isn't always evident to women who suffer from it. They are often inclined to class it as some ailment peculiar to their sex and suffer in silence. The result is always the accumulation of poisons that undermine the health.

When catarrh is general in the system—systemic, we say—it is usually accompanied by constipation, which in turn lets remain the poisons of the fatigue in the blood. With inactive liver and overworked kidneys, the skin becomes clogged, loses its freshness of appearance, and all too frequently takes on a yellowish tinge.

Remedies for these conditions are comparatively simple. The first of them is a general clearing out of the system; the second is to allay the catarrhal symptoms, and the third is to build up the bodily strength. In all of these nothing has quite equalled the famous World's Tonic. A course of this remarkable medicine, with the drinking of plenty of good water, a moderate regulation of the diet to avoid too much rich or sweet food, and reasonable exercise, will improve appearance of any woman, give her more energy, make her feel better in every way, and restore that magnetism that will make her attractive. World's Tonic is sold by Carnahan's, also Brannan, Wellsville, and all other good druggists. (278)

THINK of this! A great big batch of clothes washed and another big batch dried—all at the same time,—the wash water kept at an even temperature, the rinse, the blue and the suds all handled for you, no buttons to sew on, no deep wrinkles to iron out, and every piece washed and dried as thoroughly and gently as by human hands,—in the New Easy Washer.

Double Capacity--Double Speed

The New Easy with its two tubs can wash and dry sixteen double sheets (or the equivalent in other clothes) at one time. While the Easy's famous Vacuum Cup tub is washing one eight-sheet batch the new Dryer is whirling another eight-sheet batch damp-dry ready for the line in three minutes, without putting deep wrinkles in the clothes and without breaking off buttons.

Handles Every Drop of Water

As the suds, the rinse and the blue waters are whirled from the clothes in the dryer, each in turn is carried back to the proper tub by a wonderful new water-circulating system which even empties the washer for you when you're all through.

O'Brien Boy Thin and Pale

In a Little Over Two Months Gained Eleven Pounds

As a body builder, an appetite creator, and to make weak, skinny boys and girls sturdy, strong and full of energy there is nothing like Cod Liver Oil—any physician will tell you that.

But it's vile, horrible stuff to take, and is apt to upset any stomach, so now doctors are prescribing and wise parents are buying McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—sugar-coated, and as easy to take as candy.

The son of George G. O'Brien of Mahwah, N. J., was thin and pale and did not get enough nourishment from his food. In a little over two months, he gained eleven and one-half pounds, and feels and looks one hundred per cent better.

Mothers, if any of your children are weak, thin or puny, give them these tablets, as directed for 30 days, and watch them gain flesh and health from day to day—they seldom fail—but if the unusual should happen and you are not supremely satisfied with results—your druggist is authorized to return your money.

Old Folks Need a Mild Laxative —Not a "Physic"

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help, else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative, in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural, regular bowel movement even for those chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

Y. M. C. A. Learn to Swim Campaign

In accordance with an annual custom, the Young Men's Christian association today opened its three-week "Learn to Swim" campaign. One week each has been set for three divisions—high school boys, employed youths and grade school lads. Competent instructors are in charge of the classes, and no fee will be assessed.

Of interest in connection with this campaign, one of the purposes of which is to develop healthy swimmers as well as teach those who have not mastered the art, is the fact that five members of the College Point, N. Y., Penguin club, year-round swimmers, have just been given medals by the local association of merchants. On May 1 they had completed 1,000 hours in the water. They took a dip in East River every one of the 365 days in the year. The coldest temperatures they encountered were four degrees below zero in the air and 24 degrees above zero in the water. On the really cold days they swam only about 150 yards and stayed in a shorter time. On pleasant days they sometimes swam two miles.

These five ice-water swimmers range in age from 21 to 50. One of them is a grandfather. Now, at the close of their winter activities they declare that they have all been entirely free of colds and other ills, have gained from 10 to 20 pounds in weight and are in fine general health, feeling better than they did before they tackled the year of daily swims.

Admiring neighbors and follow townsmen declare that their feat is of more importance to the country as a whole than swimming the Catalina channel, because it involved steady, regular exercise over a long period instead of spectacular achievement and physical strain concentrated in a training period and a one-day endurance swim.

The regularity of the exercise, the frequent exposure to direct sunlight and fresh air, throughout the whole year, rather than the chill of the water during the winter months, brought about the improved health conditions. We don't all have to join the Penguins to do the same for ourselves, but we can learn from them.

Boston Seals

Most Americans west of Boston will not believe that there are seals in Boston harbor. Here, however, is proof of an unexpected sort.

Motor traffic in Lynn, a northern suburb, was tied up in a knot the other morning by a commotion going on in a small, stagnant pond beside the North Shore motor road. There was a brown seal there swimming and diving in plain sight, disporting itself as if it were a trained seal in a show. Drivers stopped to watch it, and that made others stop, and soon the highway was impassable, and motorists and local residents by hundreds were watching that funny seal.

Evidently it had made its way to the pond half a mile overland, from the harbor. That was quite a feat, but the authorities didn't approve of the riot it was causing. So a cop armed with a riot gun shot it, and the traffic resumed its progress.

When Bostonian sea life takes to the land that way, something must be done about it. There may be seals floundering all over the Boston Common and the Back Bay, if the Hub isn't careful. It may become necessary to place a guard alongside of "T" wharf to keep the fishes from flooping over the rail of the fishing schooners and going for a ramble around town. Order must be kept at all hazards, and Boston has a historic record for repelling invasion by sea.

Names For Flood Babies

Another problem connected with the Mississippi flood causes a smile to distant readers. Press reports say that colored babies, born in refugee camps or in towns in the flood area, are being given names suggestive of the present situation along the river. Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson are said to be authentic names. There are undoubtedly others yet more surprising.

The New York World suggests that public-spirited citizens with a gift for names send their suggestions to Red Cross authorities on the scene of action. It adds an important hint.

"And don't be a piker. If you're going to have the honor of naming a child, inclose a large enough check to pay for that child's support during this trying period of its life."

It is easy to laugh at such stories and the funny names that some of those flood babes will bear through life. Yet the stories have a stronger appeal. Babies are being born in that stricken region, white ones as well as colored. Lives are taken by the flood or the disease and exposure that attend it, but the whole drama of human life goes on just the same. The train of thought started by reading Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson takes one into the midst of the flood terrors and problems and brings them close home to our own daily lives.

Nowadays about the only way a man tell a woman's summer clothes from her winter clothes is by the color, and he's never sure of that.

Big towns have to build skyscrapers, so the people can get up nigh enough for a little fresh air.

A lot of people nowadays never appreciate fresh fruit unless it was picked green and shipped a long distance.

Pathetic Figures— By Fontaine Fox

My Favorite Stories

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE INTERCHANGEABLE NAME

I was out in Minnesota on a fishing trip. At a home in St. Paul we were entertained by a most charming lady.

In the living room where we sat after dinner I was struck by a photograph, framed in silver and displayed upon the mantel, of an exceedingly handsome and well-set-up boy in his early teens.

I inquired who the original of the picture might be.

"That," explained the matron, "is our son—our only child. He's off at camp for the summer."

"What it his name?" I asked.

"I'll spell it for you," said our hostess. "A-e-r-n."

"Rather unusual," I said. "How do you pronounce it?"

"That all depends," stated the lady. "You see, ours was what they call a mixed marriage. As you may have guessed, I am Jewish. My parents were orthodox Jews, while my husband, as you know, is of pure Irish descent. Both of us are proud of the races to which we belong. When our son was born each of us was naturally anxious that he should wear a name which would be agreeable to the other and yet at the same time would have a familiar and affectionate sound in the ears of all concerned. So after a number of conferences we reached a compromise. My husband calls him 'Erin' and I call him 'Aaron'."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

ABOARD THE S. S. FRANCE, May 16.—This liner plunges sturdily through high running seas toward Havre. Nothing is so gallant as a ship or so terrifying as the ocean. Everybody has been seasick, including a lieutenant of the navy. Even the captain looks peaked to me.

I did not know there was so much mal re mer in the world. At the dock in New York I was attracted to one of those virile voyageurs who seemed to look pityingly upon those of us yokels athrill with prospect of travel. He looked as though he would take no nonsense from a ship.

But he has been crumpled up in his deck chair all the way across with a complexion of luminous pea green. The only animated thing aboard seems to be my dog. Those two bonneted ladies who liven the pages of The New Yorker could get a lot of new "Whoops!" ideas from this ship.

Last night I crawled up to the dinning room. Stewards stood swaying at their ghostly array of deserted white tables. Only one passenger was there. His head was cupped in his hands. I think he has been there for three days. I got one whiff from the kitchen and galloped—buckitty, buckitty—to my post at the rail.

Our cabin steward is one of those pink-cheeked Frenchmen with a superbly waxed mustache and an adolescent voice that jumps from alto into soprano with no apparent shifting of gears. He is killing me with kindness. I asked for a small glass of orange juice and he brought a tray piled high with food—this morning he even brought sausages.

If you've never seen sausages when seasick, well, you have never really wanted to die. Most of those who have energy enough to hold up a book are reading "Elmer Gantry." I have confined my reading to the headlines of the ship's wireless newspaper. Even that taxes my strength.

Every liner offers its quota of interesting personalities. On this voyage are Jay Gould; a mystery woman who wears a white transformation; Laurens Hamilton, grandson of Pierpont Morgan, a personable youth who sponsors the deck games; Coblenz, the San Francisco publisher; Wellington Cross, who has deserted the stage for a commercial career abroad; Walter Drey, editor and poet; George Agnew Chamberlain who is to hide himself in his Paris apartment to finish a novel; Claudel, the new French Ambassador to America and Robert Weler, a distinguished French ace.

So far murder has had no place in my sin-stained career but if that precocious child continues to trill and romp up and down the outside companionway something has got to be done.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd are aboard. But they are from Chicago.

They were finally compelled to tack a sign on their door announcing they were not the cinema celebrities to keep away the curious.

There goes the dinner gong. Another free banquet for the fish!

Tragedy stalks grimly upon the heels of romance on this voyage. Yesterday a couple meeting on ship-board announced they would marry on their arrival in Paris and at the wireless office this afternoon I could not help but notice a message on the counter reading: "Charles is dying of pneumonia."

Tonight as a full moon shimmered the deep with its tangerine glow a four-masted schooner—like an ancient galleon—drifted lazily across our bow. Piratical looking seamen pressed to the side and waved. Land is not far away. Hey, hey! To say nothing of ro-de-do-de-vio!

I am reliably informed that one of the passengers who has not been seen on deck once during this trip is the manufacturer of a seasick panacea. That's the sort of high rolling journey this was.

Jeeves, kick the blocks from the wheel chair. Here's France.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Cuba's Anniversary.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16.—At 12 o'clock noon on May 20 the Republic of Cuba will be 25 years old. Cuban independence really dates from the Treaty of Paris, signed December 10 1898, which ended the Spanish-American war, but there ensued a period of almost four and a half years of American occupation while the people of the island could adopt a constitution and establish a government stable enough to warrant the expectation that it would weather domestic and international storms.

The first Cuban Congress met May 5, 1902, to examine into the credentials of its own members and to count and ratify the electoral vote, and 15 days later President Tomas Estrada Palma was inaugurated, the flag of the United States was lowered, the flag of the new republic was hoisted and saluted, and American occupancy was at an end. From 1906 to 1909 there was another period of American intervention, due to an insurrection which the island authorities were unable to suppress, but that is not regarded as a break in the life of the young republic, which is officially dated from May 20, 1902.

The quarter of a century has been one of marvelous progress for Cuba. Her aggregate wealth has been more than trebled and her foreign trade increased almost six fold, but even more notable has been her improvement in sanitation, in education, and in acquiring modern conveniences in transportation, communications, and the everyday living of the people.

When this country first went to the aid of the struggling insurrectos, 12 per cent of Cuba's population and 60 per cent of her property values had been wiped out in her long revolt against Spanish rule. The death rate in the island was appalling and yellow fever was an ever-menacing spectre.

The Help That Counted.

Under Governor General Brooke, first, and later under Governor General Leonard Wood, the temporary occupational government proceeded to give the Cubans the kind of help that counted. Thorough sanitary measures were adopted; the death-rate immediately went on a decline; the causes of yellow fever were discovered and that disease nearly exterminated, and especially successful efforts were made to beautify Havana and improve its sanitary conditions. That city has become one of the most attractive in Latin America.

Reforms were extended to the prisons, hospitals, and asylums of the island. A general system of free schools was established, and in all possible practical ways, Cuba was prepared for self-government.

In 25 years the highway mileage in the island has increased from 400 to 1,800 and vastly in quality; railroads have more than doubled their mileage and greatly improved their service; the number of telephones has grown from almost zero to more than 64,000; postoffices from 306 to 468; postal revenues from $376,000 to $3,000,000; exports from $64,300,000 to $434,000,000 and imports from $60,584,000 to $297,000,000.

During the year 1925-26 the total revenues of the Cuban government were in round figures 85,000,000—not such an impressive sum, to be sure, in comparison with the revenues of this country, but altogether striking when it is known that the total revenues of the island for the four and a half years of American occupancy were only about $57,000,000.

The advance that has been made in education has been rapid despite the difficulty of securing an adequate force of teachers. In 1924 there were 3,364 schools with 377,475 pupils and almost 7,000 teachers in the public school system, and 551 private schools with more than 24,000 pupils and 1,775 teachers. The University of Havana, which was founded in 1721, had more than 2,500 students 200 years later.

The funded debt of Cuba is slightly under $100,000,000, as of March 1, 1925, and the floating debt about $14,000,000. The island's war debt of approximately $18,000,000 was called and paid on June 30, 1924.

Cuba ranks as the sixth best customer of the United States, as we sell her from 66 to 68 per cent of all her imports, and we also have taken as high as 87 per cent of her total exports. In 1924-25, she sold us goods valued at $291,915,000 and bought $206,662,000 worth from us; the preceding fiscal year her bill with us was in excess of $192,000,000, while our bill with her ran to almost $360,000,000. Sugar is, of course, Cuba's great crop, and the United States takes about 90 per cent of her product.

American Capital Heavily Invested.

Y. M. C. A. Learn to Swim Campaign

In accordance with an annual custom, the Young Men's Christian association today opened its three-week "Learn to Swim" campaign. One week each has been set for three divisions—high school boys, employed youths and grade school lads. Competent instructors are in charge of the classes, and no fee will be assessed.

Of interest in connection with this campaign, one of the purposes of which is to develop healthy swimmers as well as teach those who have not mastered the art, is the fact that five members of the College Point, N. Y., Penguin club, year-round swimmers, have just been given medals by the local association of merchants. On May 1 they had completed 1,000 hours in the water. They took a dip in East River every one of the 365 days in the year. The coldest temperatures they encountered were four degrees below zero in the air and 24 degrees above zero in the water. On the really cold days they swam only about 150 yards and stayed in a shorter time. On pleasant days they sometimes swam two miles.

These five ice-water swimmers range in age from 21 to 50. One of them is a grandfather. Now, at the close of their winter activities they declare that they have all been entirely free of colds and other ills, have gained from 10 to 20 pounds in weight and are in fine general health, feeling better than they did before they tackled the year of daily swims.

Admiring neighbors and follow townsmen declare that their feat is of more importance to the country as a whole than swimming the Catalina channel, because it involved steady, regular exercise over a long period instead of spectacular achievement and physical strain concentrated in a training period and a one-day endurance swim.

The regularity of the exercise, the frequent exposure to direct sunlight and fresh air, throughout the whole year, rather than the chill of the water during the winter months, brought about the improved health conditions. We don't all have to join the Penguins to do the same for ourselves, but we can learn from them.

Boston Seals

Most Americans west of Boston will not believe that there are seals in Boston harbor. Here, however, is proof of an unexpected sort.

Motor traffic in Lynn, a northern suburb, was tied up in a knot the other morning by a commotion going on in a small, stagnant pond beside the North Shore motor road. There was a brown seal there swimming and diving in plain sight, disporting itself as if it were a trained seal in a show. Drivers stopped to watch it, and that made others stop, and soon the highway was impassable, and motorists and local residents by hundreds were watching that funny seal.

Evidently it had made its way to the pond half a mile overland, from the harbor. That was quite a feat, but the authorities didn't approve of the riot it was causing. So a cop armed with a riot gun shot it, and the traffic resumed its progress.

When Bostonian sea life takes to the land that way, something must be done about it. There may be seals floundering all over the Boston Common and the Back Bay, if the Hub isn't careful. It may become necessary to place a guard alongside of "T" wharf to keep the fishes from flooping over the rail of the fishing schooners and going for a ramble around town. Order must be kept at all hazards, and Boston has a historic record for repelling invasion by sea.

Names For Flood Babies

Another problem connected with the Mississippi flood causes a smile to distant readers. Press reports say that colored babies, born in refugee camps or in towns in the flood area, are being given names suggestive of the present situation along the river. Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson are said to be authentic names. There are undoubtedly others yet more surprising.

The New York World suggests that public-spirited citizens with a gift for names send their suggestions to Red Cross authorities on the scene of action. It adds an important hint.

"And don't be a piker. If you're going to have the honor of naming a child, inclose a large enough check to pay for that child's support during this trying period of its life."

It is easy to laugh at such stories and the funny names that some of those flood babes will bear through life. Yet the stories have a stronger appeal. Babies are being born in that stricken region, white ones as well as colored. Lives are taken by the flood or the disease and exposure that attend it, but the whole drama of human life goes on just the same. The train of thought started by reading Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson takes one into the midst of the flood terrors and problems and brings them close home to our own daily lives.

Nowadays about the only way a man tell a woman's summer clothes from her winter clothes is by the color, and he's never sure of that.

Big towns have to build skyscrapers, so the people can get up nigh enough for a little fresh air.

A lot of people nowadays never appreciate fresh fruit unless it was picked green and shipped a long distance.

THE INTERCHANGEABLE NAME

I was out in Minnesota on a fishing trip. At a home in St. Paul we were entertained by a most charming lady.

In the living room where we sat after dinner I was struck by a photograph, framed in silver and displayed upon the mantel, of an exceedingly handsome and well-set-up boy in his early teens.

I inquired who the original of the picture might be.

"That," explained the matron, "is our son—our only child. He's off at camp for the summer."

"What it his name?" I asked.

"I'll spell it for you," said our hostess. "A-e-r-n."

"Rather unusual," I said. "How do you pronounce it?"

"That all depends," stated the lady. "You see, ours was what they call a mixed marriage. As you may have guessed, I am Jewish. My parents were orthodox Jews, while my husband, as you know, is of pure Irish descent. Both of us are proud of the races to which we belong. When our son was born each of us was naturally anxious that he should wear a name which would be agreeable to the other and yet at the same time would have a familiar and affectionate sound in the ears of all concerned. So after a number of conferences we reached a compromise. My husband calls him 'Erin' and I call him 'Aaron'."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

ABOARD THE S. S. FRANCE, May 16.—This liner plunges sturdily through high running seas toward Havre. Nothing is so gallant as a ship or so terrifying as the ocean. Everybody has been seasick, including a lieutenant of the navy. Even the captain looks peaked to me.

I did not know there was so much mal re mer in the world. At the dock in New York I was attracted to one of those virile voyageurs who seemed to look pityingly upon those of us yokels athrill with prospect of travel. He looked as though he would take no nonsense from a ship.

But he has been crumpled up in his deck chair all the way across with a complexion of luminous pea green. The only animated thing aboard seems to be my dog. Those two bonneted ladies who liven the pages of The New Yorker could get a lot of new "Whoops!" ideas from this ship.

Last night I crawled up to the dinning room. Stewards stood swaying at their ghostly array of deserted white tables. Only one passenger was there. His head was cupped in his hands. I think he has been there for three days. I got one whiff from the kitchen and galloped—buckitty, buckitty—to my post at the rail.

Our cabin steward is one of those pink-cheeked Frenchmen with a superbly waxed mustache and an adolescent voice that jumps from alto into soprano with no apparent shifting of gears. He is killing me with kindness. I asked for a small glass of orange juice and he brought a tray piled high with food—this morning he even brought sausages.

If you've never seen sausages when seasick, well, you have never really wanted to die. Most of those who have energy enough to hold up a book are reading "Elmer Gantry." I have confined my reading to the headlines of the ship's wireless newspaper. Even that taxes my strength.

Every liner offers its quota of interesting personalities. On this voyage are Jay Gould; a mystery woman who wears a white transformation; Laurens Hamilton, grandson of Pierpont Morgan, a personable youth who sponsors the deck games; Coblenz, the San Francisco publisher; Wellington Cross, who has deserted the stage for a commercial career abroad; Walter Drey, editor and poet; George Agnew Chamberlain who is to hide himself in his Paris apartment to finish a novel; Claudel, the new French Ambassador to America and Robert Weler, a distinguished French ace.

So far murder has had no place in my sin-stained career but if that precocious child continues to trill and romp up and down the outside companionway something has got to be done.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd are aboard. But they are from Chicago. They were finally compelled to tack a sign on their door announcing they were not the cinema celebrities to keep away the curious.

There goes the dinner gong. Another free banquet for the fish!

Tragedy stalks grimly upon the heels of romance on this voyage. Yesterday a couple meeting on ship-board announced they would marry on their arrival in Paris and at the wireless office this afternoon I could not help but notice a message on the counter reading: "Charles is dying of pneumonia."

Tonight as a full moon shimmered the deep with its tangerine glow a four-masted schooner—like an ancient galleon—drifted lazily across our bow. Piratical looking seamen pressed to the side and waved. Land is not far away. Hey, hey! To say nothing of ro-de-do-de-vio!

I am reliably informed that one of the passengers who has not been seen on deck once during this trip is the manufacturer of a seasick panacea. That's the sort of high rolling journey this was.

Jeeves, kick the blocks from the wheel chair. Here's France.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Cuba's Anniversary.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16.—At 12 o'clock noon on May 20 the Republic of Cuba will be 25 years old. Cuban independence really dates from the Treaty of Paris, signed December 10, 1898, which ended the Spanish-American war, but there ensued a period of almost four and a half years of American occupation while the people of the island could adopt a constitution and establish a government stable enough to warrant the expectation that it would weather domestic and international storms.

The first Cuban Congress met May 5, 1902, to examine into the credentials of its own members and to count and ratify the electoral vote, and 15 days later President Tomas Estrada Palma was inaugurated, the flag of the United States was lowered, the flag of the new republic was hoisted and saluted, and American occupancy was at an end. From 1906 to 1909 there was another period of American intervention, due to an insurrection which the island authorities were unable to suppress, but that is not regarded as a break in the life of the young republic, which is officially dated from May 20, 1902.

The quarter of a century has been one of marvelous progress for Cuba. Her aggregate wealth has been more than trebled and her foreign trade increased almost six fold, but even more notable has been her improvement in sanitation, in education, and in acquiring modern conveniences in transportation, communications, and the everyday living of the people.

When this country first went to the aid of the struggling insurrectos, 12 per cent of Cuba's population and 60 per cent of her property values had been wiped out in her long revolt against Spanish rule. The death rate in the island was appalling and yellow fever was an ever-menacing spectre.

The Help That Counted.

Under Governor General Brooke, first, and later under Governor General Leonard Wood, the temporary occupational government proceeded to give the Cubans the kind of help that counted. Thorough sanitary measures were adopted; the death-rate immediately went on a decline; the causes of yellow fever were discovered and that disease nearly exterminated, and especially successful efforts were made to beautify Havana and improve its sanitary conditions. That city has become one of the most attractive in Latin America.

Reforms were extended to the prisons, hospitals, and asylums of the island. A general system of free schools was established, and in all possible practical ways, Cuba was prepared for self-government.

In 25 years the highway mileage in the island has increased from 400 to 1,800 and vastly in quality; railroads have more than doubled their mileage and greatly improved their service; the number of telephones has grown from almost zero to more than 64,000; postoffices from 306 to 468; postal revenues from $376,000 to $3,000,000; exports from $64,300,000 to $434,000,000 and imports from $60,584,000 to $297,000,000.

During the year 1925-26 the total revenues of the Cuban government were in round figures 85,000,000—not such an impressive sum, to be sure, in comparison with the revenues of this country, but altogether striking when it is known that the total revenues of the island for the four and a half years of American occupancy were only about $57,000,000.

The advance that has been made in education has been rapid despite the difficulty of securing an adequate force of teachers. In 1924 there were 3,364 schools with 377,475 pupils and almost 7,000 teachers in the public school system, and 551 private schools with more than 24,000 pupils and 1,775 teachers. The University of Havana, which was founded in 1721, had more than 2,500 students 200 years later.

The funded debt of Cuba is slightly under $100,000,000, as of March 1, 1925, and the floating debt about $14,000,000. The island's war debt of approximately $18,000,000 was called and paid on June 30, 1924.

Cuba ranks as the sixth best customer of the United States, as we sell her from 66 to 68 per cent of all her imports, and we also have taken as high as 87 per cent of her total exports. In 1924-25, she sold us goods valued at $291,915,000 and bought $206,662,000 worth from us; the preceding fiscal year her bill with us was in excess of $192,000,000, while our bill with her ran to almost $360,000,000. Sugar is, of course, Cuba's great crop, and the United States takes about 90 per cent of her product.

American Capital Heavily Invested.

Miss Edith Weston Weds Okey Ludwig In Beaver Ceremony

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Edith Weston, daughter of Mrs. Richard Weston of 130 Drury lane, and Okey Ludwig, son of Christian Ludwig of Third street, Chester. The ceremony was performed in the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church of Beaver, Pa., on Friday, May 6, with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Wright, officiating.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Frank Butler, was the only attendant.

Previous to her marriage the bride conducted a beauty parlor in Drury lane. The bridegroom is employed at the American Sheet & Tin Plate company in Chester. Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig are residing temporarily with the bride's mother.

Inconvenience? Yes; But Never Pain

Menstruation is Nature—but menstrual pain is NOT natural, and not necessary. Science has conquered the painful part. In a harmless—yes, healthful—little tablet called midol.

Midol is a more remarkable means of relieving such pain than even a habit-forming drug. It acts directly on the organs affected by menstruation, and relief comes in five to seven minutes.

Don't have another day of forced quiet, of pain, low spirits or even discomfort! Midol is effective twelve hours or more. Yet it does not depress the heart, is not narcotic, and is utterly harmless. All druggists, 50 cents, in thin aluminum box that fits the smallest purse.

Are You An Economic Jaywalker?

In life, as along crowded thoroughfares, there are always people who prefer the short cuts and will not heed the traffic signals of Common Sense. They long for fine clothes, and expensive furnishings beyond the limit of Today's pay envelope, and Credit appears to be the short cut to the other side of the street. So they start gayly mortgaging Tomorrow's Dollars, and those of the Week After until they are hopelessly entangled in the traffic of every-day life.

Every purchase made in the J. C. Penney Company stores means a saving to the purchaser because of our universal policy of buying and selling only for cash. Of more importance, however, than the money saved is the habit of thrift and economy formed. Our customers have taught their desires to follow the safe and sober paths laid down by Good Judgment, rather than to dash recklessly into the tangled mazes of extravagance.

Miss Edith Weston Weds Okey Ludwig In Beaver Ceremony

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Edith Weston, daughter of Mrs. Richard Weston of 120 Drury lane, and Okey Ludwig, son of Christian Ludwig of Third street, Chester. The ceremony was performed in the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church of Beaver, Pa., on Friday, May 6, with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Wright, officiating.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Frank Butler, was the only attendant.

Previous to her marriage the bride conducted a beauty parlor in Drury lane. The bridegroom is employed at the American Sheet & Tin Plate company in Chester. Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig are residing temporarily with the bride's mother.

Inconvenience? Yes; But Never Pain

Menstruation is Nature—but menstrual pain is NOT natural, and not necessary. Science has conquered the painful part. In a harmless—yes, healthful —little tablet called midol.

Midol is a more remarkable means of relieving such pain than even a habit-forming drug. It acts directly on the organs affected by menstruation, and relief comes in five to seven minutes.

Don't have another day of forced quiet, of pain, low spirits or even discomfort! Midol is effective twelve hours or more. Yet it does not depress the heart, is not narcotic, and is utterly harmless. All druggists, 50 cents, in thin aluminum box that fits the smallest purse.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

MONDAY, MAY 16, 1927.

Y. M. C. A. Learn to Swim Campaign

In accordance with an annual custom, the Young Men's Christian association today opened its three-week "Learn to Swim" campaign. One week each has been set for three divisions—high school boys, employed youths and grade school lads. Competent instructors are in charge of the classes, and no fee will be assessed.

Of interest in connection with this campaign, one of the purposes of which is to develop healthy swimmers as well as teach those who have not mastered the art, is the fact that five members of the College Point, N. Y., Penguin club, year-round swimmers, have just been given medals by the local association of merchants. On May 1 they had completed 1,000 hours in the water. They took a dip in East River every one of the 365 days in the year. The coldest temperatures they encountered were four degrees below zero in the air and 24 degrees above zero in the water. On the really cold days they swam only about 150 yards and stayed in a shorter time. On pleasant days they sometimes swam two miles.

These five ice-water swimmers range in age from 21 to 50. One of them is a grandfather. Now, at the close of their winter activities they declare that they have all been entirely free of colds and other ills, have gained from 10 to 20 pounds in weight and are in fine general health, feeling better than they did before they tackled the year of daily swims.

Admiring neighbors and follow townsmen declare that their feat is of more importance to the country as a whole than swimming the Catalina channel, because it involved steady, regular exercise over a long period instead of spectacular achievement and physical strain concentrated in a training period and a one-day endurance swim.

The regularity of the exercise, the frequent exposure to direct sunlight and fresh air, throughout the whole year, rather than the chill of the water during the winter months, brought about the improved health conditions. We don't all have to join the Penguins to do the same for ourselves, but we can learn from them.

Boston Seals

Most Americans west of Boston will not believe that there are seals in Boston harbor. Here, however, is proof of an unexpected sort.

Motor traffic in Lynn, a northern suburb, was tied up in a knot the other morning by a commotion going on in a small, stagnant pond beside the North Shore motor road. There was a brown seal there swimming and diving in plain sight, disporting itself as if it were a trained seal in a show. Drivers stopped to watch it, and that made others stop, and soon the highway was impassable, and motorists and local residents by hundreds were watching that funny seal.

Evidently it had made its way to the pond half a mile overland, from the harbor. That was quite a feat, but the authorities didn't approve of the riot it was causing. So a cop armed with a riot gun shot it, and the traffic resumed its progress.

When Bostonian sea life takes to the land that way, something must be done about it. There may be seals floundering all over the Boston Common and the Back Bay, if the Hub isn't careful. It may become necessary to place a guard alongside of "T" wharf to keep the fishes from flooping over the rail of the fishing schooners and going for a ramble around town. Order must be kept at all hazards, and Boston has a historic record for repelling invasion by sea.

Names For Flood Babies

Another problem connected with the Mississippi flood causes a smile to distant readers. Press reports say that colored babies, born in refugee camps or in towns in the flood area, are being given names suggestive of the present situation along the river. Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson are said to be authentic names. There are undoubtedly others yet more surprising.

The New York World suggests that public-spirited citizens with a gift for names send their suggestions to Red Cross authorities on the scene of action. It adds an important hint.

"And don't be a piker. If you're going to have the honor of naming a child, inclose a large enough check to pay for that child's support during this trying period of its life."

It is easy to laugh at such stories and the funny names that some of those flood babes will bear through life. Yet the stories have a stronger appeal. Babies are being born in that stricken region, white ones as well as colored. Lives are taken by the flood or the disease and exposure that attend it, but the whole drama of human life goes on just the same. The train of thought started by reading Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson takes one into the midst of the flood terrors and problems and brings them close home to our own daily lives.

Nowadays about the only way a man tell a woman's summer clothes from her winter clothes is by the color, and he's never sure of that.

Big towns have to build skyscrapers, so the people can get up nigh enough for a little fresh air.

A lot of people nowadays never appreciate fresh fruit unless it was picked green and shipped a long distance.

THE INTERCHANGEABLE NAME

I was out in Minnesota on a fishing trip. At a home in St. Paul we were entertained by a most charming lady.

In the living room where we sat after dinner I was struck by a photograph, framed in silver and displayed upon the mantel, of an exceedingly handsome and well-set-up boy in his early teens.

I inquired who the original of the picture might be.

"That," explained the matron, "is our son—our only child. He's off at camp for the summer."

"What it his name?" I asked.

"I'll spell it for you," said our hostess. "A-e-r-n."

"Rather unusual," I said. "How do you pronounce it?"

"That all depends," stated the lady. "You see, ours was what they call a mixed marriage. As you may have guessed, I am Jewish. My parents were orthodox Jews, while my husband, as you know, is of pure Irish descent. Both of us are proud of the races to which we belong. When our son was born each of us was naturally anxious that he should wear a name which would be agreeable to the other and yet at the same time would have a familiar and affectionate sound in the ears of all concerned. So after a number of conferences we reached a compromise. My husband calls him 'Erin' and I call him 'Aaron'."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

ABOARD THE S. S. FRANCE, May 16.—This liner plunges sturdily through high running seas toward Havre. Nothing is so gallant as a ship or so terrifying as the ocean. Everybody has been seasick, including a lieutenant of the navy. Even the captain looks peaked to me.

I did not know there was so much mal re mer in the world. At the dock in New York I was attracted to one of those virile voyageurs who seemed to look pityingly upon those of us yokels athrill with prospect of travel. He looked as though he would take no nonsense from a ship.

But he has been crumpled up in his deck chair all the way across with a complexion of luminous pea green. The only animated thing aboard seems to be my dog. Those two bonneted ladies who liven the pages of The New Yorker could get a lot of new "Whoops!" ideas from this ship.

Last night I crawled up to the dinning room. Stewards stood swaying at their ghostly array of deserted white tables. Only one passenger was there. His head was cupped in his hands. I think he has been there for three days. I got one whiff from the kitchen and galloped—buckitty, buckitty—to my post at the rail.

Our cabin steward is one of those pink-cheeked Frenchmen with a superbly waxed mustache and an adolescent voice that jumps from alto into soprano with no apparent shifting of gears. He is killing me with kindness. I asked for a small glass of orange juice and he brought a tray piled high with food—this morning he even brought sausages.

If you've never seen sausages when seasick, well, you have never really wanted to die. Most of those who have energy enough to hold up a book are reading "Elmer Gantry." I have confined my reading to the headlines of the ship's wireless newspaper. Even that taxes my strength.

Every liner offers its quota of interesting personalities. On this voyage are Jay Gould; a mystery woman who wears a white transformation; Laurens Hamilton, grandson of Pierpont Morgan, a personable youth who sponsors the deck games; Coblenz, the San Francisco publisher; Wellington Cross, who has deserted the stage for a commercial career abroad; Walter Drey, editor and poet; George Agnew Chamberlain who is to hide himself in his Paris apartment to finish a novel; Claudel, the new French Ambassador to America and Robert Weler, a distinguished French ace.

So far murder has had no place in my sin-stained career but if that precocious child continues to trill and romp up and down the outside companionway something has got to be done.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd are aboard. But they are from Chicago. They were finally compelled to tack a sign on their door announcing they were not the cinema celebrities to keep away the curious.

There goes the dinner gong. Another free banquet for the fish!

Tragedy stalks grimly upon the heels of romance on this voyage. Yesterday a couple meeting on ship-board announced they would marry on their arrival in Paris and at the wireless office this afternoon I could not help but notice a message on the counter reading: "Charles is dying of pneumonia."

Tonight as a full moon shimmered the deep with its tangerine glow a four-masted schooner—like an ancient galleon—drifted lazily across our bow. Piratical looking seamen pressed to the side and waved. Land is not far away. Hey, hey! To say nothing of ro-de-do-de-vio!

I am reliably informed that one of the passengers who has not been seen on deck once during this trip is the manufacturer of a seasick panacea. That's the sort of high rolling journey this was.

Jeeves, kick the blocks from the wheel chair. Here's France.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Cuba's Anniversary.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16.—At 12 o'clock noon on May 20 the Republic of Cuba will be 25 years old. Cuban independence really dates from the Treaty of Paris, signed December 10 1898, which ended the Spanish-American war, but there ensued a period of almost four and a half years of American occupation while the people of the island could adopt a constitution and establish a government stable enough to warrant the expectation that it would weather domestic and international storms.

The first Cuban Congress met May 5, 1902, to examine into the credentials of its own members and to count and ratify the electoral vote, and 15 days later President Tomas Estrada Palma was inaugurated, the flag of the United States was lowered, the flag of the new republic was hoisted and saluted, and American occupancy was at an end. From 1906 to 1909 there was another period of American intervention, due to an insurrection which the island authorities were unable to suppress, but that is not regarded as a break in the life of the young republic, which is officially dated from May 20, 1902.

The quarter of a century has been one of marvelous progress for Cuba. Her aggregate wealth has been more than trebled and her foreign trade increased almost six fold, but even more notable has been her improvement in sanitation, in education, and in acquiring modern conveniences in transportation, communications, and the everyday living of the people.

When this country first went to the aid of the struggling insurrectos, 12 per cent of Cuba's population and 60 per cent of her property values had been wiped out in her long revolt against Spanish rule. The death rate in the island was appalling and yellow fever was an ever-menacing spectre.

The Help That Counted.

Under Governor General Brooke, first, and later under Governor General Leonard Wood, the temporary occupational government proceeded to give the Cubans the kind of help that counted. Thorough sanitary measures were adopted; the death-rate immediately went on a decline; the causes of yellow fever were discovered and that disease nearly exterminated, and especially successful efforts were made to beautify Havana and improve its sanitary conditions. That city has become one of the most attractive in Latin America.

Reforms were extended to the prisons, hospitals, and asylums of the island. A general system of free schools was established, and in all possible practical ways, Cuba was prepared for self-government.

In 25 years the highway mileage in the island has increased from 400 to 1,800 and vastly in quality; railroads have more than doubled their mileage and greatly improved their service; the number of telephones has grown from almost zero to more than 64,000; postoffices from 306 to 468; postal revenues from $376,000 to $3,000,000; exports from $64,300,000 to $434,000,000 and imports from $60,584,000 to $297,000,000.

During the year 1925-26 the total revenues of the Cuban government were in round figures 85,000,000—not such an impressive sum, to be sure, in comparison with the revenues of this country, but altogether striking when it is known that the total revenues of the island for the four and a half years of American occupancy were only about $57,000,000.

The advance that has been made in education has been rapid despite the difficulty of securing an adequate force of teachers. In 1924 there were 3,364 schools with 377,475 pupils and almost 7,000 teachers in the public school system, and 551 private schools with more than 24,000 pupils and 1,775 teachers. The University of Havana, which was founded in 1721, had more than 2,500 students 200 years later.

The funded debt of Cuba is slightly under $100,000,000, as of March 1, 1925, and the floating debt about $14,000,000. The island's war debt of approximately $18,000,000 was called and paid on June 30, 1924.

Cuba ranks as the sixth best customer of the United States, as we sell her from 66 to 68 per cent of all her imports, and we also have taken as high as 87 per cent of her total exports. In 1924-25, she sold us goods valued at $291,915,000 and bought $206,662,000 worth from us; the preceding fiscal year her bill with us was in excess of $192,000,000, while our bill with her ran to almost $360,000,000. Sugar is, of course, Cuba's great crop, and the United States takes about 90 per cent of her product.

Y. M. C. A. Learn to Swim Campaign

In accordance with an annual custom, the Young Men's Christian association today opened its three-week "Learn to Swim" campaign. One week each has been set for three divisions—high school boys, employed youths and grade school lads. Competent instructors are in charge of the classes, and no fee will be assessed.

Of interest in connection with this campaign, one of the purposes of which is to develop healthy swimmers as well as teach those who have not mastered the art, is the fact that five members of the College Point, N. Y., Penguin club, year-round swimmers, have just been given medals by the local association of merchants. On May 1 they had completed 1,000 hours in the water. They took a dip in East River every one of the 365 days in the year. The coldest temperatures they encountered were four degrees below zero in the air and 24 degrees above zero in the water. On the really cold days they swam only about 150 yards and stayed in a shorter time. On pleasant days they sometimes swam two miles.

These five ice-water swimmers range in age from 21 to 50. One of them is a grandfather. Now, at the close of their winter activities they declare that they have all been entirely free of colds and other ills, have gained from 10 to 20 pounds in weight and are in fine general health, feeling better than they did before they tackled the year of daily swims.

Admiring neighbors and follow townsmen declare that their feat is of more importance to the country as a whole than swimming the Catalina channel, because it involved steady, regular exercise over a long period instead of spectacular achievement and physical strain concentrated in a training period and a one-day endurance swim.

The regularity of the exercise, the frequent exposure to direct sunlight and fresh air, throughout the whole year, rather than the chill of the water during the winter months, brought about the improved health conditions. We don't all have to join the Penguins to do the same for ourselves, but we can learn from them.

Boston Seals

Most Americans west of Boston will not believe that there are seals in Boston harbor. Here, however, is proof of an unexpected sort.

Motor traffic in Lynn, a northern suburb, was tied up in a knot the other morning by a commotion going on in a small, stagnant pond beside the North Shore motor road. There was a brown seal there swimming and diving in plain sight, disporting itself as if it were a trained seal in a show. Drivers stopped to watch it, and that made others stop, and soon the highway was impassable, and motorists and local residents by hundreds were watching that funny seal.

Evidently it had made its way to the pond half a mile overland, from the harbor. That was quite a feat, but the authorities didn't approve of the riot it was causing. So a cop armed with a riot gun shot it, and the traffic resumed its progress.

When Bostonian sea life takes to the land that way, something must be done about it. There may be seals floundering all over the Boston Common and the Back Bay, if the Hub isn't careful. It may become necessary to place a guard alongside of "T" wharf to keep the fishes from flooping over the rail of the fishing schooners and going for a ramble around town. Order must be kept at all hazards, and Boston has a historic record for repelling invasion by sea.

Names For Flood Babies

Another problem connected with the Mississippi flood causes a smile to distant readers. Press reports say that colored babies, born in refugee camps or in towns in the flood area, are being given names suggestive of the present situation along the river. Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson are said to be authentic names. There are undoubtedly others yet more surprising.

The New York World suggests that public-spirited citizens with a gift for names send their suggestions to Red Cross authorities on the scene of action. It adds an important hint.

"And don't be a piker. If you're going to have the honor of naming a child, inclose a large enough check to pay for that child's support during this trying period of its life."

It is easy to laugh at such stories and the funny names that some of those flood babes will bear through life. Yet the stories have a stronger appeal. Babies are being born in that stricken region, white ones as well as colored. Lives are taken by the flood or the disease and exposure that attend it, but the whole drama of human life goes on just the same. The train of thought started by reading Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson takes one into the midst of the flood terrors and problems and brings them close home to our own daily lives.

Nowadays about the only way a man tell a woman's summer clothes from her winter clothes is by the color, and he's never sure of that.

Big towns have to build skyscrapers, so the people can get up nigh enough for a little fresh air.

Miss Edith Weston Weds Okey Ludwig In Beaver Ceremony

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Edith Weston, daughter of Mrs. Richard Weston of 120 Drury lane, and Okey Ludwig, son of Christian Ludwig of Third street, Chester. The ceremony was performed in the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church of Beaver, Pa., on Friday, May 6, with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Wright, officiating.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Frank Butler, was the only attendant.

Previous to her marriage the bride conducted a beauty parlor in Drury lane. The bridegroom is employed at the American Sheet & Tin Plate company in Chester. Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig are residing temporarily with the bride's mother.

Inconvenience? Yes; But Never Pain

Menstruation is Nature—but menstrual pain is NOT natural, and not necessary. Science has conquered the painful part. In a harmless—yes, healthful —little tablet called midol.

Midol is a more remarkable means of relieving such pain than even a habit-forming drug. It acts directly on the organs affected by menstruation, and relief comes in five to seven minutes.

Don't have another day of forced quiet, of pain, low spirits or even discomfort! Midol is effective twelve hours or more. Yet it does not depress the heart, is not narcotic, and is utterly harmless. All druggists, 50 cents, in thin aluminum box that fits the smallest purse.

Are You An Economic Jaywalker?

In life, as along crowded thoroughfares, there are always people who prefer the short cuts and will not heed the traffic signals of Common Sense. They long for fine clothes, and expensive furnishings beyond the limit of Today's pay envelope, and Credit appears to be the short cut to the other side of the street. So they start gayly mortgaging Tomorrow's Dollars, and those of the Week After until they are hopelessly entangled in the traffic of every-day life.

Every purchase made in the J. C. Penney Company stores means a saving to the purchaser because of our universal policy of buying and selling only for cash. Of more importance, however, than the money saved is the habit of thrift and economy formed. Our customers have taught their desires to follow the safe and sober paths laid down by Good Judgment, rather than to dash recklessly into the tangled mazes of extravagance.

Are You An Economic Jaywalker?

In life, as along crowded thoroughfares, there are always people who prefer the short cuts and will not heed the traffic signals of Common Sense. They long for fine clothes, and expensive furnishings beyond the limit of Today's pay envelope, and Credit appears to be the short cut to the other side of the street. So they start gayly mortgaging Tomorrow's Dollars, and those of the Week After until they are hopelessly entangled in the traffic of every-day life.

Every purchase made in the J. C. Penney Company stores means a saving to the purchaser because of our universal policy of buying and selling only for cash. Of more importance, however, than the money saved is the habit of thrift and economy formed. Our customers have taught their desires to follow the safe and sober paths laid down by Good Judgment, rather than to dash recklessly into the tangled mazes of extravagance.

Care and Sureness Mark Service of R. J. Powell Movers

Moving is trouble enough in itself, in the disturbance and chaotical household conditions that it entails, but the family that completes a moving with simply the inconvenience of transferring their belongings from one house to another is fortunate. So many are frequently confronted with other conditions that arise such as the loss of small articles of one kind or another, sometimes breakage and quite often scratches and gashes in expensive pieces of furniture that are mighty difficult to remove.

A guarantee against this kind of trouble has made the R. J. Powell transfer service one of the leading businesses of its kind in the district.

Distance has nothing to do with Powell's service. Your work will be taken care of in the same excellent way regardless of whether the speedometer on the moving van says one block, one mile or one thousand miles.

Furniture, pianos, freight of various descriptions, express and other merchandise are handled by Powell from anywhere to anywhere.

The fact that all of his loads are insured enhances the service considerably.

Lunch at Graham's Adds to Pleasure Of Daily Routine

While a meal is just something to eat at a great many restaurants and similar establishments and, as such, is regarded more or less as just another "filling station" down the day's journey, it has come to be known as something better at Graham's, something in the nature, almost, of a delicacy, punctuating the day's activities with a pleasurable half-hour or so instead of just a period of gastronomical exercise.

In other words, a meal or lunch at William Graham's, in Diamond alley, provides a relish and zest that makes the eating worth while, instead of just something to fill the inner void.

Home cooking is the answer, and the reason—so many lunch counter and dining room patrons enjoy their meals off the spotless linen and counters at Graham's almost as much as they do at home.

A strictly American cuisine has served to popularize this Diamond alley restaurant which is located right back of Bulger's Drug Store.

Luscious, wholesome T-bone steaks and other substantial entrees as well as the tempting accessory side dishes and the numerous luncheon and short order specialties and tasty sandwiches provide a complete menu.

Refinish Your Car At Drier's and Look Your Best on Road

Setting forth on a fine Sunday afternoon's drive, you may look your best, attired in faultless style from panama headgear to spotless lowcuts, but what's the use if your automobile has that run-down-at-the-heel appearance?

You'll fail to "register" at all, regardless of whether you're able to take all the intervening hills on high or not.

Years ago, a tawdry looking motor car might have been excusable, but now with a paint shop as handy as Drier's, and a workmanship equal to the best, there's no reason for inability to present a "dressed up" auto to the motoring public on the open road.

Drier's Auto Shop is located at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and State street in the East End.

It is an authorized Duco refinishing station. To have your car done over in duco is not as expensive as it may seem, at Drier's shop, and the result, in the opinion of many, is far better than just an ordinary paint job.

And don't forget a new finish on the car will bring you more dollars on the trade-in or in an outright sale.

Guaranteed Work Service Feature At Deacon Garage

"It's not the initial cost—it's the upkeep" the prospective automobile owner is frequently warned, and, after he's had a car for a year or a couple of years, depending on what kind of care he's given it, he comes to know this himself after repeated visits to various kinds of repair shops.

Skimpy repair work or jobs done in a hurry increase motor troubles in a case where repair work, correctly done in the first place, end possible difficulties then and there. A good job makes a lasting friend and patron out of the automobile owner and more business for the man who did the work.

Harry Langdon, proprietor of the Deacon garage, repairing practically any standard make of automobile, emphasizes the advantage to auto owners in his guarantee on all work done at the shop.

The Deacon garage takes out body dents, "ruffles" out of fenders and is qualified to straighten up the disabled car in other ways.

A battery charging department also is maintained. Batteries are rented while your own is being charged, delivery being made both ways, if necessary.

Ruud or Hoffman Heater Enhances Value of Home

Well, now that winter's over and the Robins are chirping a roundelay on the fence in the back yard, you folks who struggled through four or five months of so of coldness, chills and dampness, without a furnace in the house will have several good hot months in which to think it over and lay your plans for thwarting the icy blasts of 1927-28.

And to this end and as a short cut to the installation of a satisfactory heating plant, B. F. Davidson, who operates a plumbing and heating shop at 306½ Broadway, advances the suggestion that prospective buyers investigate the merits of the Rudd or the Hoffman automatic, both warranted to deliver the utmost in service and satisfaction.

Did you, by any chance, try to sell your house last winter or this spring, without a furnace in it?

Or, on the other hand, if you were contemplating the purchase of a home, and you had two propositions before you, each being the equal of the other in all advantages save that one was equipped with a modern heating system and the other was not, which would be the logical choice? Certainly, the one with the furnace.

Many factors combine to enhance property valuation and a good, up to date heating system is not the least of these.

Ervine Machine Co., Skill Available in Potting Industry

While an expansion policy inaugurated some time ago to take care of demands of the pottery trade has increased operations considerably at the Ervine Machine company, the quality of machine work done for other patrons throughout the Tri-State district who have been old customers of the plant, has been maintained at a high level in keeping with the standards of the shop.

Since stepping into the field of pottery, milling and mining machinery, the Ervine company's business has been swelled considerably and if repeat orders are based mostly on results, Ervine's should have little difficulty in keeping its place in this new line of endeavor.

C. E. Ervine and Bert Bucher, both of whom are sufficiently well known in the district in this particular line of work to need little or no introduction, are in charge of operations at Ervine's.

The plant is located at the rear of 644 St. Clair avenue. They will gladly furnish estimates on practically any kind of machine work.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

SOCIALLY INCLINED NOT EAGER FOR TURKISH AMBASSADORSHIP

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, May 16. — Social competition is not expected to be very keen for the post of ambassador to Turkey vacant ever since war days, but soon to be filled, now that President Mustapha Kemal Pasha and Uncle Samuel have fixed things up diplomaticlaly.

MUSTAPHA KEMEL PASHA

The Ottoman embassy was a nice berth in the old days, when the sultan reigned, with his capital in Constantinople.

Constantinople's a beautiful city. In general it's been pretty tumble-down for many's the long generation, but it had a swell European quarter. It's right on one of the world's big main-traveled roads, with tourists coming and going, warships ducking in and out, lots of aristocratic company to visit with and plenty of brilliant entertaining going on.

But President Kemal's capital is Angora.

The very reasons that made Occidentals like Constantinople are exactly the reasons why Kemal moved away from there. He said Constantinople was too central, which made it too easy for foreigners to butt in. In fact, he complained it was so situated that the "powers," whenever they felt like it, could send cruisers right into the Bosphorous and shell him out of house and home.

He explained that his ideal of a capital was some place well inland, where the Turkish government could run things to suit itself.

He found it in Angora, and more, too.

It's a jerk-water burg, right in the midst of Asia Minor; hard to get into and hard to leave; with a raw, nasty climate in winter, and hotter than mustard, dry as an ash heap and gritty with dust the rest of the year; not a modern convenience to its name.

It's a typical one-horse Turkish town of the time of the Arabian Nights.

It never was intended to house a capital, and the diplomats literally were hard put to it to find shelter when they landed there. They couldn't stand native accommodations, and there weren't any even of those.

When President Kemal moved to Angora the diplomatic corps tried to get him to let them stay in Constantinople and do business with him at long range.

Kemal said no—they could come to Angora or go home.

He's arbitrary in such matters. He showed it when the issue of extra-territoriality came up directly after he'd elected himself president.

Extraterritoriality's one of the things the "powers" are trying to hang onto in Chna now. They used to have it in Turkey, too.

During the long break in diplomatic relations between Angora and Washington, Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol has functioned virtually as American ambassador in Turkey, under the title of high commissioner.

He's been a great success, but with the restoration of regular relations and Bristol's transfer to the command of the United States fleet in Chinese waters, a real ambassador must be named.

It will be a good job for some chap who doesn't mind roughing it, but Angora's no place to take a wife who wants to figure in swell society. A plaintive report I saw from there the other days describes it as a "miserable hole."

A combination umbrella and bath robe for bathers has been devised.

By a new process rayon is being made from rice hulls.

Raincoats of water-proof paper are proving practicable.

SCHOOL PUPILS ERECT SMALL POTTERY KILN

Ceramics Class Members Busy on Union Street Site.

PORTABLE SHED

First Firing Will Occur Before Vacation Period.

Members of the Ceramics class of the local high school are engaged today in the erection of a small kiln on a Union street site directly back of the Croxall Chemical & Supply Company's property at Broadway and East Fourth street.

The kiln will be housed in a portable sheet metal building, 20 feet square. Space inside the building is sufficient for two kilns as well as two furnaces, which will be installed later.

But one kiln will be erected. It will be a cylinder-shaped arrangement, 18 inches in diameter and 45 inches high, large enough to hold one bung of saggers, and of the down draft type and will be fired with natural gas or oil.

The kiln probably will be fired before school closes, according to Kenneth Smith, ceramic director. All work in connection with the building was done by high school students, working under the direction of Smith. Funds for the improvements were furnished from the ceramics school fund, contributed by district pottery manufacturers.

Thomas Sant of the Thomas H. Sant & Son Company, clay importers, furnished 900 No. 1 fire brick and 150 arch brick for the kiln and flue. The cost of the building was about $150.

Products of the high school ceramic class heretofore have been fired in kilns of manufacturers, no charges being made for kiln space. The completion of the kiln will enable the class to fire its own products.

Turkey's new railway line will start with 100 locomotives and 1,500 cars.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles don't know that quick and permanent relief can be accomplished with internal medicine. Cutting or any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will not remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in many, many cases with a marvelous record of success, such a wonderful record that HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Mathews Original Cut Rate today. It has given quick and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you.

CLEVELAND POLICE HOLD FIVE MEN IN MURDER QUIZ

GIRL, WITH 19 KNIFE WOUNDS IN BODY, FOUND EARLY SUNDAY

Victim Was Divorced Wife of Former Cleveland Officer.

CARDS ARE CLUE

Crime Discovered by Maid of Fashionable Apartment House.

CLEVELAND, May 16.—Five men were being held by police today for further investigation, while friends and acquaintances of Elizabeth Reegan, pretty 25-year-old waitress, were being questioned, in an attempt to solve the mystery surrounding her murder.

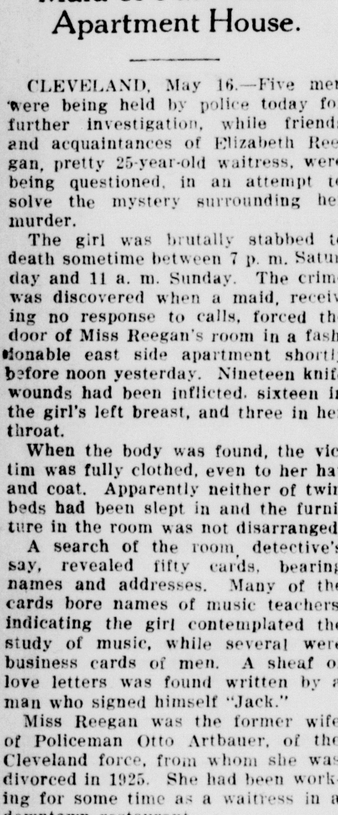
The girl was brutally stabbed to death sometime between 7 p. m. Saturday and 11 a. m. Sunday. The crime was discovered when a maid, receiving no response to calls, forced the door of Miss Reegan's room in a fashionable east side apartment shortly before noon yesterday. Nineteen knife wounds had been inflicted, sixteen in the girl's left breast, and three in her throat.

When the body was found, the victim was fully clothed, even to her hat and coat. Apparently neither of twin beds had been slept in and the furniture in the room was not disarranged.

A search of the room, detective's say, revealed fifty cards, bearing names and addresses. Many of the cards bore names of music teachers, indicating the girl contemplated the study of music, while several were business cards of men. A sheaf of love letters was found written by a man who signed himself "Jack."

Miss Reegan was the former wife of Policeman Otto Artbauer, of the Cleveland force, from whom she was divorced in 1925. She had been working for some time as a waitress in a downtown restaurant.

"Flying Fool"



Captain Charles Lindbergh, former air mail pilot, who hopped from San Diego, Calif., to New York, via St. Louis, en route to Paris, in a couple of days' flying time, has been nicknamed "Flying Fool"—a term, however, of pride Americans have in him for his achievements. The snapshot above was taken at Curtiss Field, Long Island, N. Y., with Lindbergh standing in front of his "Spirit of St. Louis."

TO answer the scientific question, "what sort of milk do young lions drink?" Captain Schneider, head-keeper of Berlin's zoo, recently milked a lioness at great risk to himself.

Professor Zerngross wanted to make experiments. He will find that lions' milk is much like other milk, so much sugar, so much fat, so much protin, etc.

When a lion is killed the African chief eats its heart, thinking it will make him lion-like, but it doesn't. "Tiger, tiger, burning bright," and the lion burning similarily, get their fearful powers from heredity, the mystery of life, not from milk.

within six hours of the receipt of the wireless report at Director Parker's office.

More than 200 miles of Louisiana railroad is under water and 150 miles more will go under this week, according to a survey of transportation experts at relief headquarters.

Hope is also held out that the main western artery of the Southern Pacific from New Orleans to Texas which swings below the southern edge of Grand Lake, will not be water-covered.

The Bayou Des Glaises levee, approximately 50 miles long protecting a flat 25 miles west of the Atchafalaya, is now dotted with crevasses, at least two of which are of immense proportions, and all enlarging. The Bayou Des Glaises levee has been practically abandoned. The flood on the west side of the Atchafalaya will extend to the Gulf of Mexico. It will gradually increase to very great proportions, with the levees east of the Atchafalaya holding, the area west of that river must take care of the flood waters now in the Tenas basin.

HOLD ELYRIA MAN IN DEATH QUIZ

ELYRIA, O., May 16.—Mary Sokoloff, 30, alleged common-law wife of Alex Sokoloff, 31, was dead today, following an attack by Sokoloff at South Amherst, 12 miles west of here, Sunday, when, in a jealous frenzy, he knocked her down, jumped on her, breaking her neck and then slashed her wrists with a knife.

Nick Zumakoff, who witnessed the attack and interfered, is in a hospital suffering from a possible skull fracture, sustained when Sokoloff struck him with a hatchet. Police say Sokoloff became enraged over the alleged attention paid Mrs. Sokoloff by another man.

$3,544 Collected At First Methodist Protestant Church

Approximately $3,544 was taken in at the First Methodist Protestant church yesterday when the fourth anniversary of the new church edifice on Jackson street, was celebrated. This is more than $500 of the amount sought by the church trustees to liquidate the mortgage on the church property.

Rev. Thomas H. Lewis, D. D., LL. D., Washington, president of the general assembly, occupied the pulpit of the church at both the morning and evening services. Special music featured all services.

Court Is Adjourned.

On account of the death of Attorney J. Frank Johnston, at New Waterford, common pleas court adjourned at noon today until tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 16.—Speculative interest was directed to the railroad shares at the beginning of trading today. After an irregular opening, in which the major trend of prices was upward, the industrials sold off on profit-taking, with the usual buying demand being in evidence at a slightly lower range of prices.

The first reports from industrial centers in the new week were generally favorable. General Motors corporation reported retail sales of 180-106 cars in April, against 146,275 in March and 136,643 in April, 1926, which was in keeping with its record-breaking pace. Call money renewals were posted at 4½ per cent., a slight increase over the final rate last week. Distressing news from the southern flood districts also pointed to the certainty of heavy losses in agricultural products, principally sugar and cotton.

Further advances in fairly active trading. The list included Western Maryland, Chicago Great Western, Katy, Kansas City Southern, Nickel Plate and Erie also received further attention from professionals, with Chesapeake & Ohio extending its "peak" to above 184. The market as a whole was dull and inactive in the second hour, with prices inclined to sag. Commodity markets exhibited a mixed trend, with cotton down about 10 points and grain fractionally higher. Raw sugar prices were advanced about 10 points to 6.20 cents a pound. Atlantic Refining company cut gasoline 2 cents a gallon in its territory, but similar action was not immediately taken by the big distributors in New York. Foreign exchanges were steady and foreign bonds quiet.

May Establish Bus Line Between This City and Youngstown

The East Ohio Motor Bus company has filed an application with the public utilities commission at Columbus for permission to operate a motor bus between East Liverpool and Youngstown, over State routes No. 7 and 164, through Columbiana and Mahoning counties.

Six 12-passenger Studebaker cars will be put into service on the proposed line according to the application. Four round trips between the two cities will be made daily, if the application is approved.

Solicitors For Magazine Work This Direction

Local police today received word from Wheeling asking them to be on the lookout for two men who are soliciting subscriptions for a publication known as the "International Magazine."

The men, who formerly worked for the magazine were discharged a few days ago but did not turn in their credentials, receipt books and other literature. The pair are no longer authorized to take subscriptions for the magazine and are believed to be working in the direction of this city.

Should the men make their appearance in the city, police headquarters should be notified.

SHERIFF RAIDS CHICKEN FIGHT

NEW LEXINGTON, May 16.—Sheriff Harley McNabb today was conning a list of more than 100 persons, many of them from Columbus, Cleveland, Cincinnati and other large Ohio cities, following a spectacular raid on one of the largest cock fights ever found in the state. He took the names of 100 of the spectators, seized 15 dead cocks, many steel spurs and other equipment, and arrested Robert Brunton, of Buckingham, as the operator of the fight.

The fight was being held Sunday at the Green Place, near Somerset, and is said to have been advertised widely throughout the state.

Donahey Approves $33,000 Appropriation For Guilford Park

Governor A. V. Donahey today approved an appropriation of $33,000 for proposed improvements which are to be made to the state park property at Guilford, five miles north-west of Lisbon.

This appropriation is in addition to that of $40,000 which was set aside for the state park project by the legislature two years ago. Owners of property to be included in the state park project must act before July 1 to clear up the abstract for the land to meet the approval of the attorney general.

Improvements for the park are expected to start this summer. Opening in the dam is to be closed, the entire area to be flooded. This will afford a lake which will cover approximately 500 acres.

Ordinance Held Valid

KLAN LEADER SEEKS PAROLE

INDIANAPOLIS, May 16. — D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, serving a life term in the state prison for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, 28, former Butler university co-ed, today petitioned Governor Jackson for a parole.

Stephenson asks for a temporary parole on the plea that only through such action can he expose the machinations of his enemies and save the $200,000 which still remains of a fortune once rated at a million dollars.

The petition, 18 pages long, full of his characteristic oratorical vituperation is the most comprehensive defense Stephenson has ever made. During his trial for murder at Noblesville, Ind., he did not take the stand and his defense lacked spirit.

SEEK RULING ON DRY ENFORCER

COLUMBUS, May 16.—The question whether a mayor's court has jurisdiction to hear and try a person accused of violating state prohibition laws, instead of a municipal ordinance, is raised in a suit filed in the state supreme court today.

The case is that of M. J. Dugan, who asks the supreme court to reverse the action of the Green county courts which affirmed the decree of the Xenia mayor's court which found Dugan guilty of unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor.

NO TRACE OF FRENCH FLYERS

ST. JOHNS, N. F., May 16.—While French vessels scour the Newfoundland coast for traces of Captain Nungesser and Captain Coli, inquiry here leads to doubt as to whether the French fliers ever reached these coasts.

The one fact that tends to the theory that they did is the evidence of five reputable citizens of Harbor Grace that they heard an airplane pass over head last Monday. This fact, however, is questioned by some because they are of the opinion that if an airplane had passed over there would have been more who would have heard it.

The belief that the French airmen never reached this coast is becoming stronger as search fails to indicate any trace of them, and careful inquiry into many reports shows that most of these reports are based on hearsay.

BAPTISTS OPEN STATE MEETING

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 16.—Rev K. H. Lloyd, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, president of the Ohio Baptist Association, is presiding at the annual four-day convention of the association which opened here today. Over 500 Baptist ministers and laymen are in attendance.

Speakers were to include Mrs. George L. Brooke, of India; Dr. Avery Shaw, recently elected president of Denison university at Granville and Dr. R. Y. Mullins, president of the World Baptist Mission Alliance.

THREE KILLED, TWO HURT IN CRASH

DAYTON, May 16.—Three persons were dead today, and two others suffering from injuries, as the result of an automobile crash on the Dixie highway at Vandalia.

The dead are: Theodore Efhelman, 30; his son, Richard, 4; his niece Miss Mary Margaret Smith, 11. Another son, Robert, 5, and Mrs. Thelma Efhelman, 24, wife of the dead man, were injured.

The crash occurred when Efhelman's car and another machine going in the opposite direction crashed head-on.

CLEVELAND POLICE HOLD FIVE MEN IN MURDER QUIZ

GIRL, WITH 19 KNIFE WOUNDS IN BODY, FOUND EARLY SUNDAY

CARDS ARE CLUE

Crime Discovered by Maid of Fashionable Apartment House.

CLEVELAND, May 16.—Five men were being held by police today for further investigation, while friends and acquaintances of Elizabeth Reegan, pretty 25-year-old waitress, were being questioned, in an attempt to solve the mystery surrounding her murder.

The girl was brutally stabbed to death sometime between 7 p. m. Saturday and 11 a. m. Sunday. The crime was discovered when a maid, receiving no response to calls, forced the door of Miss Reegan's room in a fashionable east side apartment shortly before noon yesterday. Nineteen knife wounds had been inflicted, sixteen in the girl's left breast, and three in her throat.

When the body was found, the victim was fully clothed, even to her hat and coat. Apparently neither of twin beds had been slept in and the furniture in the room was not disarranged.

A search of the room, detective's say, revealed fifty cards, bearing names and addresses. Many of the cards bore names of music teachers, indicating the girl contemplated the study of music, while several were business cards of men. A sheaf of love letters was found written by a man who signed himself "Jack."

Miss Reegan was the former wife of Policeman Otto Artbauer, of the Cleveland force, from whom she was divorced in 1925. She had been working for some time as a waitress in a downtown restaurant.

"Flying Fool"

Captain Charles Lindbergh, former air mail pilot, who hopped from San Diego, Calif., to New York, via St. Louis, en route to Paris, in a couple of days' flying time, has been nicknamed "Flying Fool"—a term, however, of pride Americans have in him for his achievements. The snapshot above was taken at Curtiss Field, Long Island, N. Y., with Lindbergh standing in front of his "Spirit of St. Louis."

TO answer the scientific question, "what sort of milk do young lions drink?" Captain Schneider, head-keeper of Berlin's zoo, recently milked a lioness at great risk to himself.

Professor Zerngross wanted to make experiments. He will find that lions' milk is much like other milk, so much sugar, so much fat, so much protin, etc.

When a lion is killed the African chief eats its heart, thinking it will make him lion-like, but it doesn't. "Tiger, tiger, burning bright," and the lion burning similarily, get their fearful powers from heredity, the mystery of life, not from milk.

within six hours of the receipt of the wireless report at Director Parker's office.

More than 200 miles of Louisiana railroad is under water and 150 miles more will go under this week, according to a survey of transportation experts at relief headquarters.

Hope is also held out that the main western artery of the Southern Pacific from New Orleans to Texas which swings below the southern edge of Grand Lake, will not be water-covered.

The Bayou Des Glaises levee, approximately 50 miles long protecting a flat 25 miles west of the Atchafalaya, is now dotted with crevasses, at least two of which are of immense proportions, and all enlarging. The Bayou Des Glaises levee has been practically abandoned. The flood on the west side of the Atchafalaya will extend to the Gulf of Mexico. It will gradually increase to very great proportions, with the levees east of the Atchafalaya holding, the area west of that river must take care of the flood waters now in the Tenas basin.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 16.—Speculative interest was directed to the railroad shares at the beginning of trading today. After an irregular opening, in which the major trend of prices was upward, the industrials sold off on profit-taking, with the usual buying demand being in evidence at a slightly lower range of prices.

The first reports from industrial centers in the new week were generally favorable. General Motors corporation reported retail sales of 180-106 cars in April, against 146,275 in March and 136,643 in April, 1926, which was in keeping with its record-breaking pace. Call money renewals were posted at 4½ per cent., a slight increase over the final rate last week. Distressing news from the southern flood districts also pointed to the certainty of heavy losses in agricultural products, principally sugar and cotton.

Further advances in fairly active trading. The list included Western Maryland, Chicago Great Western, Katy, Kansas City Southern, Nickel Plate and Erie also received further attention from professionals, with Chesapeake & Ohio extending its "peak" to above 184. The market as a whole was dull and inactive in the second hour, with prices inclined to sag. Commodity markets exhibited a mixed trend, with cotton down about 10 points and grain fractionally higher. Raw sugar prices were advanced about 10 points to 6.20 cents a pound. Atlantic Refining company cut gasoline 2 cents a gallon in its territory, but similar action was not immediately taken by the big distributors in New York. Foreign exchanges were steady and foreign bonds quiet.

Five Killed When Train Hits Auto At Rail Crossing

AKRON, May 16. — Five persons were dead here today, victims of a railroad crossing collision Sunday night between a Pennsylvania passenger train and a sedan. They are:

J. M. Mull, 38, Mrs. Hester Mull, 40, his wife, Edith Mull, 5, their daughter, William Jones, 38, and Wendell Harper, 29, all of this city.

Mrs. Margaret Jones, 35, wife of William Jones, one of the dead, was in a critical condition in a Barberton hospital.

CHILDREN DIE WHEN HOME BURNS

CINCINNATI, May 16.—Two children, James and Lee McIntosh, aged 2 and 3 years, respectively were suffocated when fire destroyed the home of their parents in Lockland, a suburb, Sunday night. Two other children of the same family were saved.

WEIRTON MAN ENDS HIS LIFE

Stephen Wirres, 32, Sends Bullet Into Brain at Noon Yesterday.

Stephen Wirres, 32, employed by the Weirton Steel company, ended his life yesterday morning by sending a .38 calibre bullet into his brain in his home, Fourth street, Weirton. Death was instantaneous.

Wirres' wife and two sons, Frank 9, and Steve 12, were it was said, warned by the husband and father that he was going to kill himself before they left the house to attend church. They thought he was joking and paid no attention to the threat.

Shortly before noon neighbors heard a shot and rushing into the house found him stretched across the bed with a gaping bullet wound in his skull and the revolver tightly clutched in his hand.

Coroner George A. Arner, of Chester, later in the day conducted an inquest and returned a verdict of "suicide by shooting."

FORMER AUDITOR ADJUDGED INSANE

Former State Auditor John C. Bond was found insane by a jury Saturday at Charleston, thus preventing his immediate trial on charges of embezzlement on which he was indicted by the Kanawha county grand jury.

The jury, however, found Bond was sane in 1923, the time the checks were issued against funds for support of the state auditor's office, which formed the basis for the indictment, and consequently the prosecution of the charges is not banned should he be subsequently released from a hospital as cured.

Bond will be committed to a state hospital this week.

FIVE MEN HANDED FINES BY MAYOR

Frank Bowers, who was arrested Saturday night in Carolina avenue by Chief of Police William Smith on a charge of disorderly conduct, was fined $50 and costs when arraigned yesterday before Mayor Frank H. Riley.

Chief Smith also made a raid on a poker game near Carolina avenue and Dunn street arresting four men who gave their names as Homer Lange, Eugene Beal and Charles McLaughlin. A brother of the latter was also taken into custody. They were fined $5 and costs when arraigned before the mayor.

PASTOR PREACHES FAREWELL SERMON

MAY M'AVOY AT THE STRAND

"Matinee Ladies" Story of Force and Beauty.

"Matinee Ladies," a Warner production, with lovely May McAvoy as the star is the attraction at the Strand. And it is an attraction! In support of Miss McAvoy is the popular Malcolm McGregor, who is cast as a young law student who turns dancing-man to raise funds to pay his way through college. At the roadhouse he meets Sallie, the cigarette girl, and the two manage to steer clear of entanglements overly serious, with lackadaisical matinee ladies who would ensnare the youth, and pot-bellied rounders who would inveigle Sallie from the straight and narrow path.

A story of force, beauty and humaneness and at the same time of the utmost modernity is the result of Graham Baker's adaptation of the work of Albert S. Howson and Sidney R. Buchman. Others in the cast are Hedda Hopper, Margaret Seldon, Richard Tucker, Jean Lefferty, Cissy Fitzgerald and William Demerast. Byron Haskins directed. No one should miss the pleasure of seeing "Matinee Ladies."

Church Dedicated.

Bishop Joseph F. Berry, of Philadelphia, dedicated the new Brookline Methodist Episcopal church last night. Rev. Alexander Steele, pastor of the church, was formerly in charge of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Chester.

Efforts are being made in Turkey to increase aviation revenues.

Special Meeting of Federal Grand Jury Called for May 23

CLEVELAND, May 16.—A special federal grand jury to consider the cases of 34 prisoners who are held here on various charges will be called May 23 according to an announcement made today from George Stauffer, U. S. Marshal.

Failure of the last congress to pass the deficiency appropriation gill made it necessary to postpone calling of another grand jury until July. A surplus of $3,000 from the Youngstown and Toledo district will make it possible to summon a jury this month, Stauffer said.

Several prisoners have been held in jail here since last November while their cases were pending. In some instances prisoners have already remained in jail for a longer period than their sentences would have been had they been found guilty, it is said.

Automobile Thief Had No Use for Lilies In Stolen Machine

DEFIANCE, O., May 16—Two lilies, appropriate flowers, were found in the wrecked automobile of George Schmeiser, that was stolen from in front of his house here, when police recovered the car Friday. The sedan had crashed into the ditch and was badly damaged.

Evidently the thief was alive enough that he did not have use for the lilies, and abandoned them with the machine.

'STELLA DALLAS' SCREEN WINNER

Picturization of Celebrated Novel at American Theatre.

"Stella Dallas," Samuel Goldwyn's first photoplay production for United Artists Corporation, might well be called "the great American photo-drama." This picturization of Olive Higgin's Prouty's celebrated novel was produced under the direction of Henry King, who has given the world an endless succession of masterful cinematic offerings, including "The White Sister, 'Tol'able David," and other plays which will live for years.

In "Stella Dallas," which opened a four-day run today at the American theatre, King has put forth his best efforts, and surrounded his principals with minor players of unusual ability, until the story, read by millions, is said to live before one's eyes.

Belle Bennett, well-known actress of stage and screen, was chosen for the title role fro ma field of 73 interesting possibilities. Tests were made of that number of capable players in Hollywood and New York before a choice was made. Miss Bennett was the only one who seemed the very incarnation of "Stella."

Ronald Colman, as Stephen Dallas seems also to fit the part perfectly. As the debonair man-about-town, he always registers with great success, and this role give him opportunity for much more than the usual amount of dramatic accomplishment.

Alice Joyce, as Helen Morrison, completes the interesting triangle. As the refined and wealthy widow whose charms supplant the neglected one of Stella in Dallas' affections, she has rarely if ever enjoyed a more telling characterization.

The juvenile leads are in the capable hands of Lois Moran and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Miss Moran is the 15 year-old child wonder discovery of Samuel Goldwyn's while recently in Paris. She is a native American, however, and in this, her first American screen effort, interprets the difficult role of Laurel Dallas in a masterly and at the same time naive manner which is irresistible, foretelling a future of unlimited possibilities for the little lady.

Young Fairbanks is a "chip off the old block," not only in appearance but in mannerisms, and in the role of yeung Grovesnor, places himself squarely in the ranks of young leading men.

Jean Hersholt, famous character artist, interprets the part of Ed Munn, the low-brow riding master with such finesse as to surprise even his countless admirers. In this role he is given a latitude such as he has seldom enjoyed and that he makes the most of it is very evident.

The supporting players are meticulously chosen and all adequate. "Stella Dallas" is undoubtedly one of the best cast pictures yet released.

"Stella Dallas" is the first production of Henry King since his recent affiliation with Samuel Goldwyn under a long term contract.

School children of the United States saved more than $20,000,000 last year.

SIX MAJOR ROAD JOBS LAUNCHED

Work Inaugurated on Projects in Various Parts of County.

Six major road projects are now under construction in this county, and each was previously outlined in the road improvement program outlined by the county commissioners during the summer of 1925.

"The only thing that now stands in the way of the early completion of these surfacing and grading projects is the weather," remarked County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. "The contractors have the materials at hand, and there is no scarcity of labor. Each contractor is anxious to complete his or their project, and the only thing now that will delay speedy completion of the roads now under construction will be the weather.."

The Mellert-Weidener company of Medina have started pouring concrete on the Salem-Hanoverton road, and so far about three-quarters of a mile of road has been surfaced. This firm has done other work in this county, and speed records were hung up on their former contracts. This road extends from Hanoverton on the Lincoln highway northward to connect with the paved Salem-Winona road. The paved road, however, will not tap Winona as did the former dirt road.

The Holmes Construction company of Wooster is now pouring concrete on the Summitville-Salineville road, this project beginning at the Columbiana-Carroll county line and working eastward to Salineville. This road, it is now made known, will form a part of a new East Liverpool-Columbus intercounty highway.

The sub-grade on both the Salem-Hanoverton and the Summitville-Salineville road is exceptionally good, and because of this condition, the hauling of materials can be resumed almost within an hour after a rain.

After this road has been improved to Summitville, the contractors will remove their equipment both unloading and surfacing to the Salineville section, when the surfacing will be continued from the county line southward to the improved street in Salineville.

J. C. McCann, of Columbus, recently awarded the contract for grading the Lisbon-Salineville road, now has a force of men on this contract. One steam shovel is to be put on the job this week, and another is expected to be delivered within a few weeks. In addition to starting grading, concrete culverts are now being poured on this road.

A new route is to be followed on this project. Excessive grades have been eliminated on the new route, which will tap the Wellsville-Salineville road at Tidball hollow.

It is likely the Salem-Franklin Square road will be finished before May 30, providing favorable weather prevails. This contract was recently awarded to J. D. Paxson of Salem. The first course of slag has been spread over the entire distance on this road.

Good progress is beig made by Lewis & Copeland, of Lima, on the grading project on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road from Middleton northward to tap the Cox highway in Fairfield township. It has been indicated by the county commissioners that should the grading on this section be finished at an early date, there is a possibility that the surfacing contract will be awarded so that this part of the road may also be finished before cold weather sets in.

Excavation for culverts on the East Liverpool-East Palestine road has begun under the supervision of Contractor Herman C. Armstrong of Lisbon. The contract for grading this road was awarded a fortnight ago by the county commissioners to the Allison-Harris company of East Liverpool. Actual grading on this project will begin as soon as a steam shovel can be taken to the road, and later a second shovel is to be employed.

Armstrong has also completed the pouring of the concrete bridge at Cannons Mills, although the railing on this structure is to be poured. This section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road is now ready for surfacing, the contract having been awarded Lewis & Copeland of Lima some months ago.

Lewis & Copeland are also at work on an extension to a bridge at New Waterford, from which point the village of New Waterford proposes to complete top surfacing further into the corporate limits.

Of more than passing interest to motorists is the fact that the Carroll county commissioners propose to grade and drain all of the Carrollton Salineville road this year. The proposition, however, has been held back by the legislature. It is the intention of the Carroll county commissioners to award this contract in two sections, one that will have to do with the grading and drainage work from Carrollton to Mechanicstown, and another contract on the section from Mechanicstown to Salineville.

The improvement of this road between Salineville and Carrollton will be the last lap to be surfaced on the recently designated East Liverpool-Columbus inter-county highway. All of this road from Carrollton westward to New Philadelphia, thence to Columbus is now surfaced.

There are several state road projects in this county that are to be considered by the county commissioners for current year attention, but on account of no definite information from the state highway department at Columbus, the commissioners are merely marking time, but are anxious to put the projects over. These projects have to do with the Rogers-Negley road and also the Lincoln highway west of Kensington. Included in this latter proposition is also several small sections of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road.

While these road projects have not been discussed by the commissioners and Surveyor Kirk with the state highway department, during a general conference, these county officials, however, feel certain that these road projects are taken out of the possibilities and placed among the probabilities by the legislature enacting the additional one-cent gasoline tax law.

SIX MAJOR ROAD JOBS LAUNCHED

Work Inaugurated on Projects in Various Parts of County.

Six major road projects are now under construction in this county, and each was previously outlined in the road improvement program outlined by the county commissioners during the summer of 1925.

"The only thing that now stands in the way of the early completion of these surfacing and grading projects is the weather," remarked County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. "The contractors have the materials at hand, and there is no scarcity of labor. Each contractor is anxious to complete his or their project, and the only thing now that will delay speedy completion of the roads now under construction will be the weather.."

The Mellert-Weidener company of Medina have started pouring concrete on the Salem-Hanoverton road, and so far about three-quarters of a mile of road has been surfaced. This firm has done other work in this county, and speed records were hung up on their former contracts. This road extends from Hanoverton on the Lincoln highway northward to connect with the paved Salem-Winona road. The paved road, however, will not tap Winona as did the former dirt road.

The Holmes Construction company of Wooster is now pouring concrete on the Summitville-Salineville road, this project beginning at the Columbiana-Carroll county line and working eastward to Salineville. This road, it is now made known, will form a part of a new East Liverpool-Columbus intercounty highway.

The sub-grade on both the Salem-Hanoverton and the Summitville-Salineville road is exceptionally good, and because of this condition, the hauling of materials can be resumed almost within an hour after a rain.

After this road has been improved to Summitville, the contractors will remove their equipment both unloading and surfacing to the Salineville section, when the surfacing will be continued from the county line southward to the improved street in Salineville.

J. C. McCann, of Columbus, recently awarded the contract for grading the Lisbon-Salineville road, now has a force of men on this contract. One steam shovel is to be put on the job this week, and another is expected to be delivered within a few weeks. In addition to starting grading, concrete culverts are now being poured on this road.

A new route is to be followed on this project. Excessive grades have been eliminated on the new route, which will tap the Wellsville-Salineville road at Tidball hollow.

It is likely the Salem-Franklin Square road will be finished before May 30, providing favorable weather prevails. This contract was recently awarded to J. D. Paxson of Salem. The first course of slag has been spread over the entire distance on this road.

Good progress is beig made by Lewis & Copeland, of Lima, on the grading project on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road from Middleton northward to tap the Cox highway in Fairfield township. It has been indicated by the county commissioners that should the grading on this section be finished at an early date, there is a possibility that the surfacing contract will be awarded so that this part of the road may also be finished before cold weather sets in.

Excavation for culverts on the East Liverpool-East Palestine road has begun under the supervision of Contractor Herman C. Armstrong of Lisbon. The contract for grading this road was awarded a fortnight ago by the county commissioners to the Allison-Harris company of East Liverpool. Actual grading on this project will begin as soon as a steam shovel can be taken to the road, and later a second shovel is to be employed.

Armstrong has also completed the pouring of the concrete bridge at Cannons Mills, although the railing on this structure is to be poured. This section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road is now ready for surfacing, the contract having been awarded Lewis & Copeland of Lima some months ago.

Lewis & Copeland are also at work on an extension to a bridge at New Waterford, from which point the village of New Waterford proposes to complete top surfacing further into the corporate limits.

Of more than passing interest to motorists is the fact that the Carroll county commissioners propose to grade and drain all of the Carrollton Salineville road this year. The proposition, however, has been held back by the legislature. It is the intention of the Carroll county commissioners to award this contract in two sections, one that will have to do with the grading and drainage work from Carrollton to Mechanicstown, and another contract on the section from Mechanicstown to Salineville.

The improvement of this road between Salineville and Carrollton will be the last lap to be surfaced on the recently designated East Liverpool-Columbus inter-county highway. All of this road from Carrollton westward to New Philadelphia, thence to Columbus is now surfaced.

There are several state road projects in this county that are to be considered by the county commissioners for current year attention, but on account of no definite information from the state highway department at Columbus, the commissioners are merely marking time, but are anxious to put the projects over. These projects have to do with the Rogers-Negley road and also the Lincoln highway west of Kensington. Included in this latter proposition is also several small sections of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road.

While these road projects have not been discussed by the commissioners and Surveyor Kirk with the state highway department, during a general conference, these county officials, however, feel certain that these road projects are taken out of the possibilities and placed among the probabilities by the legislature enacting the additional one-cent gasoline tax law.

Whitney Stables May Set New Record For Track Earnings

Whiskery's Victory In Derby Event Adds $51,025 To Winnings

Makes Substantial Addition to Roll Started Last Week by Bostonian, Who Turned in $53,400 in Preakness at Pimlico.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, May 16.—To him who hath, all things are given.

Harry Payne Whitney, son of rich but honest parents, today was on the verge of breaking all records, including that of Harry Sinclair, another notable victim of circumstances, for total winnings on the race track during one and the same season. Mr. Whitney was down to his last fifty million on Saturday but the situation fortunately improved very rapidly and by nightfall Harry's condition was not so desperate.

For between sunrise and sunset his horse, Whiskery, had won the Kentucky Derby as only a good horse can and the circumstance was worth precisely $51,025, which is rather critical money even to a man who doesn't get it. The sum, in fact, was important enough to keep a man like Harry in collar buttons for at least a week but, in case he starts to run short, he can draw on the $53,400 that he won last Monday. For Harry is the sort of fellow who has more than one horse and another of his string, Bostonian, happens to have been the winner of the Preakness.

To him who hath, all things are given, and it must be conceded that Harry Payne Whitney is receiving today. The horse owner doesn't live who wouldn't give his right nostril to win either of the big stake races at Pimlico and Churchill Downs. The man who wins both is just naturally a born beneficiary.

If all goes well, the Whitney stable's ernings should total around a halfmillion dollars at the end of the 1927 campaign. They are saying today that Whiskery mightn't have won the derby if Jock, the early trail blazer, had had a rider like Sande on his neck. Maybe they are right, for it isn't possible that men can be wrong all the time. However, the writer didn't see the race that way. He saw only that Whiskery had all the running of the field in the stretch, where running counts, and the colt looked the part of the fastest and best thoroughbred in the race.

In fact, no reasonable doubt existed in my mind about the honesty of Whiskery's victory and, while conceding that Sande gave Osmand a million dollar ride, it is obviously unfair both to Whiskery and the boy who rode Jock to draw comparisons that alike are odious and mean nothing. If ever a race was truly run, it was Kentucky's great derby on Saturday.

No horse was interfered with, no horse had the slightest excuse. And so the inference must be accepted that colts like Black Panther, Rolled Stocking and Rip Rap, which ran tenth, twelfth and thirteenth, respectively, were good horses when they had it, which probably was never.

Bostonian ran a typical race in closing ground in the stretch just as he did in winning the Preakness but his lack of early speed is fatal particularly in the big fields that inevitably go to the post on the stake races. He finished a good fifth behind Hydromel, which also did as well as might have been expected in view of the fact that he ran a fever early in the week. But when a horse like Buddy Bauer can beat off only a fair rally in the stretch to finish sixth there seems to be nothing for it but to believe that the others don't belong.

And that doesn't mean maybe 'n the case of Scapa Flow. The Man O'War colt was in a position to score in the Preakness and didn't. He was up with Jock's early pace on Saturday and again he muffed his chance when the pressure came. Scapa Flow just doesn't care for a distance of ground.

In brief, he may be the world to his father but he's only a plug to me.

CITY LOOP SCHEDULE IS CHANGED

Week's Contests Shifted About as Result of Rain.

Games this week in the City Industrial League will be pretty well shifted around as a result of weather conditions.

Manager Frank Riley, of the Chester Superior Cords, today announced that the game scheduled with Laughlin at Smith Field tonight has been postponed.

Manager John Fowler, of Turk Nash will send his club to Wellsville tomorrow night instead of playing the down river nine at Patterson Field. The K. T. K. game at Turk Nash on Thursday night will probably be changed to Columbian park as well as, possibly, the Turk Nash tilt with Wellsville again on Friday night.

The umpire assignments for the week as announced by President C. W. Davis, follow:

Tonight—American Billiards at K. T. K.—Hall; Laughlin at Chester (postponed) Duffy.

Tuesday—Wellsville at Turk Nash (at Wellsville) Berger; Chester at Laughlin, Kinsey.

Thursday—Chester at American Billiards—Shaw; K. T. K. at Turk Nash (probably Columbian park) Hall.

Friday—Tury Nash at Wellsville (probably Columbian park) Duffy.

Saturday afternoon—American Billiards at Wellsville (play-off of tie game) Berger.

HOPI WINS MARATHON

Indian Certain to be Member of Olympic Team.

NEW YORK, May 16.—That Quanowahu, Hopi Indian runner and snake dance priest from Oraibi, Ariz., will be a member of America's next Olympic team was considered a certainty today as a result of his brilliant performance in winning the marathon yesterday from this city to Long Beach, N. Y.

Competing against 135 crack distance runners, the Indian covered the 26 miles and 385 yards in the time of 2:47:43 1-5, bettering the American record of 2:48:23 3-5 held by Albert Michelsen of Stamford, Conn. Michelsen finished second yesterday, trailing the winner by 100 yards. He lost about 14 seconds when a train blocked him at a crosing near the finish.

It was estimated that 250,000 persons saw the race as the runners wound their way through heavy auto traffic. Quanawahu was always among the leaders. He is accustomed to an altitude of 7,000 feet but raced tirelessly despite the low Long Island altitude.

Four far western Indians started the race. Lino finished twenty-ninth but the other two dropped out, one being overcome by gasoline fumes from the long line of automobiles and one suffering blistered feet.

LATZO TO START TRAINING TODAY

Conquers Bad Breadth and is Popular Again

"The day I started taking Carter's Little Liver Pills," says Mr. John A. Perry of New York City, "my habitual bad breath and bad stomach stopped. I strongly recommend them to all those afflicted with these nasty troubles I assure you that my own case was a bad one, causing me untold embarrassment, and Carter's helped me right from the start."

Bad breath comes from sour stomach and can usually be relieved quickly by Carter's Little Liver Pills.

They are wonderful for constipation, sick-headache and indigestion and they physic the system in a mild and gentle manner, no bad after effects.

BUCS DOWN ROBINS AND OUST CARDS

Move Into Second Place While Red Birds are Idle.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The Pittsburgh Pirates today have displaced the St. Louis Cardinals as runners-up to the Giants in the National league race. The Pirates defeated Brooklyn yesterday, while the Cardinals were idle and advanced to second place, although they did not gain on the speeding Giants.

The Pittsburgh-Brooklyn game was a slam-bang affair, seven pitchers being used. Brooklyn tied it up after staking the Pirates to a six-run lead, but eventually lost, 9 to 6. Jay Partridge, Brooklyn second baseman, made an error after having accepted 9 chances.

The Cincinnati tradition that no Red pitcher ever finishes a game he starts, was maintained when the Rhineland outfit lost to the Giants again, 6 to 3. Hugh McQuillan was the winning pitcher and Eppa Jeptha Alpha Omega Rixey was the goat. Hornsby got three hits and tied Eddie Farrell for league batting honors.

Some powerful slugging featured the Browns' 8 to 6 victory over the Athletics. Schang and Bing Miller of the Browns and Lamar of the A's each had a perfect day at bat. Schang's homer with the bases full broke up the game, while Miller's four hits boosted his total to eight bingles in two days.

The White Sox got the hits but the Red Sox got the breaks and won, 2 to 1. The Back Bay boys got only four hits off Al Thomas, but bunched three of them with an error in the first inning. Tony Welzer was the winning twirler.

The other teams did not play. Snow in Detroit kept the Yankees and Tigers idle.

Glenna Out Of Big Event

Absence of Collett Leaves British Open Colorless.

BELFAST, Ireland, May 16. — The absence this year of Miss Glenna Collett, scintillating American star of goldom, from the British ladies' open golf championship being decided here today, tomorrow and Wednesday over the Newcastle course, leaves the affair rather colorless.

Had Miss Collett decided to compete it is very probable that either Miss Joyce Wethered or Miss Cecil Leitch would have turned up in the list of entrants.

In fact, no previous holder of the title has entered this year, with the exception of Mrs. Cuthell, who, as Miss Rhona Adair, won the title in 1900 and 1903.

The entrants number 91, five of these coming from the United States.

The American entrants are: Miss Virginia Watson of Ontwentsia, who gets a bye into the second round; Miss Jane Brooks of Englewood; Miss A. Lee Beadlestone, Rockaway Hunting; Mrs. M. L. R. Spaulding, Buffalo County, and Mrs. George Merriam Lewis, Los Angeles. Mrs. Lewis, getting a bye into the second round, will meet the chief British hope, Miss Molly Gourlay of the Camberley Heath club.

Mlle. Simone de la Chaume, the French champion, is favored to win the title.

Sports Done Brown

KNOWING Connie Mack as I do I feel that Ban B. Johnson's criticism of him in connection with the Cobb-Simmons-Ormsby case was entirely uncalled for.

It is another indication that Johnson is acting headstrongly, with an abandon that will keep baseball in a ferment as long as he carries on the duties of his office.

This is said in full realization of the debt baseball in general and the American League in particular may owe ht mfor past services.

Connie Mack is the most mild mannered, gentlemanly person in baseball. Everyone who knows him laughs at the idea of Connie even countenancing rowdyism, let alone suggesting it or approving it.

The only criticism toward Connie as a baseball manager has been his lack of aggressiveness in any way. Connie plays baseball and wants his men to play it with sportsmanship the outstanding feature. Being a thorough gentleman himself he expects others to be his kind.

How Johnson expected Connie, from his place on the bench, to prevent the action on the field which led to the suspension of Cobb and Simmons is a mystery.

Sad Sam Jones, who appeared about done with the New York Yankees last year, seems to have found the elixir of life in St. Louis. Won a total of nine games with the pennant winning hard hitting Yanks behind him last season. Has won half that number so far this year.

MALONEY IS FAVORITE

Made 7 to 5 Bet to Lick Jack Sharkey Thursday.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Jim Maloney was a 7 to 5 favorite today to defeat Jack Sharkey in their fifteen-round bout at the Yankee Stadium here Thursday night for the championship of Boston and a crack at the heavyweight title.

The odds shifted to Maloney because of a slight injury suffered by Sharkey while training at a local gymnasium. A cut was opened over his left eye when he was butted by his sparring partner, Fred Mays.

As a result of the injury Sharkey will do no more boxing until the fight. Maloney will box a dozen rounds or so today at his camp in Long Branch, N. J. Maloney is now down to 204 pounds, while Sharkey weighs 193.

SOFT BALL FOES CLASH

Three Games Tonight if Weatherman Permits.

Recreation League rivals will resume warfare tonight with games scheduled on three district diamonds.

Newell Laughlin, hitherto undefeated, will take on the Review-Tribune aggregation on the Newell lot. The Laughlins have copped two games in their first two starts and will be out to keep their perfect record intact.

The National Furnitures and the Roselawns, both in the .500 class as a result of one victory and one defeat apiece, will tangle at Klondyke and the clash should be an even battle all the way.

The Ohio Power and Johannes Drugs nines will mix on the Northside diamond in the third tilt on tonight's bill, all three games, of course, depending on the weatherman.

The Heimies, another of the loop's undefeated starters, will tackle the Ohio Powers, at Upper Columbian park Tuesday night, the Smith News and National Furnitures will play at Northside and the Johannes Drugs and Y. M. C. A. at Klondyke.

Tonight.

National Furnitures at Roselawns; Klondyke; umpire, Waters.

Review-Tribune at Laughlin, N.; umpire, Lorah.

Ohio Power at Johannes Drugs; Northside; umpire, Davies.

Tuesday.

Heimies at Ohio Power; upper Columbian park; umpire, Waters.

Johannes Drugs at Y. M. C. A.; Klondyke; umpire, Davies.

TEX TO REFEREE AMATEUR BOUT

NEW YORK, May 16. — Promoter Tex Rickard will act as a referee tonight for the first time since he officiated at the Jeffries-Johnson battle 17 years ago. He will referee an amateur bout which is to be part of the entertainment at a dinner given in his honor by the Madison Square Garden club.

Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, numerous celebrities and 142 sports writers of the east and middle west will be present.

Postpone Contests As Result of Poor Condition of Track

Wind-up Events, Originally Setback to Tuesday, Postponed Again as Result of Continuous Rainfall; May Decide Date Today.

Approximately 2,500 cinder path fans from various points of the county were disappointed Saturday as rain forced the postponement of the 24th annual Columbiana county interscholastic track and field meet to either Wednesday or Thursday afternoon, after officials had attempted to run off one event, the 220-yard hurdles.

It was decided Saturday afternoon to run off the finals tomorrow but almost continuous rains since then has made another postpouement necessary.

Preliminaries in eight events were successfully negotiated in the morning, despite light showers. The rain became heavier toward noon and at 1 o'clock when the rival schools were scheduled to go to the barrier in the finals, the track was covered with a slippery coating of mud that made running almost impossible.

Following a let-up in the downpour meet officials decided to attempt the first event, the hurdles. Three runners slipped and toppled over in the mud as Gregg, of Salem, went on to win despite the treacherous footing.

Realizing that the condition of the track invited falls and possibly serious injury to any of the runners in the various events, the meet officials conferred again and decided to postpone the affair.

East Liverpool qualified in six of the eight preliminary events, including: Ward in the 220-yard hurdles; English and McConville in the 100-yard dash; Larkins in the javelin throw; Larkins in the shot put; English in the 220-yard dash, and Kirkham in the discus throw.

East Palestine showed its hand in the shot put when two members of the Brown and White broke the county record set by Hum, of Lisbon, back in 1912. Cook tossed the 12-pound ball a distance of 44 feet, 5½ inches and Collela 44 feet, 4¾ inches.

According to officials of the association, the new record set by Cook will stand unless the mark is bettered in the finals.

AT NOGALES, SONORA, Mexico—Bert Colima, Whittier, Cal., Mexican middleweight, knocked out Mickey Wallace of San Francisco, in the third round Sunday.

GRID CZAR TO SELECT OFFICIALS

Ten Eastern Colleges Sponsor Naming of Arbiter.

NEW YORK, May 16.—A football arbiter has been chosen by representatives of ten leading eastern college to select the officials of all games between them next fall. Subject to ratification by athletic boards in some cases, the institutions which adopted the new plan at a meeting here are the Army, the Navy, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell, Brown, Dartmouth, Yale, Harvard and Princeton.

Tad Jones, the Yale head coach, who sponsored the idea, said that the name of the new official would be made public within a day or two. He said that about fifty other colleges would be asked to join in the move.

"It was unanimously agreed that some method of appointment which would free officials from any feeling of obligation or responsibility to either contending team would be desirable," Jones explained.

He said that in the case of intersectional games with western conference teams, the official would cooperate with Major John L. Griffith, the conference's commissioner of athletics.

Australia's 44-hour week has been approved by the courts.

Mr. Whitney was down to his last fifty million on Saturday but the situation fortunately improved very rapidly and by nightfall Harry's condition was not so desperate.

For between sunrise and sunset his horse, Whiskery, had won the Kentucky Derby as only a good horse can and the circumstance was worth precisely $51,025, which is rather critical money even to a man who doesn't get it. The sum, in fact, was important enough to keep a man like Harry in collar buttons for at least a week but, in case he starts to run short, he can draw on the $53,400 that he won last Monday. For Harry is the sort of fellow who has more than one horse and another of his string, Bostonian, happens to have been the winner of the Preakness.

To him who hath, all things are given, and it must be conceded that Harry Payne Whitney is receiving today. The horse owner doesn't live who wouldn't give his right nostril to win either of the big stake races at Pimlico and Churchill Downs. The man who wins both is just naturally a born beneficiary.

If all goes well, the Whitney stable's ernings should total around a halfmillion dollars at the end of the 1927 campaign. They are saying today that Whiskery mightn't have won the derby if Jock, the early trail blazer, had had a rider like Sande on his neck. Maybe they are right, for it isn't possible that men can be wrong all the time. However, the writer didn't see the race that way. He saw only that Whiskery had all the running of the field in the stretch, where running counts, and the colt looked the part of the fastest and best thoroughbred in the race.

In fact, no reasonable doubt existed in my mind about the honesty of Whiskery's victory and, while conceding that Sande gave Osmand a million dollar ride, it is obviously unfair both to Whiskery and the boy who rode Jock to draw comparisons that alike are odious and mean nothing. If ever a race was truly run, it was Kentucky's great derby on Saturday.

No horse was interfered with, no horse had the slightest excuse. And so the inference must be accepted that colts like Black Panther, Rolled Stocking and Rip Rap, which ran tenth, twelfth and thirteenth, respectively, were good horses when they had it, which probably was never.

Bostonian ran a typical race in closing ground in the stretch just as he did in winning the Preakness but his lack of early speed is fatal particularly in the big fields that inevitably go to the post on the stake races. He finished a good fifth behind Hydromel, which also did as well as might have been expected in view of the fact that he ran a fever early in the week. But when a horse like Buddy Bauer can beat off only a fair rally in the stretch to finish sixth there seems to be nothing for it but to believe that the others don't belong.

And that doesn't mean maybe in the case of Scapa Flow. The Man O'War colt was in a position to score in the Preakness and didn't. He was up with Jock's early pace on Saturday and again he muffed his chance when the pressure came. Scapa Flow just doesn't care for a distance of ground.

In brief, he may be the world to his father but he's only a plug to me.

CITY LOOP SCHEDULE IS CHANGED

Week's Contests Shifted About as Result of Rain.

Games this week in the City Industrial League will be pretty well shifted around as a result of weather conditions.

Manager Frank Riley, of the Chester Superior Cords, today announced that the game scheduled with Laughlin at Smith Field tonight has been postponed.

Manager John Fowler, of Turk Nash will send his club to Wellsville tomorrow night instead of playing the down river nine at Patterson Field. The K. T. K. game at Turk Nash on Thursday night will probably be changed to Columbian park as well as, possibly, the Turk Nash tilt with Wellsville again on Friday night.

The umpire assignments for the week as announced by President C. W. Davis, follow:

Tonight—American Billiards at K. T. K.—Hall; Laughlin at Chester (postponed) Duffy.

Tuesday—Wellsville at Turk Nash (at Wellsville) Berger; Chester at Laughlin, Kinsey.

Friday—Tury Nash at Wellsville (probably Columbian park) Duffy.

Saturday afternoon—American Billiards at Wellsville (play-off of tie game) Berger.

Indian Certain to be Member of Olympic Team.

NEW YORK, May 16.—That Quanowahu, Hopi Indian runner and snake dance priest from Oraibi, Ariz., will be a member of America's next Olympic team was considered a certainty today as a result of his brilliant performance in winning the marathon yesterday from this city to Long Beach, N. Y.

Competing against 135 crack distance runners, the Indian covered the 26 miles and 385 yards in the time of 2:47:43 1-5, bettering the American record of 2:48:23 3-5 held by Albert Michelsen of Stamford, Conn. Michelsen finished second yesterday, trailing the winner by 100 yards. He lost about 14 seconds when a train blocked him at a crosing near the finish.

It was estimated that 250,000 persons saw the race as the runners wound their way through heavy auto traffic. Quanawahu was always among the leaders. He is accustomed to an altitude of 7,000 feet but raced tirelessly despite the low Long Island altitude.

Four far western Indians started the race. Lino finished twenty-ninth but the other two dropped out, one being overcome by gasoline fumes from the long line of automobiles and one suffering blistered feet.

LATZO TO START TRAINING TODAY

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., May 16.—Pete Latzo, welterweight champion, is scheduled to start training here today for his bout with Joe Dundee of Baltimore in New York on June 3. Dundee is in training at Baltimore.

Conquers Bad Breadth and is Popular Again

"The day I started taking Carter's Little Liver Pills," says Mr. John A. Perry of New York City, "my habitual bad breath and bad stomach stopped. I strongly recommend them to all those afflicted with these nasty troubles I assure you that my own case was a bad one, causing me untold embarrassment, and Carter's helped me right from the start."

Bad breath comes from sour stomach and can usually be relieved quickly by Carter's Little Liver Pills.

They are wonderful for constipation, sick-headache and indigestion and they physic the system in a mild and gentle manner, no bad after effects.

Recommended and for sale by all drug stores.

Move Into Second Place While Red Birds are Idle.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The Pittsburgh Pirates today have displaced the St. Louis Cardinals as runners-up to the Giants in the National league race. The Pirates defeated Brooklyn yesterday, while the Cardinals were idle and advanced to second place, although they did not gain on the speeding Giants.

The Pittsburgh-Brooklyn game was a slam-bang affair, seven pitchers being used. Brooklyn tied it up after staking the Pirates to a six-run lead, but eventually lost, 9 to 6. Jay Partridge, Brooklyn second baseman, made an error after having accepted 92 chances.

The Cincinnati tradition that no Red pitcher ever finishes a game he starts, was maintained when the Rhineland outfit lost to the Giants again, 6 to 3. Hugh McQuillan was the winning pitcher and Eppa Jeptha Alpha Omega Rixey was the goat. Hornsby got three hits and tied Eddie Farrell for league batting honors.

Some powerful slugging featured the Browns' 8 to 6 victory over the Athletics. Schang and Bing Miller of the Browns and Lamar of the A's each had a perfect day at bat. Schang's homer with the bases full broke up the game, while Miller's four hits boosted his total to eight bingles in two days.

The White Sox got the hits but the Red Sox got the breaks and won, 2 to 1. The Back Bay boys got only four hits off Al Thomas, but bunched three of them with an error in the first inning. Tony Welzer was the winning twirler.

The other teams did not play. Snow in Detroit kept the Yankees and Tigers idle.

Glenna Out Of Big Event

Absence of Collett Leaves British Open Colorless.

BELFAST, Ireland, May 16. — The absence this year of Miss Glenna Collett, scintillating American star of golfdom, from the British ladies' open golf championship being decided here today, tomorrow and Wednesday over the Newcastle course, leaves the affair rather colorless.

Had Miss Collett decided to compete it is very probable that either Miss Joyce Wethered or Miss Cecil Leitch would have turned up in the list of entrants.

In fact, no previous holder of the title has entered this year, with the exception of Mrs. Cuthell, who, as Miss Rhona Adair, won the title in 1900 and 1903.

The entrants number 91, five of these coming from the United States.

The American entrants are: Miss Virginia Watson of Ontwentsia, who gets a bye into the second round; Miss Jane Brooks of Englewood; Miss A. Lee Beadlestone, Rockaway Hunting; Mrs. M. L. R. Spaulding, Buffalo County, and Mrs. George Merriam Lewis, Los Angeles. Mrs. Lewis, getting a bye into the second round, will meet the chief British hope, Miss Molly Gourlay of the Camberley Heath club.

Mlle. Simone de la Chaume, the French champion, is favored to win the title.

Sports Done Brown

KNOWING Connie Mack as I do I feel that Ban B. Johnson's criticism of him in connection with the Cobb-Simmons-Ormsby case was entirely uncalled for.

It is another indication that Johnson is acting headstrongly, with an abandon that will keep baseball in a ferment as long as he carries on the duties of his office.

This is said in full realization of the debt baseball in general and the American League in particular may owe hi mfor past services.

Connie Mack is the most mild mannered, gentlemanly person in baseball. Everyone who knows him laughs at the idea of Connie even countenancing rowdyism, let alone suggesting it or approving it.

The only criticism toward Connie as a baseball manager has been his lack of aggressiveness in any way. Connie plays baseball and wants his men to play it with sportsmanship the outstanding feature. Being a thorough gentleman himself he expects others to be his kind.

How Johnson expected Connie, from his place on the bench, to prevent the action on the field which led to the suspension of Cobb and Simmons is a mystery.

Sad Sam Jones, who appeared about done with the New York Yankees last year, seems to have found the elixir of life in St. Louis. Won a total of nine games with the pennant winning hard hitting Yanks behind him last season. Has won half that number so far this year.

MALONEY IS FAVORITE

Made 7 to 5 Bet to Lick Jack Sharkey Thursday.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Jim Maloney was a 7 to 5 favorite today to defeat Jack Sharkey in their fifteen-round bout at the Yankee Stadium here Thursday night for the championship of Boston and a crack at the heavyweight title.

The odds shifted to Maloney because of a slight injury suffered by Sharkey while training at a local gymnasium. A cut was opened over his left eye when he was butted by his sparring partner, Fred Mays.

As a result of the injury Sharkey will do no more boxing until the fight. Maloney will box a dozen rounds or so today at his camp in Long Branch, N. J. Maloney is now down to 204 pounds, while Sharkey weighs 193.

SOFT BALL FOES CLASH

Three Games Tonight if Weatherman Permits.

Recreation League rivals will resume warfare tonight with games scheduled on three district diamonds.

Newell Laughlin, hitherto undefeated, will take on the Review-Tribune aggregation on the Newell lot. The Laughlins have copped two games in their first two starts and will be out to keep their perfect record intact.

The National Furnitures and the Roselawns, both in the .500 class as a result of one victory and one defeat apiece, will tangle at Klondyke and the clash should be an even battle all the way.

The Ohio Power and Johannes Drugs nines will mix on the Northside diamond in the third tilt on tonight's bill, all three games, of course, depending on the weatherman.

The Heimies, another of the loop's undefeated starters, will tackle the Ohio Powers, at Upper Columbian park Tuesday night, the Smith News and National Furnitures will play at Northside and the Johannes Drugs and Y. M. C. A. at Klondyke.

Tonight.

National Furnitures at Roselawns; Klondyke; umpire, Waters.

Review-Tribune at Laughlin, N.; umpire, Lorah.

Ohio Power at Johannes Drugs; Northside; umpire, Davies.

Tuesday.

Heimies at Ohio Power; upper Columbian park; umpire, Waters.

TEX TO REFEREE AMATEUR BOUT

NEW YORK, May 16. — Promoter Tex Rickard will act as a referee tonight for the first time since he officiated at the Jeffries-Johnson battle 17 years ago. He will referee an amateur bout which is to be part of the entertainment at a dinner given in his honor by the Madison Square Garden club.

Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, numerous celebrities and 142 sports writers of the east and middle west will be present.

Wind-up Events, Originally Setback to Tuesday, Postponed Again as Result of Continuous Rainfall; May Decide Date Today.

Approximately 2,500 cinder path fans from various points of the county were disappointed Saturday as rain forced the postponement of the 24th annual Columbiana county interscholastic track and field meet to either Wednesday or Thursday afternoon, after officials had attempted to run off one event, the 220-yard hurdles.

It was decided Saturday afternoon to run off the finals tomorrow but almost continuous rains since then has made another postpouement necessary.

Preliminaries in eight events were successfully negotiated in the morning, despite light showers. The rain became heavier toward noon and at 1 o'clock when the rival schools were scheduled to go to the barrier in the finals, the track was covered with a slippery coating of mud that made running almost impossible.

Following a let-up in the downpour meet officials decided to attempt the first event, the hurdles. Three runners slipped and toppled over in the mud as Gregg, of Salem, went on to win despite the treacherous footing.

Realizing that the condition of the track invited falls and possibly serious injury to any of the runners in the various events, the meet officials conferred again and decided to postpone the affair.

East Liverpool qualified in six of the eight preliminary events, including: Ward in the 220-yard hurdles; English and McConville in the 100-yard dash; Larkins in the javelin throw; Larkins in the shot put; English in the 220-yard dash, and Kirkham in the discus throw.

East Palestine showed its hand in the shot put when two members of the Brown and White broke the county record set by Hum, of Lisbon, back in 1912. Cook tossed the 12-pound ball a distance of 44 feet, 5½ inches and Collela 44 feet, 4¾ inches.

According to officials of the association, the new record set by Cook will stand unless the mark is bettered in the finals.

GRID CZAR TO SELECT OFFICIALS

Ten Eastern Colleges Sponsor Naming of Arbiter.

NEW YORK, May 16.—A football arbiter has been chosen by representatives of ten leading eastern college to select the officials of all games between them next fall. Subject to ratification by athletic boards in some cases, the institutions which adopted the new plan at a meeting here are the Army, the Navy, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell, Brown, Dartmouth, Yale, Harvard and Princeton.

Tad Jones, the Yale head coach, who sponsored the idea, said that the name of the new official would be made public within a day or two. He said that about fifty other colleges would be asked to join in the move.

"It was unanimously agreed that some method of appointment which would free officials from any feeling of obligation or responsibility to either contending team would be desirable," Jones explained.

He said that in the case of intersectional games with western conference teams, the official would cooperate with Major John L. Griffith, the conference's commissioner of athletics.

Australia's 44-hour week has been approved by the courts.

The Grab Bag

May 16, 1927.

This photo of A. J. Cook was snapped during the British strike of 1926. What position did Cook hold during the strike?

A. J. COOKE

Today marks the anniversary of Lincoln's nomination for the residency in 1860. Who was his chief opponent in the election of that year?

Name a word meaning to strike or to inflict a heavy blow.

Part of the boundary line between the United States and Mexico follows the course of a river that empties into the Gulf of Mexico. Can you name the river?

A great round-bound fortress, owned by the British, commands the western entrance to the Mediterranean sea. Can you name it?

Today's Horoscope.

Persons born on this date should not allow themselves to become angry over trifles. They are temperamentally disposed to make mountains out of mole-hills.

Snappy Saying.

Prince of Wales shocks Spain by wearing flannels at official function. Would that keep him out of the Spanish royal family if he wanted to marry into it?

Answers to Foregoing Questions.

1. Mine Federation leader.
2. Douglas.
3. To smite.
4. Rio Grande.
5. Gibraltar.
6. Romans XII, 16.

DINNER STORIES.

A Professional Attitude.

He came home late for supper. He was a professor of chemistry and she was a wife who tried to have a good supper for him every night. When he'd be late her good cooking would be spoiled and then he'd start to find fault. He was late again tonight. The supper was cold. The argument was on. The wife finally broke down crying. But he was a professor of chemistry.

"Stop crying! Your tears have no effect upon me. What are they? A shall percentage of phosphorous salts, a little sodium chloride. All the rest—water. Bah!"

By Request.

"Son, what are you doing home from school?"

"We had a big fire down at school."

"You did!"

"Yes, me and two other fellows were fired out."

Unable To Do My Delivering

in a drug store window, bought a box; two hours after taking two capsules all distress left. Was able to continue my work, eating one of the best suppers I ate in a long time, and will continue until I am healed.

Signed,
HAROLD C. MAXWELL.

RICHARD DIX SCORES AGAIN

"Knockout Reilly," at Ceramic, is Screen Hit.

The ever pleasing Richard Dix, whose athletic ability has become a byword in cinema circles, is again displaying his own particular brand of physical prowess for four days this week at the Ceramic theatre, where "Knockout Reilly," his latest Paramount starring offering is playing.

Cast in a different role from anything he has hitherto portrayed, Dix plays the young wage earner who climbs to fame as an exponent of the "squared circle." As Dundee Reilly chief puddler in a steel mill, he finds little time for recreation, except of a Saturday night when it is his habit to repair with his friends to a cabaret where Mary Malone, is an entertainer. Reilly suddenly discovers that he is the possessor of a wicked punch when he knocks out Killer Agerra (Jack Renault) champion fighter, for making advances to Mary. Mary's brother Pat, former champion who has fallen before Agerra in a fight that he learned afterward was framed, upon hearing of Reilly's escapade, offers to train him for the ring. But Reilly prefers the industrial life to the packed arena. He changes his mind when he is beaten to a pulp by the vengeful Agerra at the latter's gymnasium.

From this time on, life for Reilly is a series of successful fights. Under Malone's tutelage, he rises rapidly until he is matched to met Agerra for the championship. Agerra on hearing of Reilly's remarkable condition trembles for his laurels. But before the fight comes off, Reilly finds his career as a boxer suddenly cut off. A lumberjack is shot in a fight at a village store near Reilly's training camp and Reilly is convicted on circumstantial evidence of the crime. Life behind the prison bars does not prove a physical softener for Dix. Under Mary's urging he applies to be sent to the rock pile where for two years, he keeps up his training. On his release a clever ruse wins for him his long sought chance at Agerra still the champion.

How he manages to take the place of a fighter matched to meet Agerra makes a deliciously humorous incident. The Reilly comeback is a spectacular one full of thrils and gasps. How with the help of the faithful Malones he succeeds in proving his innocence of the crime for which he was convicted, gives rise to a series of dramatic scenes that had last night's audience sitting on the edge of their sets.

Mary Brian, who sprang into screen prominence at Wendy in Paramount's version of Sir James Barrie's "Peter Pan," and who subsequently was much in evidence in "Behind the Front," the Beery-Hatton comedy classic, plays Dix, sweetheart and gives further proof that she is another Paramount screen find.

Malcolm St. Clair always to be depended upon for the subtly humorous touch, directed.

Silver Foxes Subject To Personal Property Tax Turner Rules

COLUMBUS, O., May 16.—Silver foxes are subject to a personal property tax, according to a ruling here of attorney general E. C. Turner. Turner ruled that silver foxes, reared, maintained and confined are personal property of their owner and as such are subject to taxation, and should be so listed. The ruling was asked by Ross county authorities, where many large silver fox farms are located.

American capital has been heavily invested in Cuba and has proved one of the potent factors in the island's rapid development, for a large share of the American dollars are backed by American business methods and efficiency. All told, our stake in the "Pearl of the Antilles" amounts to a billion and a quarter. Of this amount, $750,000,000 are invested in sugar properties, $110,000,000 in railroads, and $100,000,000 in public utilities, telephones, and telegraph companies. Other investments include: Hotels and office buildings, $80,000,000; miscellaneous manufacturing, $40,000,000; tobacco and cigars, $50,000,000; agricultural lands other than sugar and tobacco, $35,000,000; merchandising, $30,000,000; docks, warehouses and terminal facilities, $10,000,000, and banking $20,000,000.

With an area of slightly over 44,000 square miles—almost equal to that of the state of Pennsylvania—Cuba has a population, as of the last census, of 3,413,216. Of these 2,315,928 were whites, 829,201 colored, and 268,087 immigrants unclassified. Havana, the capital, has 432,000 inhabitants, and there are ten other cities with populations ranging from 40,000 to 100,000, while the Isle of Pines has a population of 4,817.

Cuba struggled for independence from Spain for almost three quarters of a century with an almost unbroken succession of revolts, conspiracies, insurrections, and filibustering expeditions from the United States, all provoked by Spanish oppression and cruelty. A decree in 1825 placed the lives and fortunes of all Cubans at the mercy of the Spanish captains-general. At one time more than 3,000 Cubans were tortured, imprisoned, banished, or executed for real or alleged complicity in plots against the government, and during the Ten Years' War, 1868-78, Captain-General Valamaseda declared that the aim of the Spaniards was to convert the island into a desert.

During that war Spain sent 257,000 men against the insurgents and lost 208,000 of them, according to official reports. The cost of the war was $300,000,000, exclusive of the property destroyed. Again, from 1895 to 1898, the whole island was laid waste once more and "Butcher" Weyler earned a bloody infamy that will never be forgotten.

In the circumstances it is not surprising that the Cubans celebrate the birthday of their republic with patriotic fervor, mingled with which is a deep feeling of gratitude to this country for keeping faith with them.

The Grab Bag

May 16, 1927.

This photo of A. J. Cook was snapped during the British strike of 1926. What position did Cook hold during the strike?

A. J. COOKE

Today marks the anniversary of Lincoln's nomination for the residency in 1860. Who was his chief opponent in the election of that year?

Name a word meaning to strike or to inflict a heavy blow.

Part of the boundary line between the United States and Mexico follows the course of a river that empties into the Gulf of Mexico. Can you name the river?

A great round-bound fortress, owned by the British, commands the western entrance to the Mediterranean sea. Can you name it?

Today's Horoscope.

Persons born on this date should not allow themselves to become angry over trifles. They are temperamentally disposed to make mountains out of mole-hills.

Snappy Saying.

Prince of Wales shocks Spain by wearing flannels at official function. Would that keep him out of the Spanish royal family if he wanted to marry into it?

DINNER STORIES.

A Professional Attitude.

He came home late for supper. He was a professor of chemistry and she was a wife who tried to have a good supper for him every night. When he'd be late her good cooking would be spoiled and then he'd start to find fault. He was late again tonight. The supper was cold. The argument was on. The wife finally broke down crying. But he was a professor of chemistry.

"Stop crying! Your tears have no effect upon me. What are they? A shall percentage of phosphorous salts, a little sodium chloride. All the rest—water. Bah!"

By Request.

"Son, what are you doing home from school?"

"We had a big fire down at school."

"You did!"

"Yes, me and two other fellows were fired out."

Unable To Do My Delivering

RICHARD DIX SCORES AGAIN

"Knockout Reilly," at Ceramic, is Screen Hit.

The ever pleasing Richard Dix, whose athletic ability has become a byword in cinema circles, is again displaying his own particular brand of physical prowess for four days this week at the Ceramic theatre, where "Knockout Reilly," his latest Paramount starring offering is playing.

Cast in a different role from anything he has hitherto portrayed, Dix plays the young wage earner who climbs to fame as an exponent of the "squared circle." As Dundee Reilly chief puddler in a steel mill, he finds little time for recreation, except of a Saturday night when it is his habit to repair with his friends to a cabaret where Mary Malone, is an entertainer. Reilly suddenly discovers that he is the possessor of a wicked punch when he knocks out Killer Agerra (Jack Renault) champion fighter, for making advances to Mary. Mary's brother Pat, former champion who has fallen before Agerra in a fight that he learned afterward was framed, upon hearing of Reilly's escapade, offers to train him for the ring. But Reilly prefers the industrial life to the packed arena. He changes his mind when he is beaten to a pulp by the vengeful Agerra at the latter's gymnasium.

From this time on, life for Reilly is a series of successful fights. Under Malone's tutelage, he rises rapidly until he is matched to met Agerra for the championship. Agerra on hearing of Reilly's remarkable condition trembles for his laurels. But before the fight comes off, Reilly finds his career as a boxer suddenly cut off. A lumberjack is shot in a fight at a village store near Reilly's training camp and Reilly is convicted on circumstantial evidence of the crime. Life behind the prison bars does not prove a physical softener for Dix. Under Mary's urging he applies to be sent to the rock pile where for two years, he keeps up his training. On his release a clever ruse wins for him his long sought chance at Agerra still the champion.

How he manages to take the place of a fighter matched to meet Agerra makes a deliciously humorous incident. The Reilly comeback is a spectacular one full of thrils and gasps. How with the help of the faithful Malones he succeeds in proving his innocence of the crime for which he was convicted, gives rise to a series of dramatic scenes that had last night's audience sitting on the edge of their sets.

Mary Brian, who sprang into screen prominence at Wendy in Paramount's version of Sir James Barrie's "Peter Pan," and who subsequently was much in evidence in "Behind the Front," the Beery-Hatton comedy classic, plays Dix, sweetheart and gives further proof that she is another Paramount screen find.

Malcolm St. Clair always to be depended upon for the subtly humorous touch, directed.

Silver Foxes Subject To Personal Property Tax Turner Rules

COLUMBUS, O., May 16.—Silver foxes are subject to a personal property tax, according to a ruling here of attorney general E. C. Turner. Turner ruled that silver foxes, reared, maintained and confined are personal property of their owner and as such are subject to taxation, and should be so listed. The ruling was asked by Ross county authorities, where many large silver fox farms are located.

American capital has been heavily invested in Cuba and has proved one of the potent factors in the island's rapid development, for a large share of the American dollars are backed by American business methods and efficiency. All told, our stake in the "Pearl of the Antilles" amounts to a billion and a quarter. Of this amount, $750,000,000 are invested in sugar properties, $110,000,000 in railroads, and $100,000,000 in public utilities, telephones, and telegraph companies. Other investments include: Hotels and office buildings, $80,000,000; miscellaneous manufacturing, $40,000,000; tobacco and cigars, $50,000,000; agricultural lands other than sugar and tobacco, $35,000,000; merchandising, $20,000,000; docks, warehouses and terminal facilities, $10,000,000, and banking $20,000,000.

With an area of slightly over 44,000 square miles—almost equal to that of the state of Pennsylvania—Cuba has a population, as of the last census, of 3,413,216. Of these 2,315,928 were whites, 829,201 colored, and 268,087 immigrants unclassified. Havana, the capital, has 432,000 inhabitants, and there are ten other cities with populations ranging from 40,000 to 100,000, while the Isle of Pines has a population of 4,817.

Cuba struggled for independence from Spain for almost three quarters of a century with an almost unbroken succession of revolts, conspiracies, insurrections, and filibustering expeditions from the United States, all provoked by Spanish oppression and cruelty. A decree in 1825 placed the lives and fortunes of all Cubans at the mercy of the Spanish captains-general. At one time more than 3,000 Cubans were tortured, imprisoned, banished, or executed for real or alleged complicity in plots against the government, and during the Ten Years' War, 1868-78, Captain-General Valamaseda declared that the aim of the Spaniards was to convert the island into a desert.

During that war Spain sent 257,000 men against the insurgents and lost 208,000 of them, according to official reports. The cost of the war was $300,000,000, exclusive of the property destroyed. Again, from 1895 to 1898 the whole island was laid waste once more and "Butcher" Weyler earned a bloody infamy that will never be forgotten.

In the circumstances it is not surprising that the Cubans celebrate the birthday of their republic with patriotic fervor, mingled with which is a deep feeling of gratitude to this country for keeping faith with them.

South of the Atlas

BY MARSHALL P. HALL
AUTHOR OF "THE VALLEY OF STONE" and "RIDDLE OF HOCKEY CORNER"

SYNOPSIS.

LARRY GRENFALL, American traveler and student of Eastern magic, receives a telephone call from BEN MANSOUR, cosmopolite and old friend, saying he must see him at once.

GILES, Mansour's servant, drives Larry to his friend's house. While the two are talking a turbanned head appears at the window, Mansour opens it and a Moor steps in. He gives Mansour a ring as a token, set with a magnificent ruby. Mansour throws it on a table. Through the Moor it is revealed that Mansour is a Moor and ruler of his trible. For some reason he must die buf he insists that his son rule after him. Mansour says that he has taken poison and the Moor goes, tossing into the room a tiny ivory tiger—the Striped Death. Mansour asks Grenfall if he will go to Morocco, find the Temple, endure the Ordeal and crush the Group—all of which is Greek to Grenfall. He is to find a certain Omar ben Medjad. Then Mansour dies. Giles has instructions to open a certain trunk and take care of the letters he will find therein.

Giles and Grenfall open the trunk, finding Mansour's will and a letter to Grenfall asking him to carry out the instructions he gave him before he died. Grenfall takes the ruby ring and tells Giles he is going to Morocco.

Larry arrives in Morocco and is solicited for alms by a mendicant.

He shows the token—the ruby ring and the mendicant guides him to an alley where he changes his costume for that of the mendicant and he is pulled into a house by a Moor to whom he again shows his token.

CHAPTER SEVEN.

Larry followed the one-eyed man down another twisting passageway, then up a flight of stairs into a room that was barren of life or furnishings. Here, the other opened the door and the American felt the fetid breath of the African night fanning his cheeks. As from a distance he could hear the night life of the market.

His guide emerged into another of the apparently numberless alley ways and hurried swiftly off, Larry behind him. For ten minutes they proceeded thus, dodging and twisting a myriad of byways, until they paused before a low nondescript building which had no windows. The guide fumbled briefly, then the door opened and Larry was shoved inside. The door closed again and a light flared. Now Larry's guide greeted him cordially, speaking perfect English:

"Mr. Grenfall, welcome to the home of Omar ben Medjad. Permit me to extend my sincere apologies for the sorriness of the outside appearance, but I have reasons for it; also, permit me to say I am sorry I had to receive you as I did, but, my friend, it was necessary. I had intended that you come to the Shop of Hold, but times are perilous at the present and without my shop I would be useless in the work I am doing, hence at the last minute I had to change my plans and receive you otherwise. Now, we can talk, but let it be in English, please. I fear no prying eyes here, and no distended ears; still it is ever the part of wisdom to play safe."

The man now removed the patch from his eye and stood revealed with perfect sight. The patch had been, it was plain, a disguise. He bowed and turned from the room.

"Be seated, Mr. Grenfall, and be comfortable while I make coffee; also, I must cleanse myself of this disgusting filth. When the coffee is ready, I shall re-join you here. You will, I trust, help yourself to my cigarettes." He pushed forward a taboret with a jar of cigarettes sitting on it.

Larry lit one, then threw himself full length on a low divan, waiting. In a half hour Omar ben Medjad returned, bearing cofee, cups and a couscous. Larry was startled at the transformation in the man's appearance. His beard no longer was matted, but was combed to a neat point; his skin was several degrees lighter, thanks to having been cleansed of its dirt, and his clothes were those of a man of wealth and station. He sat the coffee on a taboret and proceeded to pour it. Then, as Larry sipped at the strong, aromatic decoction, he said:

"When you are quite finished with your coffee, let me have that bournouse and turban. Abdu will be here shortly and I shall return it to him."

"That miserable fool caused an uproar that—"

Omar laughed in his beard.

"It was but a ruse, Mr. Grenfall, I must confess that I was back of it all. You are to disappear this night, my friend, and Abdu and I could think of no better way to put you out of the road than to have you murdered. Therefore, consider yourself dead, this very minute, and your body thrown into the muddy waters of the town canal."

Larry rose, startled.

"What do you mean?" he snapped, and his hand hovered near the butt of his heavy automatic.

Again Omar laughed.

"Simply, my friend, that it is necessary for you to drop from sight without the knowledge of the commandant at the fort. You are here, seeking. Very well; but to seek, you must seek as one of us. To do this you must disappear as an American and never be heard from in Ab Dukkar again. How could you be made to disappear easier, pray tell, than by my little plan?"

"That plan is—?" Larry's voice still was a little thin.

"The plan is that Abdu, the Doukkala mendicant, raised a hue and cry that you had robbed him. A crowd of men were seen to pursue you down a dark alleyway. You were never seen again, but certain blood spots were left at intervals in the alley and the ground has the appearance of having been struggled over. The blood spots and the signs of the struggle will be found tomorrow. Likewise, some of your clothing which you will give me tonight, will be found near these blood spots in the dirt. The French commandant will write in his red book the details of another murder at unknown hands, adding that the whereabouts of the body also is unknown. Simple enough, is it not?"

"But, I do not understand, I'm afraid," Larry confessed.

"For one who has written of the intrigues of my country, you are woefully dense this night," Omar rejoiced. "I have merely staged a murder, Mr. Grenfall, to throw the military off the scent; also their Partisan soldier allies. It is necessary that tonight you become a Moor. Inasmuch as the commandant does not know you, did not even see you, he probably will think you were someone who amounted to little or nothing and after a cursory examination he will forget the incident. The mendicant started that row for that purpose. When you leave here this night, my friend, you will leave as Youssef el-Habassi, a powerful wizard. After that—Allah alone may say."

"It is a good thing I faked a passport so that when they hunt down my record they'll find it was only a sailor who had shore leave and deserted that was murdered." Larry chuckled, appreciating the situation. Then he added: "When I leave here, I leave to find a Temple and fetch to you—"

"A casket," Omar ben Medjad rejoined gravely, his eyes glittering. "Now, I see you have finished your coffee. To work please. Lay aside your clothing and don the apparel I have prepared," and he indicated a pile of Moorish clothing nearby.

Larry rose and emptied his pockets, laying twelve small cubes down with extreme caution. Then, removing his American-made apparel, he donned the garb of the Moor, the flowing brown burnouse covering him almost to his ankles. Deftly he wound his turban, so that anyone watching would never have known it was not experienced Berber or Algerian hands that performed the trick.

"Curse it, Omar; it is imperative that I have places to carry some of these things I've brought with me. Great guns, man, I couldn't wizard worth a cent if I lost my paraphernalia."

Omar laughed.

"Search about your new togs; pockets have been prepared especially. You see, I knew you would bring a magician's acouterments, for you were destined from the very start to play the role of a taleb, and I made ready for you."

Larry stared at the other in wonder.

"I must say that you are either an infernally good guesser or you have had what we Americans call inside information concerning me."

In a few minutes he had disposed of his things and when he had finished he turned to Omar and, speaking in guttural Chleuh, said:

"Father of jackals, what of my costume? Offspring of the hill wolves, will I pass muster?"

A grim smile crossed Omar's face.

"So much, so, moulay, that the Sultan himself would accept you as a true Believer. Al, Mr. Grenfall, you will do; now, from this moment you are Youssef el-Habbassi, wizard. You will find you are already known, for I have taken pains to have word of your coming spread in advance and your reputation has not suffered at my hands. But I hear Adbu knocking. Peace, till he enters."

Like a breath of the mysterious night without, the Doukkala mendicant slipped through the door, salaaming to Omar ben Medjad. He threw a curious glance toward Larry and raised his eyebrows questioningly, whereat Omar laughed in his beard.

"Ha, my friend; you could wish for no better recommendation for your disguise since Abdu, here, does not recognize you."

The mendicant, grasping the situation, salaamed in turn to Larry, muttering gruffly that Allah alone would have known the nasrani in his new attire.

"What success had you, Adbu?" Omar asked the mendicant, sipping avidly at the black coffee his host had placed for him, told them.

"At an intersection of alleys in the Ber Kedjiz we killed a goat, and made a goodly scatterment of blood about the place. When the Partisan police and soldiers arrived there was naught to be found save signs of a struggle and those bloody splotches. The commanding officer routed from their houses those who live in the neighborhood, among them being this humble follower of Allah. We did report sounds of a struggle in the night, of harsh voices and the frightened wailing of a nasrani; we also told of having heard blows struck, then a sound as though a body had been dragged hurriedly away. True enough we must have spoken, for the Partisan police found signs of the fighting, saw the blood and picked up a mark which seemed to indicate a heavy object had been dragged across the ground. These signs disappeared at the canal and the search ended there. The Partisans could not know that a weighted sack had made the marks, nor that the sack even now lies at the bottom of the muddy waters. Al, it will be an excellent report the commandant will be given on this," and the medicant chuckled grimly.

"You have done well, Abdu," said Omar, seeing the man had finished his coffee. "You may go."

Behind the Mask

LOOK into the faces you see about you—the faces of people both familiar and strange. Did it ever occur to you that behind those sparkling eyes and smiling lips there may lie secret turmoil—a seething drama of love, a story of passionate hate, an epic of self-sacrifice, a poem of sorrow and tears?

How little we know of the inner lives of those we see about us! How thrilling it would be if we could lift the mask of pretense and see what the curtain of each soul conceals!

Yet that is exactly what happens every month in True Story Magazine. In its pages, men and women who have lived, struggled, suffered and conquered or failed, frankly bare the secrets in their lives. There are 19 such startling features in the June issue of True Story. Your newsdealer has it. Get it today.

He shows the token—the ruby ring and the mendicant guides him to an alley where he changes his costume for that of the mendicant and he is pulled into a house by a Moor to whom he again shows his token.

CHAPTER SEVEN.

Larry followed the one-eyed man down another twisting passageway, then up a flight of stairs into a room that was barren of life or furnishings. Here, the other opened the door and the American felt the fetid breath of the African night fanning his cheeks. As from a distance he could hear the night life of the market.

His guide emerged into another of the apparently numberless alley ways and hurried swiftly off, Larry behind him. For ten minutes they proceeded thus, dodging and twisting a myriad of byways, until they paused before a low nondescript building which had no windows. The guide fumbled briefly, then the door opened and Larry was shoved inside. The door closed again and a light flared. Now Larry's guide greeted him cordially, speaking perfect English:

"Mr. Grenfall, welcome to the home of Omar ben Medjad. Permit me to extend my sincere apologies for the sorriness of the outside appearance, but I have reasons for it; also, permit me to say I am sorry I had to receive you as I did, but, my friend, it was necessary. I had intended that you come to the Shop of Hold, but times are perilous at the present and without my shop I would be useless in the work I am doing, hence at the last minute I had to change my plans and receive you otherwise. Now, we can talk, but let it be in English, please. I fear no prying eyes here, and no distended ears; still it is ever the part of wisdom to play safe."

The man now removed the patch from his eye and stood revealed with perfect sight. The patch had been, it was plain, a disguise. He bowed and turned from the room.

"Be seated, Mr. Grenfall, and be comfortable while I make coffee; also, I must cleanse myself of this disgusting filth. When the coffee is ready, I shall re-join you here. You will, I trust, help yourself to my cigarettes." He pushed forward a taboret with a jar of cigarettes sitting on it.

Larry lit one, then threw himself full length on a low divan, waiting. In a half hour Omar ben Medjad returned, bearing cofee, cups and a couscous. Larry was startled at the transformation in the man's appearance. His beard no longer was matted, but was combed to a neat point; his skin was several degrees lighter, thanks to having been cleansed of its dirt, and his clothes were those of a man of wealth and station. He sat the coffee on a taboret and proceeded to pour it. Then, as Larry sipped at the strong, aromatic decoction, he said:

"When you are quite finished with your coffee, let me have that bournouse and turban. Abdu will be here shortly and I shall return it to him."

"That miserable fool caused an uproar that—"

Omar laughed in his beard.

"It was but a ruse, Mr. Grenfall, I must confess that I was back of it all. You are to disappear this night, my friend, and Abdu and I could think of no better way to put you out of the road than to have you murdered. Therefore, consider yourself dead, this very minute, and your body thrown into the muddy waters of the town canal."

Larry rose, startled.

"What do you mean?" he snapped, and his hand hovered near the butt of his heavy automatic.

Again Omar laughed.

"Simply, my friend, that it is necessary for you to drop from sight without the knowledge of the commandant at the fort. You are here, seeking. Very well; but to seek, you must seek as one of us. To do this you must disappear as an American and never be heard from in Ab Dukkar again. How could you be made to disappear easier, pray tell, than by my little plan?"

"That plan is—?" Larry's voice still was a little thin.

"The plan is that Abdu, the Doukkala mendicant, raised a hue and cry that you had robbed him. A crowd of men were seen to pursue you down a dark alleyway. You were never seen again, but certain blood spots were left at intervals in the alley and the ground has the appearance of having been struggled over. The blood spots and the signs of the struggle will be found tomorrow. Likewise, some of your clothing which you will give me tonight, will be found near these blood spots in the dirt. The French commandant will write in his red book the details of another murder at unknown hands, adding that the whereabouts of the body also is unknown. Simple enough, is it not?"

"But, I do not understand, I'm afraid," Larry confessed.

"For one who has written of the intrigues of my country, you are woefully dense this night," Omar rejoined. "I have merely staged a murder, Mr. Grenfall, to throw the military off the scent; also their Partisan soldier allies. It is necessary that tonight you become a Moor. Inasmuch as the commandant does not know you, did not even see you, he probably will think you were someone who amounted to little or nothing and after a cursory examination he will forget the incident. The mendicant started that row for that purpose. When you leave here this night, my friend, you will leave as Youssef el-Habassi, a powerful wizard. After that—Allah alone may say."

"It is a good thing I faked a passport so that when they hunt down my record they'll find it was only a sailor who had shore leave and deserted that was murdered." Larry chuckled, appreciating the situation. Then he added: "When I leave here, I leave to find a Temple and fetch to you—"

"A casket," Omar ben Medjad rejoined gravely, his eyes glittering. "Now, I see you have finished your coffee. To work please. Lay aside your clothing and don the apparel I have prepared," and he indicated a pile of Moorish clothing nearby.

Larry rose and emptied his pockets, laying twelve small cubes down with extreme caution. Then, removing his American-made apparel, he donned the garb of the Moor, the flowing brown burnouse covering him almost to his ankles. Deftly he wound his turban, so that anyone watching would never have known it was not experienced Berber or Algerian hands that performed the trick.

"Curse it, Omar; it is imperative that I have places to carry some of these things I've brought with me. Great guns, man, I couldn't wizard worth a cent if I lost my paraphernalia."

Omar laughed.

"Search about your new togs; pockets have been prepared especially. You see, I knew you would bring a magician's acouterments, for you were destined from the very start to play the role of a taleb, and I made ready for you."

Larry stared at the other in wonder.

"I must say that you are either an infernally good guesser or you have had what we Americans call inside information concerning me."

In a few minutes he had disposed of his things and when he had finished he turned to Omar and, speaking in guttural Chleuh, said:

"Father of jackals, what of my costume? Offspring of the hill wolves, will I pass muster?"

A grim smile crossed Omar's face.

"So much, so, moulay, that the Sultan himself would accept you as a true Believer. Ai, Mr. Grenfall, you will do; now, from this moment you are Youssef el-Habbassi, wizard. You will find you are already known, for I have taken pains to have word of your coming spread in advance and your reputation has not suffered at my hands. But I hear Adbu knocking. Peace, till he enters."

Like a breath of the mysterious night without, the Doukkala mendicant slipped through the door, salaaming to Omar ben Medjad. He threw a curious glance toward Larry and raised his eyebrows questioningly, whereat Omar laughed in his beard.

"Ha, my friend; you could wish for no better recommendation for your disguise since Abdu, here, does not recognize you."

The mendicant, grasping the situation, salaamed in turn to Larry, muttering gruffly that Allah alone would have known the nasrani in his new attire.

"What success had you, Adbu?" Omar asked the mendicant, sipping avidly at the black coffee his host had placed for him, told them.

"At an intersection of alleys in the Ber Kedjiz we killed a goat, and made a goodly scatterment of blood about the place. When the Partisan police and soldiers arrived there was naught to be found save signs of a struggle and those bloody splotches. The commanding officer routed from their houses those who live in the neighborhood, among them being this humble follower of Allah. We did report sounds of a struggle in the night, of harsh voices and the frightened wailing of a nasrani; we also told of having heard blows struck, then a sound as though a body had been dragged hurriedly away. True enough we must have spoken, for the Partisan police found signs of the fighting, saw the blood and picked up a mark which seemed to indicate a heavy object had been dragged across the ground. These signs disappeared at the canal and the search ended there. The Partisans could not know that a weighted sack had made the marks, nor that the sack even now lies at the bottom of the muddy waters. Ai, it will be an excellent report the commandant will be given on this," and the medicant chuckled grimly.

"You have done well, Abdu," said Omar, seeing the man had finished his coffee. "You may go."

Behind the Mask

LOOK into the faces you see about you—the faces of people both familiar and strange. Did it ever occur to you that behind those sparkling eyes and smiling lips there may lie secret turmoil—a seething drama of love, a story of passionate hate, an epic of self-sacrifice, a poem of sorrow and tears?

How little we know of the inner lives of those we see about us! How thrilling it would be if we could lift the mask of pretense and see what the curtain of each soul conceals!

Yet that is exactly what happens every month in True Story Magazine. In its pages, men and women who have lived, struggled, suffered and conquered or failed, frankly bare the secrets in their lives. There are 19 such startling features in the June issue of True Story. Your newsdealer has it. Get it today.

RIVER FLOODS SUGAR LANDS

GRAY AND MRS. SNYDER ENTER PEN

Today

Ready to Fly.
An Optimist.
A Real Building.
Milking a Lioness.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

WEATHER CONDITIONS, fog, cold and head winds prevailing over a wide stretch of the Atlantic make transatlantic flight especially dangerous. But courage overlooks fog and wind, and it is likely that some one, or two or three determined American flyers may be on their way across the ocean within a day.

THE latest arrival on the Atlantic coast, Capt. Charles E. Lindbergh, young six-foot-tall air mail pilot from St. Louis, is a flyer for America to be proud of.

He broke two records coming from the Pacific coast to New York in two hops, making the trip in 21 hours, 20 minutes. He is the only man that ever flew that distance alone.

AND on the 3,600-mile non-stop flight across the ocean he will go alone in his slim gray monoplane, named "The Spirit of St. Louis." He sits in a tiny compartment, with wings and fuel tanks so arranged that it is impossible for him to look ahead. To see before him he must use a periscope, like the captain on a submarine. On either side little windows let him look down. He steers by compass.

THIS young American boy's plan to cross the ocean in a monoplane with only 43 feet wing spread, without a sextant, without any companion to allow him a few hours sleep or cheer him on the journey is something altogether extraordinary.

If this effort of extraordinary courage is successful, you may be sure that Lindbergh will be welcomed in France and wherever courage is understood.

MR. JUDD GRAY, who confesses that he helped Mrs. Snyder murder her husband, is an optimist. He says: "Mrs. Snyder got me into this jam, and I don't wayt ever to see her again, except in heaven."

CHISAGO invented the skyscraper, means to keep ahead, and now plans a fifty-million-dollar building. That would make the General Motors building, in Detroit, or the Equitable building, in New York, look small. Chicago's building will contain an auditorium, seating 75,000; a 4,300-room hotel, a convention hall with 300,000 square feet of space, garage room for 1,500 automobiles, an athletic field for pageants, etc., and a quarter-mile

5,000 Refugees are Received at Red Cross Camps.

NO LOSS OF LIFE

More Than 200 Miles of Louisiana Under Water.

By Lawrence Sullivan.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 16.—Blanketing new reaches of the world's most productive sugar country at the rate of almost 200 miles a day, the flood waters of the Mississippi are rolling southward today in the last hundred mile stretch separating them from the Gulf of Mexico.

Levee Disappearing.

Today the forty-mile stretch of levees from the Mississippi river westward to Cottonport is lost in the muddy, yellow sea which obliterates some 3,000 square miles of the heart of Louisiana. Here and there along the Bayou dikes a tiny streak of the old protecting wall is visible in the churning waters, but even these honeycombed islands disappear hourly.

River engineers already are basing their calculaions upon the premise that within 48 hours the entire levee will have been sunk without trace. One crevasse near the village of Tilden, is ten miles wide. Through this spillway, alone, a 20-foot wall of water rushes into the lowlands.

Three other openings in the dikes which held back the flood waters for a whole week are measured in thousands of yards. Ten others are hundreds of feet wide. At each opening the waters are eating away the ends of the soaked ridges, joining streams to make rivers and rivers to make a sea.

"There has never been anything in history to compare with the phenomena," said State Relief Director John M. Parker. Sufficient water has been diverted from the Mississippi and her overflow area to check the anticipated rise of six inches daily in the 200 miles stretch of the main channel between the mouth of the old river and the Poydras crevasse, twelve miles south of New Orleans.

The opening of the Bayou dikes has carried off so much water within the last 36 hours that the Mississippi gauge at Angola, La., directly opposite the mouth of the Old river, has been lowered four-tenths of a foot. As far south as Baton Rouge, fifty miles below Angola, the stage has fallen two tenths of a foot in 24 hours.

Refugees Rescued.

A few more than 5,000 refugees have been received in seven Red Cross and National Guard camps from the Bayou Des Glaises area since Saturday evening. Alexandria is prepared for 10,000 before the week is out. Marksville will have 3,000. Two boats docking before daylight brought more than 500 to the Baton Rouge camps.

Although the dikes crumbled faster than they would be reported through the naval wireless facilities of the rescue patrol, not a single loss of life had been reported to relief headquarters here today. At one point, 500 people were stranded on a five-mile stretch of levee which had been cut off at both ends. All were removed

Prosecutor Asserts Defendant's Alibi Will "be Torn to Pieces" When Rebuttal Witnesses are Called.

CANTON, O., May 16.—The prosecution has promised a surprise in the trial of Floyd Streitenberer, former member of the Canton detective force, charged with first degree murder, for alleged participation in the killing of Don Mellett, Canton publisher, here ten months ago. Following the testimony of remaining defense witnesses, Prosecutor Henry Harter was to call rebuttal witnesses whom, he declared, "would tear Streitenberger's attempted alibi to pieces."

Today the defense had summoned three new witnesses. Two of these witnesses are expected to throw discredit upon the testimony of Louis Mazer, Canton, third man indicted in the Mellett slaying, who turned state's evidence, and implicated Streitenberger in the crime.

The trio is composed of Charles Smith, a pugilist, Bessie Zimmer and Leo Shumaker. The latter two were state witnesses during the trials of Pat McDermott and Ben Rudner, both convicted of complicity in Mellett's murder, and sentenced to life terms. Defense attorneys expect the Zimmer woman and Shumaker to testify that Pat McDermott was not the only man on the "firing line" the night of the killing.

The defense has promised to rest its case not later than tomorrow.

Chief's Bull Dog Lost.

Sedan is Stolen From Wasbutzky Garage Last Night

Automobile thieves smashed the lock on the garage door of Mrs. Fred Wasbutzky, in Rural lane, last night and made their escape with a Studebaker sedan, carrying license number 386-553. The theft occurred after 10:30 o'clock Sunday night when the car was left in the garage by a member of the Wasbutzky family.

LEGION COLLECTS APPROXIMATELY $500 IN POPPY DAY CAMPAIGN

Despite rains which fell a greater part of the day, approximately $500 was raised in the American Legion's annual Poppy Day sale in East Liverpool Saturday. Approximately 5,000 silken flowers, a replica of those which bloom in Flanders' fields, were sold during the day by a corps of girl workers under the direction of Mrs. R. W. Johnson, Poppy Day chairman.

First prize for the workers, $5 in cash, went to Mrs. John Bucey, Newell, who collected $47.04. Second prize, $3 was awarded to Miss Gertrude Croxall, Fifth street, Wellsville, who took in $35.26. Third prize, $2, was won by Miss Florence Watson, 842 Chester avenue.

Through the courtesy of the managers of the Ceramic, American and Strand theatres, 40 other workers, who failed to win cash prizes, received theatre passes as a reward for their efforts.

Funds raised in the Poppy Day campaign will be used to meet expenses of the Memorial Day observance, to provide funds for relief work among needy ex-service men and to assist in liquidating the bonded indebtedness on the Legion home, 633 Dresden avenue.

FLYERS AGAIN DELAY HOP-OFF IN NON-STOP PARIS FLIGHT

Storms Over Atlantic Ocean Cause Another Postponement.

PLANES TESTED

Trip May be Started Tuesday if Weather is Satisfactory.

MINEOLA, N. Y., May 16.—Owing to wind storms over the Atlantic and fog the American aviators who will attempt a non-stop flight from New York to Paris have postponed their hop-off for another 24 hours, it was announced today. According to meteorologists the present bad weather may continue for several days.

Capt. Charles Lindbergh's Ryan monoplane has received its final test and Lindbergh may be the first to get away if the stormy weather moderates sufficiently within the next 24 hours to permit flying over the ocean.

Dissension arose between the Bellanca flyer—Lloyd Bertand and Clarence Chamberlain—and Charles A. Levine, the owner of the Bellanca plane, but it has been adjusted. The trouble was due to three points which the airmen brought up: (1) the necessity for some sort of financial protection for their families; (2) full amount of the $25,000 prize money to go to the aviators instead of being split up with the Columbia aircraft corporation, and (3) abrogation of a clause in the contract with the corporation by which the airmen had promised to fly for a year for the Columbia corporation if the New York-Paris flight was successfully made.

If any of the aviators hop off tomorrow they will have the protection of about 50 United States shipping board vessels which are enroute between America and Europe over the North Atlantic steamship lane. Should the airmen get away tomorrow morning the ships will be notified by wireless and instructed to give every possible aid in the event any of the aviators meet with accident over the ocean. The average distance between the ships at the present time is 60 miles.

The Bellanca monoplane was taken from its hangar on Roosevelt flying field at 4 a. m. today, leading to reports that Betrand and Chamberlain were planning to hop off immediately, but officials of the Columbia Aircraft corporation denied these reports.

There was considerable activity on both Roosevelt and Curtiss flying fields. Capt. Lindbergh's monoplane was wheeled from its hangar about the same time as the Bellanca monoplane.

Pair Convicted For Murder Transferred To "Death Chamber"

In Separate Automobiles and Under Heavy Guard, Man and Woman are Spirited From New York to Place Where They Will Pay Death Penalty, June 20.

"ICY WIDOW" WEEPS AS SHE ENTERS AUTO BESIDE TWO JAIL MATRONS

Cars Fail to Stop at Warden's Office But are Driven Directly Through Prison Grounds — Crowds Assembled at Prison Fail to Get Glimpse of Slayers.

OSSINING, N. Y., May 16.—Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, condemned slayers of Albert Snyder, the woman's husband, arrived at Sing Sing prison shortly before noon today.

Accompanied by an escort of motorcycle police, the two automobiles containing the doomed pair swept through the main street of this village, and into the gates of the prison. The shades of the cars were tightly drawn and the crowds that had assembled on the sidewalks had no opportunity to glimpse the famous pair.

Without stopping at the warden's office, which is the general rule, the line of cars swept straight into the prison grounds. The doors clanged quickly shut, and Gray and Mrs. Snyder had entered their final place of living until the hand of the law calls them to death in the electric chair.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., May 16.—Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, convicted of murdering the husband of Mrs. Snyder, left Long Island City jail this morning for the "death house" in Sing Sing prison. The two former lovers left in separate automobiles under heavy guards.

The slayers of Albert Snyder are scheduled to be executed the week of June 20, but appeals by their lawyers are expected to cause a postponement.

A squadron of policemen on motorcycles guarded each automobile as thousands of spectators lined the streets for a last glimpse of the notorious murder pair.

Both Mrs. Snyder and Gray were shackled to their guards. The shades on Gray's machine were drawn but the curtains on the automobile containing Mrs. Snyder were up. The so-called "icy widow" was weeping. She sat between jail matrons, Irene Wolfe and Nan Hart, and was handcuffed to the former.

When the big green gate at the jail swung open two motorcycle policemen shot out and behind came a big blue automobile. Gray was in his machine with Sheriff Joseph Quinn and three deputy sheriffs.

Then followed another squad of motorcycle policemen and behind that a big gray car in which Mrs. Snyder sat on the back seat.

Other motorcycle policemen surrounded the two machines which sped off toward Sing Sing prison. Thirteen other machines containing detectives and newspapermen followed.

AUTO TAKEN FROM LISBON GARAGE

Lisbon authorities today were searching for the unidentified thief who last night jimmied the lock off the garage at the home of J. W. Burnett, Lincoln highway, Lisbon, and got away with a 1924 Nash touring car.

The theft is believed to have taken place between 10 and 11 o'clock.

"DAREDEVIL" MATHEWS READY FOR 120-HOUR DRIVING TEST

San Antonio Cowboy Will Make Endurance Drive of Five Days and Five Nights, Beginning Tonight.

Everything was in readiness at noon for the 120-hour endurance drive which "Daredevil" Mathews, cow-boy from the Rio Grand Valley, near San Antonio, Texas, will begin at 7 o'clock tonight when he leaves the Buckeye Motor Sales garage and Sales room, corner East Sixth and Walnut streets.

Mathews, who will drive continually for five days and five nights, will be at the wheel of a stock Hudson coach. He will be fastened to the car and will not sleep during the 120-hour drive. His only nourishment during the trip will be milk and black coffee.

Chief of Police McDermott will fix the handcuffs on Mathews before the drive starts and will be on hand next Saturday evening when he returns to the starting point to release him. Miss Barbara Cox, his nurse, will spend about 16 hours out of each 24 with Mathews.

Mathews' daily schedule during the five days of his drive will be as follows:

ANDREWS MAY RESIGN POST

Dry Czar Refuses to Confirm or Deny Report.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews declined today to confirm or deny reports that he is again about to submit his resignation as assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition.

Commenting on a statement attributed to Wayne B. Wheeler, Andrews declared he came to reorganize and coordinate the various law enforcement branches of the treasury, and that it was "up to Secretary Mellon, not Mr. Wheeler, to say when that has been accomplished."

"Mr. Wheeler evidently thinks I have finished my work," commented Andrews.

The general announced he was sailing on July 2 next to arrange cooperation with ploice and customs officials of several European countries for the suppression of narcotics smuggling.

"Rum smuggling has been virtually wiped out through effective measures of cooperation, and we hope to be equally successful with narcotics," he said. He probably will sail on the French liner Isle of France.

Andrews submitted his resignation more than a year ago, but was persuaded to withdraw it by President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon. Wheeler and Andrews have recently clashed over the appointment of a prohibition commissioner, the anti-saloon league head insisting upon Roy A. Haynes.

AN UGLY SKIN AND HOW TO CLEAR IT UP

Finding the Base of Beauty and Building On It

American women are usually considered the most beautiful in the world, but at that one has only to walk the streets of East Liverpool to see that many are not making the most of themselves. The droop of the figures that denotes constant fatigue, the eyes that show a weariness always, and the yellowish, clogged skin shows that many women are foregoing their birthright.

Beauty is always based on health. The greatest foes to it are that congestion we call catarrh and that condition generally known as constipation. Catarrh isn't always evident to women who suffer from it. They are often inclined to class it as some ailment peculiar to their sex and suffer in silence. The result is always the accumulation of poisons that undermine the health.

When catarrh is general in the system—systemic, we say—it is usually accompanied by constipation, which in turn lets remain the poisons of the fatigue in the blood. With inactive liver and overworked kidneys, the skin becomes clogged, loses its freshness of appearance, and all too frequently takes on a yellowish tinge.

Remedies for these conditions are comparatively simple. The first of them is a general clearing out of the system; the second is to allay the catarrhal symptoms, and the third is to build up the bodily strength. In all of these nothing has quite equalled the famous World's Tonic. A course of this remarkable medicine, with the drinking of plenty of good water, a moderate regulation of the diet to avoid too much rich or sweet food, and reasonable exercise, will improve appearance of any woman, give her more energy, make her feel better in every way, and restore that magnetism that will make her attractive. World's Tonic is sold by Carnahan's, also Brannan, Wellsville, and all other good druggists. (278)

SEE this washing speed with your own eyes, right in your own home.

Now you may see for yourself

THINK of this! A great big batch of clothes washed and another big batch dried—all at the same time,—the wash water kept at an even temperature, the rinse, the blue and the suds all handled for you, no buttons to sew on, no deep wrinkles to iron out, and every piece washed and dried as thoroughly and gently as by human hands,—in the New Easy Washer.

Double Capacity--Double Speed

The New Easy with its two tubs can wash and dry sixteen double sheets (or the equivalent in other clothes) at one time. While the Easy's famous Vacuum Cup tub is washing one eight-sheet batch the new Dryer is whirling another eight-sheet batch damp-dry ready for the line in three minutes, without putting deep wrinkles in the clothes and without breaking off buttons.

Handles Every Drop of Water

As the suds, the rinse and the blue waters are whirled from the clothes in the dryer, each in turn is carried back to the proper tub by a wonderful new water-circulating system which even empties the washer for you when you're all through.

O'Brien Boy Thin and Pale

In a Little Over Two Months Gained Eleven Pounds

As a body builder, an appetite creator, and to make weak, skinny boys and girls sturdy, strong and full of energy there is nothing like Cod Liver Oil—any physician will tell you that.

But it's vile, horrible stuff to take, and is apt to upset any stomach, so now doctors are prescribing and wise parents are buying McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—sugar-coated, and as easy to take as candy.

The son of George G. O'Brien of Mahwah, N. J., was thin and pale and did not get enough nourishment from his food. In a little over two months, he gained eleven and one-half pounds, and feels and looks one hundred percent better.

Mothers, if any of your children are weak, thin or puny, give them these tablets, as directed for 30 days, and watch them gain flesh and health from day to day—they seldom fail—but if the unusual should happen and you are not supremely satisfied with results—your druggist is authorized to return your money.

Be sure—always—to get the original and genuine McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets 60 cents at any druggist in America. Thousands of boxes sold daily.

Old Folks Need a Mild Laxative —Not a "Physic"

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help, else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative, in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural, regular bowel movement even for those chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

Y. M. C. A. Learn to Swim Campaign

In accordance with an annual custom, the Young Men's Christian association today opened its three-week "Learn to Swim" campaign. One week each has been set for three divisions—high school boys, employed youths and grade school lads. Competent instructors are in charge of the classes, and no fee will be assessed.

Of interest in connection with this campaign, one of the purposes of which is to develop healthy swimmers as well as teach those who have not mastered the art, is the fact that five members of the College Point, N. Y., Penguin club, year-round swimmers, have just been given medals by the local association of merchants. On May 1 they had completed 1,000 hours in the water. They took a dip in East River every one of the 365 days in the year. The coldest temperatures they encountered were four degrees below zero in the air and 24 degrees above zero in the water. On the really cold days they swam only about 150 yards and stayed in a shorter time. On pleasant days they sometimes swam two miles.

These five ice-water swimmers range in age from 21 to 50. One of them is a grandfather. Now, at the close of their winter activities they declare that they have all been entirely free of colds and other ills, have gained from 10 to 20 pounds in weight and are in fine general health, feeling better than they did before they tackled the year of daily swims.

Admiring neighbors and follow townsmen declare that their feat is of more importance to the country as a whole than swimming the Catalina channel, because it involved steady, regular exercise over a long period instead of spectacular achievement and physical strain concentrated in a training period and a one-day endurance swim.

The regularity of the exercise, the frequent exposure to direct sunlight and fresh air, throughout the whole year, rather than the chill of the water during the winter months, brought about the improved health conditions. We don't all have to join the Penguins to do the same for ourselves, but we can learn from them.

Boston Seals

Most Americans west of Boston will not believe that there are seals in Boston harbor. Here, however, is proof of an unexpected sort.

Motor traffic in Lynn, a northern suburb, was tied up in a knot the other morning by a commotion going on in a small, stagnant pond beside the North Shore motor road. There was a brown seal there swimming and diving in plain sight, disporting itself as if it were a trained seal in a show. Drivers stopped to watch it, and that made others stop, and soon the highway was impassable, and motorists and local residents by hundreds were watching that funny seal.

Evidently it had made its way to the pond half a mile overland, from the harbor. That was quite a feat, but the authorities didn't approve of the riot it was causing. So a cop armed with a riot gun shot it, and the traffic resumed its progress.

When Bostonian sea life takes to the land that way, something must be done about it. There may be seals floundering ali over the Boston Common and the Back Bay, if the Hub isn't careful. It may become necessary to place a guard alongside of "T" wharf to keep the fishes from flooping over the rail of the fishing schooners and going for a ramble around town. Order must be kept at all hazards, and Boston has a historic record for repelling invasion by sea.

Names For Flood Babies

Another problem connected with the Mississippi flood causes a smile to distant readers. Press reports say that colored babies, born in refugee camps or in towns in the flood area, are being given names suggestive of the present situation along the river. Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson are said to be authentic names. There are undoubtedly others yet more surprising.

The New York World suggests that public-spirited citizens with a gift for names send their suggestions to Red Cross authorities on the scene of action. It adds an important hint.

"And don't be a piker. If you're going to have the honor of naming a child, inclose a large enough check to pay for that child's support during this trying period of its life."

It is easy to laugh at such stories and the funny names that some of those flood babes will bear through life. Yet the stories have a stronger appeal. Babies are being born in that stricken region, white ones as well as colored. Lives are taken by the flood or the disease and exposure that attend it, but the whole drama of human life goes on just the same. The train of thought started by reading Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson takes one into the midst of the flood terrors and problems and brings them close home to our own daily lives.

Nowadays about the only way a man tell a woman's summer clothes from her winter clothes is by the color, and he's never sure of that.

Big towns have to build skyscrapers, so the people can get up nigh enough for a little fresh air.

THE INTERCHANGEABLE NAME

I was out in Minnesota on a fishing trip. At a home in St. Paul we were entertained by a most charming lady.

In the living room where we sat after dinner I was struck by a photograph, framed in silver and displayed upon the mantel, of an exceedingly handsome and well-set-up boy in his early teens.

I inquired who the original of the picture might be.

"That," explained the matron, "is our son—our only child. He's off at camp for the summer."

"What it his name?" I asked.

"I'll spell it for you," said our hostess. "A-e-r-n."

"Rather unusual," I said. "How do you pronounce it?"

"That all depends," stated the lady. "You see, ours was what they call a mixed marriage. As you may have guessed, I am Jewish. My parents were orthodox Jews, while my husband, as you know, is of pure Irish descent. Both of us are proud of the races to which we belong. When our son was born each of us was naturally anxious that he should wear a name which would be agreeable to the other and yet at the same time would have a familiar and affectionate sound in the ears of all concerned. So after a number of conferences we reached a compromise. My husband calls him 'Erin' and I call him 'Aaron'."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

ABOARD THE S. S. FRANCE, May 16.—This liner plunges sturdily through high running seas toward Havre. Nothing is so gallant as a ship or so terrifying as the ocean. Everybody has been seasick, including a lieutenant of the navy. Even the captain looks peaked to me.

I did not know there was so much mal re mer in the world. At the dock in New York I was attracted to one of those virile voyageurs who seemed to look pityingly upon those of us yokels athrill with prospect of travel. He looked as though he would take no nonsense from a ship.

But he has been crumpled up in his deck chair all the way across with a complexion of luminous pea green. The only animated thing aboard seems to be my dog. Those two bonneted ladies who liven the pages of The New Yorker could get a lot of new "Whoops!" ideas from this ship.

Last night I crawled up to the dinning room. Stewards stood swaying at their ghostly array of deserted white tables. Only one passenger was there. His head was cupped in his hands. I think he has been there for three days. I got one whiff from the kitchen and galloped—buckitty, buckitty—to my post at the rail.

Our cabin steward is one of those pink-cheeked Frenchmen with a superbly waxed mustache and an adolescent voice that jumps from alto into soprano with no apparent shifting of gears. He is killing me with kindness. I asked for a small glass of orange juice and he brought a tray piled high with food—this morning he even brought sausages.

If you've never seen sausages when seasick, well, you have never really wanted to die. Most of those who have energy enough to hold up a book are reading "Elmer Gantry." I have confined my reading to the headlines of the ship's wireless newspaper. Even that taxes my strength.

Every liner offers its quota of interesting personalities. On this voyage are Jay Gould; a mystery woman who wears a white transformation; Laurens Hamilton, grandson of Pierpont Morgan, a personable youth who sponsors the deck games; Coblenz, the San Francisco publisher; Wellington Cross, who has deserted the stage for a commercial career abroad; Walter Drey, editor and poet; George Agnew Chamberlain who is to hide himself in his Paris apartment to finish a novel; Claudel, the new French Ambassador to America and Robert Weler, a distinguished French ace.

So far murder has had no place in my sin-stained career but if that precocious child continues to trill and romp up and down the outside companionway something has got to be done.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd are aboard. But they are from Chicago. They were finally compelled to tack a sign on their door announcing they were not the cinema celebrities to keep away the curious.

There goes the dinner gong. Another free banquet for the fish!

Tragedy stalks grimly upon the heels of romance on this voyage. Yesterday a couple meeting on ship-board announced they would marry on their arrival in Paris and at the wireless office this afternoon I could not help but notice a message on the counter reading: "Charles is dying of pneumonia."

Tonight as a full moon shimmered the deep with its tangerine glow a four-masted schooner—like an ancient galleon—drifted lazily across our bow. Piratical looking seamen pressed to the side and waved. Land is not far away. Hey, hey! To say nothing of ro-de-do-de-vio!

I am reliably informed that one of the passengers who has not been seen on deck once during this trip is the manufacturer of a seasick panacea. That's the sort of high rolling journey this was.

Jeeves, kick the blocks from the wheel chair. Here's France.

Cuba's Anniversary.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16.—At 12 o'clock noon on May 20 the Republic of Cuba will be 25 years old. Cuban independence really dates from the Treaty of Paris, signed December 10 1898, which ended the Spanish-American war, but there ensued a period of almost four and a half years of American occupation while the people of the island could adopt a constitution and establish a government stable enough to warrant the expectation that it would weather domestic and international storms.

The first Cuban Congress met May 5, 1902, to examine into the credentials of its own members and to count and ratify the electoral vote, and 15 days later President Tomas Estrada Palma was inaugurated, the flag of the United States was lowered, the flag of the new republic was hoisted and saluted, and American occupancy was at an end. From 1906 to 1909 there was another period of American intervention, due to an insurrection which the island authorities were unable to suppress, but that is not regarded as a break in the life of the young republic, which is officially dated from May 20, 1902.

The quarter of a century has been one of marvelous progress for Cuba. Her aggregate wealth has been more than trebled and her foreign trade increased almost six fold, but even more notable has been her improvement in sanitation, in education, and in acquiring modern conveniences in transportation, communications, and the everyday living of the people.

When this country first went to the aid of the struggling insurrectos, 12 per cent of Cuba's population and 60 per cent of her property values had been wiped out in her long revolt against Spanish rule. The death rate in the island was appalling and yellow fever was an ever-menacing spectre.

The Help That Counted.

Under Governor General Brooke, first, and later under Governor General Leonard Wood, the temporary occupational government proceeded to give the Cubans the kind of help that counted. Thorough sanitary measures were adopted; the death-rate immediately went on a decline; the causes of yellow fever were discovered and that disease nearly exterminated, and especially successful efforts were made to beautify Havana and improve its sanitary conditions. That city has become one of the most attractive in Latin America.

Reforms were extended to the prisons, hospitals, and asylums of the island. A general system of free schools was established, and in all possible practical ways, Cuba was prepared for self-government.

In 25 years the highway mileage in the island has increased from 400 to 1,800 and vastly in quality; railroads have more than doubled their mileage and greatly improved their service; the number of telephones has grown from almost zero to more than 64,000; postoffices from 306 to 468; postal revenues from $376,000 to $3,000,000; exports from $64,300,000 to $434,000,000 and imports from $60,584,000 to $297,000,000.

During the year 1925-26 the total revenues of the Cuban government were in round figures 85,000,000—not such an impressive sum, to be sure, in comparison with the revenues of this country, but altogether striking when it is known that the total revenues of the island for the four and a half years of American occupancy were only about $57,000,000.

The advance that has been made in education has been rapid despite the difficulty of securing an adequate force of teachers. In 1924 there were 3,364 schools with 377,475 pupils and almost 7,000 teachers in the public school system, and 551 private schools with more than 24,000 pupils and 1,775 teachers. The University of Havana, which was founded in 1721, had more than 2,500 students 200 years later.

The funded debt of Cuba is slightly under $100,000,000, as of March 1, 1925, and the floating debt about $14,000,000. The island's war debt of approximately $18,000,000 was called and paid on June 30, 1924.

Cuba ranks as the sixth best customer of the United States, as we sell her from 66 to 68 per cent of all her imports, and we also have taken as high as 87 per cent of her total exports. In 1924-25, she sold us goods valued at $291,915,000 and bought $206,662,000 worth from us; the preceding fiscal year her bill with us was in excess of $192,000,000, while our bill with her ran to almost $360,000,000. Sugar is, of course, Cuba's great crop, and the United States takes about 90 per cent of her product.

American Capital Heavily Invested.

Miss Edith Weston Weds Okey Ludwig In Beaver Ceremony

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Edith Weston, daughter of Mrs. Richard Weston of 120 Drury lane, and Okey Ludwig, son of Christian Ludwig of Third street, Chester. The ceremony was performed in the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church of Beaver, Pa., on Friday, May 6, with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Wright, officiating.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Frank Butler, was the only attendant.

Previous to her marriage the bride conducted a beauty parlor in Drury lane. The bridegroom is employed at the American Sheet & Tin Plate company in Chester. Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig are residing temporarily with the bride's mother.

Inconvenience? Yes; But Never Pain

Menstruation is Nature—but menstrual pain is NOT natural, and not necessary. Science has conquered the painful part. In a harmless—yes, healthful —little tablet called midol.

Midol is a more remarkable means of relieving such pain than even a habit-forming drug. It acts directly on the organs affected by menstruation, and relief comes in five to seven minutes.

Don't have another day of forced quiet, of pain, low spirits or even discomfort! Midol is effective twelve hours or more. Yet it does not depress the heart, is not narcotic, and is utterly harmless. All druggists, 50 cents, in thin aluminum box that fits the smallest purse.

Are You An Economic Jaywalker?

In life, as along crowded thoroughfares, there are always people who prefer the short cuts and will not heed the traffic signals of Common Sense. They long for fine clothes, and expensive furnishings beyond the limit of Today's pay envelope, and Credit appears to be the short cut to the other side of the street. So they start gayly mortgaging Tomorrow's Dollars, and those of the Week After until they are hopelessly entangled in the traffic of every-day life.

Every purchase made in the J. C. Penney Company stores means a saving to the purchaser because of our universal policy of buying and selling only for cash. Of more importance, however, than the money saved is the habit of thrift and economy formed. Our customers have taught their desires to follow the safe and sober paths laid down by Good Judgment, rather than to dash recklessly into the tangled mazes of extravagance.

Y. M. C. A. Learn to Swim Campaign

In accordance with an annual custom, the Young Men's Christian association today opened its three-week "Learn to Swim" campaign. One week each has been set for three divisions—high school boys, employed youths and grade school lads. Competent instructors are in charge of the classes, and no fee will be assessed.

Of interest in connection with this campaign, one of the purposes of which is to develop healthy swimmers as well as teach those who have not mastered the art, is the fact that five members of the College Point, N. Y., Penguin club, year-round swimmers, have just been given medals by the local association of merchants. On May 1 they had completed 1,000 hours in the water. They took a dip in East River every one of the 365 days in the year. The coldest temperatures they encountered were four degrees below zero in the air and 24 degrees above zero in the water. On the really cold days they swam only about 150 yards and stayed in a shorter time. On pleasant days they sometimes swam two miles.

These five ice-water swimmers range in age from 21 to 50. One of them is a grandfather. Now, at the close of their winter activities they declare that they have all been entirely free of colds and other ills, have gained from 10 to 20 pounds in weight and are in fine general health, feeling better than they did before they tackled the year of daily swims.

Admiring neighbors and follow townsmen declare that their feat is of more importance to the country as a whole than swimming the Catalina channel, because it involved steady, regular exercise over a long period instead of spectacular achievement and physical strain concentrated in a training period and a one-day endurance swim.

The regularity of the exercise, the frequent exposure to direct sunlight and fresh air, throughout the whole year, rather than the chill of the water during the winter months, brought about the improved health conditions. We don't all have to join the Penguins to do the same for ourselves, but we can learn from them.

Boston Seals

Most Americans west of Boston will not believe that there are seals in Boston harbor. Here, however, is proof of an unexpected sort.

Motor traffic in Lynn, a northern suburb, was tied up in a knot the other morning by a commotion going on in a small, stagnant pond beside the North Shore motor road. There was a brown seal there swimming and diving in plain sight, disporting itself as if it were a trained seal in a show. Drivers stopped to watch it, and that made others stop, and soon the highway was impassable, and motorists and local residents by hundreds were watching that funny seal.

Evidently it had made its way to the pond half a mile overland, from the harbor. That was quite a feat, but the authorities didn't approve of the riot it was causing. So a cop armed with a riot gun shot it, and the traffic resumed its progress.

When Bostonian sea life takes to the land that way, something must be done about it. There may be seals floundering all over the Boston Common and the Back Bay, if the Hub isn't careful. It may become necessary to place a guard alongside of "T" wharf to keep the fishes from flooping over the rail of the fishing schooners and going for a ramble around town. Order must be kept at all hazards, and Boston has a historic record for repelling invasion by sea.

Names For Flood Babies

Another problem connected with the Mississippi flood causes a smile to distant readers. Press reports say that colored babies, born in refugee camps or in towns in the flood area, are being given names suggestive of the present situation along the river. Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson are said to be authentic names. There are undoubtedly others yet more surprising.

The New York World suggests that public-spirited citizens with a gift for names send their suggestions to Red Cross authorities on the scene of action. It adds an important hint.

"And don't be a piker. If you're going to have the honor of naming a child, inclose a large enough check to pay for that child's support during this trying period of its life."

It is easy to laugh at such stories and the funny names that some of those flood babes will bear through life. Yet the stories have a stronger appeal. Babies are being born in that stricken region, white ones as well as colored. Lives are taken by the flood or the disease and exposure that attend it, but the whole drama of human life goes on just the same. The train of thought started by reading Highwater Jones and Overflow Johnson takes one into the midst of the flood terrors and problems and brings them close home to our own daily lives.

Nowadays about the only way a man tell a woman's summer clothes from her winter clothes is by the color, and he's never sure of that.

Big towns have to build skyscrapers, so the people can get up nigh enough for a little fresh air.

A lot of people nowadays never appreciate fresh fruit unless it was picked green and shipped a long distance.

THE INTERCHANGEABLE NAME

I was out in Minnesota on a fishing trip. At a home in St. Paul we were entertained by a most charming lady.

In the living room where we sat after dinner I was struck by a photograph, framed in silver and displayed upon the mantel, of an exceedingly handsome and well-set-up boy in his early teens.

I inquired who the original of the picture might be.

"That," explained the matron, "is our son—our only child. He's off at camp for the summer."

"What it his name?" I asked.

"I'll spell it for you," said our hostess. "A-e-r-n."

"Rather unusual," I said. "How do you pronounce it?"

"That all depends," stated the lady. "You see, ours was what they call a mixed marriage. As you may have guessed, I am Jewish. My parents were orthodox Jews, while my husband, as you know, is of pure Irish descent. Both of us are proud of the races to which we belong. When our son was born each of us was naturally anxious that he should wear a name which would be agreeable to the other and yet at the same time would have a familiar and affectionate sound in the ears of all concerned. So after a number of conferences we reached a compromise. My husband calls him 'Erin' and I call him 'Aaron'."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

ABOARD THE S. S. FRANCE, May 16.—This liner plunges sturdily through high running seas toward Havre. Nothing is so gallant as a ship or so terrifying as the ocean. Everybody has been seasick, including a lieutenant of the navy. Even the captain looks peaked to me.

I did not know there was so much mal re mer in the world. At the dock in New York I was attracted to one of those virile voyageurs who seemed to look pityingly upon those of us yokels athrill with prospect of travel. He looked as though he would take no nonsense from a ship.

But he has been crumpled up in his deck chair all the way across with a complexion of luminous pea green. The only animated thing aboard seems to be my dog. Those two bonneted ladies who liven the pages of The New Yorker could get a lot of new "Whoops!" ideas from this ship.

Last night I crawled up to the dinning room. Stewards stood swaying at their ghostly array of deserted white tables. Only one passenger was there. His head was cupped in his hands. I think he has been there for three days. I got one whiff from the kitchen and galloped—buckitty, buckitty—to my post at the rail.

Our cabin steward is one of those pink-cheeked Frenchmen with a superbly waxed mustache and an adolescent voice that jumps from alto into soprano with no apparent shifting of gears. He is killing me with kindness. I asked for a small glass of orange juice and he brought a tray piled high with food—this morning he even brought sausages.

If you've never seen sausages when seasick, well, you have never really wanted to die. Most of those who have energy enough to hold up a book are reading "Elmer Gantry." I have confined my reading to the headlines of the ship's wireless newspaper. Even that taxes my strength.

Every liner offers its quota of interesting personalities. On this voyage are Jay Gould; a mystery woman who wears a white transformation; Laurens Hamilton, grandson of Pierpont Morgan, a personable youth who sponsors the deck games; Coblenz, the San Francisco publisher; Wellington Cross, who has deserted the stage for a commercial career abroad; Walter Drey, editor and poet; George Agnew Chamberlain who is to hide himself in his Paris apartment to finish a novel; Claudel, the new French Ambassador to America and Robert Weler, a distinguished French ace.

So far murder has had no place in my sin-stained career but if that precocious child continues to trill and romp up and down the outside companionway something has got to be done.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd are aboard. But they are from Chicago. They were finally compelled to tack a sign on their door announcing they were not the cinema celebrities to keep away the curious.

There goes the dinner gong. Another free banquet for the fish!

Tragedy stalks grimly upon the heels of romance on this voyage. Yesterday a couple meeting on ship-board announced they would marry on their arrival in Paris and at the wireless office this afternoon I could not help but notice a message on the counter reading: "Charles is dying of pneumonia."

Tonight as a full moon shimmered the deep with its tangerine glow a four-masted schooner—like an ancient galleon—drifted lazily across our bow. Piratical looking seamen pressed to the side and waved. Land is not far away. Hey, hey! To say nothing of ro-de-do-de-vio!

I am reliably informed that one of the passengers who has not been seen on deck once during this trip is the manufacturer of a seasick panacea. That's the sort of high rolling journey this was.

Jeeves, kick the blocks from the wheel chair. Here's France.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Cuba's Anniversary.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16.—At 12 o'clock noon on May 20 the Republic of Cuba will be 25 years old. Cuban independence really dates from the Treaty of Paris, signed December 10, 1898, which ended the Spanish-American war, but there ensued a period of almost four and a half years of American occupation while the people of the island could adopt a constitution and establish a government stable enough to warrant the expectation that it would weather domestic and international storms.

The first Cuban Congress met May 5, 1902, to examine into the credentials of its own members and to count and ratify the electoral vote, and 15 days later President Tomas Estrada Palma was inaugurated, the flag of the United States was lowered, the flag of the new republic was hoisted and saluted, and American occupancy was at an end. From 1906 to 1909 there was another period of American intervention, due to an insurrection which the island authorities were unable to suppress, but that is not regarded as a break in the life of the young republic, which is officially dated from May 20, 1902.

The quarter of a century has been one of marvelous progress for Cuba. Her aggregate wealth has been more than trebled and her foreign trade increased almost six fold, but even more notable has been her improvement in sanitation, in education, and in acquiring modern conveniences in transportation, communications, and the everyday living of the people.

When this country first went to the aid of the struggling insurrectos, 12 per cent of Cuba's population and 60 per cent of her property values had been wiped out in her long revolt against Spanish rule. The death rate in the island was appalling and yellow fever was an ever-menacing spectre.

The Help That Counted.

Under Governor General Brooke, first, and later under Governor General Leonard Wood, the temporary occupational government proceeded to give the Cubans the kind of help that counted. Thorough sanitary measures were adopted; the death-rate immediately went on a decline; the causes of yellow fever were discovered and that disease nearly exterminated, and especially successful efforts were made to beautify Havana and improve its sanitary conditions. That city has become one of the most attractive in Latin America.

Reforms were extended to the prisons, hospitals, and asylums of the island. A general system of free schools was established, and in all possible practical ways, Cuba was prepared for self-government.

In 25 years the highway mileage in the island has increased from 400 to 1,800 and vastly in quality; railroads have more than doubled their mileage and greatly improved their service; the number of telephones has grown from almost zero to more than 64,000; postoffices from 306 to 468; postal revenues from $376,000 to $3,000,000; exports from $64,300,000 to $434,000,000 and imports from $60,584,000 to $297,000,000.

During the year 1925-26 the total revenues of the Cuban government were in round figures $5,000,000—not such an impressive sum, to be sure, in comparison with the revenues of this country, but altogether striking when it is known that the total revenues of the island for the four and a half years of American occupancy were only about $57,000,000.

The advance that has been made in education has been rapid despite the difficulty of securing an adequate force of teachers. In 1924 there were 3,364 schools with 377,475 pupils and almost 7,000 teachers in the public school system, and 551 private schools with more than 24,000 pupils and 1,775 teachers. The University of Havana, which was founded in 1721, had more than 2,500 students 200 years later.

The funded debt of Cuba is slightly under $100,000,000, as of March 1, 1925, and the floating debt about $14,000,000. The island's war debt of approximately $18,000,000 was called and paid on June 30, 1924.

Cuba ranks as the sixth best customer of the United States, as we sell her from 66 to 68 per cent of all her imports, and we also have taken as high as 87 per cent of her total exports. In 1924-25, she sold us goods valued at $291,915,000 and bought $206,662,000 worth from us; the preceding fiscal year her bill with us was in excess of $192,000,000, while our bill with her ran to almost $360,000,000. Sugar is, of course, Cuba's great crop, and the United States takes about 90 per cent of her product.

American Capital Heavily Invested.

Miss Edith Weston Weds Okey Ludwig In Beaver Ceremony

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Edith Weston, daughter of Mrs. Richard Weston of 130 Drury lane, and Okey Ludwig, son of Christian Ludwig of Third street, Chester. The ceremony was performed in the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church of Beaver, Pa., on Friday, May 6, with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Wright, officiating.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Frank Butler, was the only attendant.

Previous to her marriage the bride conducted a beauty parlor in Drury lane. The bridegroom is employed at the American Sheet & Tin Plate company in Chester. Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig are residing temporarily with the bride's mother.

Inconvenience? Yes; But Never Pain

Menstruation is Nature—but menstrual pain is NOT natural, and not necessary. Science has conquered the painful part. In a harmless—yes, healthful —little tablet called midol.

Midol is a more remarkable means of relieving such pain than even a habit-forming drug. It acts directly on the organs affected by menstruation, and relief comes in five to seven minutes.

Don't have another day of forced quiet, of pain, low spirits or even discomfort! Midol is effective twelve hours or more. Yet it does not depress the heart, is not narcotic, and is utterly harmless. All druggists, 50 cents, in thin aluminum box that fits the smallest purse.

Are You An Economic Jaywalker?

In life, as along crowded thoroughfares, there are always people who prefer the short cuts and will not heed the traffic signals of Common Sense. They long for fine clothes, and expensive furnishings beyond the limit of Today's pay envelope, and Credit appears to be the short cut to the other side of the street. So they start gayly mortgaging Tomorrow's Dollars, and those of the Week After until they are hopelessly entangled in the traffic of every-day life.

Every purchase made in the J. C. Penney Company stores means a saving to the purchaser because of our universal policy of buying and selling only for cash. Of more importance, however, than the money saved is the habit of thrift and economy formed. Our customers have taught their desires to follow the safe and sober paths laid down by Good Judgment, rather than to dash recklessly into the tangled mazes of extravagance.

Care and Sureness Mark Service of R. J. Powell Movers

Moving is trouble enough in itself, in the disturbance and chaotical household conditions that it entails, but the family that completes a moving with simply the inconvenience of transferring their belongings from one house to another is fortunate. So many are frequently confronted with other conditions that arise such as the loss of small articles of one kind or another, sometimes breakage and quite often scratches and gashes in expensive pieces of furniture that are mighty difficult to remove.

A guarantee against this kind of trouble has made the R. J. Powell transfer service one of the leading businesses of its kind in the district.

Distance has nothing to do with Powell's service. Your work will be taken care of in the same excellent way regardless of whether the speedometer on the moving van says one block, one mile or one thousand miles.

Furniture, pianos, freight of various descriptions, express and other merchandise are handled by Powell from anywhere to anywhere.

Lunch at Graham's Adds to Pleasure Of Daily Routine

While a meal is just something to eat at a great many restaurants and similar establishments and, as such, is regarded more or less as just another "filling station" down the day's journey, it has come to be known as something better at Graham's, something in the nature, almost, of a delicacy, punctuating the day's activities with a pleasurable half-hour or so instead of just a period of gastronomical exercise.

In other words, a meal or lunch at William Graham's, in Diamond alley, provides a relish and zest that makes the eating worth while, instead of just something to fill the inner void.

Home cooking is the answer, and the reason—so many lunch counter and dining room patrons enjoy their meals off the spotless linen and counters at Graham's almost as much as they do at home.

A strictly American cuisine has served to popularize this Diamond alley restaurant which is located right back of Bulger's Drug Store.

Luscious, wholesome T-bone steaks and other substantial entrees as well as the tempting accessory side dishes and the numerous luncheon and short order specialties and tasty sandwiches provide a complete menu.

Refinish Your Car At Drier's and Look Your Best on Road

Setting forth on a fine Sunday afternoon's drive, you may look your best, attired in faultless style from panama headgear to spotless lowcuts, but what's the use if your automobile has that run-down-at-the-heel appearance?

You'll fail to "register" at all, regardless of whether you're able to take all the intervening hills on high or not.

Years ago, a tawdry looking motor car might have been excusable, but now with a paint shop as handy as Drier's, and a workmanship equal to the best, there's no reason for inability to present a "dressed up" auto to the motoring public on the open road.

Drier's Auto Shop is located at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and State street in the East End.

It is an authorized Duco refinishing station. To have your car done over in duco is not as expensive as it may seem, at Drier's shop, and the result, in the opinion of many, is far better than just an ordinary paint job.

And don't forget a new finish on the car will bring you more dollars on the trade-in or in an outright sale.

Guaranteed Work Service Feature At Deacon Garage

"It's not the initial cost—it's the upkeep" the prospective automobile owner is frequently warned, and, after he's had a car for a year or a couple of years, depending on what kind of care he's given it, he comes to know this himself after repeated visits to various kinds of repair shops.

Skimpy repair work or jobs done in a hurry increase motor troubles in a case where repair work, correctly done in the first place, end possible difficulties then and there. A good job makes a lasting friend and patron out of the automobile owner and more business for the man who did the work.

Harry Langdon, proprietor of the Deacon garage, repairing practically any standard make of automobile, emphasizes the advantage to auto owners in his guarantee on all work done at the shop.

The Deacon garage takes out body dents, "ruffles" out of fenders and is qualified to straighten up the disabled car in other ways.

A battery charging department also is maintained. Batteries are rented while your own is being charged, delivery being made both ways, if necessary.

Ruud or Hoffman Heater Enhances Value of Home

Well, now that winter's over and the Robins are chirping a roundelay on the fence in the back yard, you folks who struggled through four or five months of so of coldness, chills and dampness, without a furnace in the house will have several good hot months in which to think it over and lay your plans for thwarting the icy blasts of 1927-28.

And to this end and as a short cut to the installation of a satisfactory heating plant, B. F. Davidson, who operates a plumbing and heating shop at 306½ Broadway, advances the suggestion that prospective buyers investigate the merits of the Rudd or the Hoffman automatic, both warranted to deliver the utmost in service and satisfaction.

Did you, by any chance, try to sell your house last winter or this spring, without a furnace in it?

Or, on the other hand, if you were contemplating the purchase of a home, and you had two propositions before you, each being the equal of the other in all advantages save that one was equipped with a modern heating system and the other was not, which would be the logical choice? Certainly, the one with the furnace.

Many factors combine to enhance property valuation and a good, up to date heating system is not the least of these.

Ervine Machine Co., Skill Available in Potting Industry

While an expansion policy inaugurated some time ago to take care of demands of the pottery trade has increased operations considerably at the Ervine Machine company, the quality of machine work done for other patrons throughout the Tri-State district who have been old customers of the plant, has been maintained at a high level in keeping with the standards of the shop.

Since stepping into the field of pottery, milling and mining machinery, the Ervine company's business has been swelled considerably and if repeat orders are based mostly on results, Ervine's should have little difficulty in keeping its place in this new line of endeavor.

C. E. Ervine and Bert Bucher, both of whom are sufficiently well known in the district in this particular line of work to need little or no introduction, are in charge of operations at Ervine's.

The plant is located at the rear of 644 St. Clair avenue. They will gladly furnish estimates on practically any kind of machine work.

SOCIALLY INCLINED NOT EAGER FOR TURKISH AMBASSADORSHIP

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, May 16. — Social competition is not expected to be very keen for the post of ambassador to Turkey vacant ever since war days, but soon to be filled, now that President Mustapha Kemal Pasha and Uncle Samuel have fixed things up diplomaticlaly.

MUSTAPHA KEMEL PASHA

The Ottoman embassy was a nice berth in the old days, when the sultan reigned, with his capital in Constantinople.

Constantinople's a beautiful city. In general it's been pretty tumble-down for many's the long generation, but it had a swell European quarter. It's right on one of the world's big main-traveled roads, with tourists coming and going, warships ducking in and out, lots of aristocratic company to visit with and plenty of brilliant entertaining going on.

But President Kemal's capital is Angora.

The very reasons that made Occidentals like Constantinople are exactly the reasons why Kemal moved away from there. He said Constantinople was too central, which made it too easy for foreigners to butt in. In fact, he complained it was so situated that the "powers," whenever they felt like it, could send cruisers right into the Bosphorous and shell him out of house and home.

He explained that his ideal of a capital was some place well inland, where the Turkish government could run things to suit itself.

He found it in Angora, and more, too.

It's a jerk-water burg, right in the midst of Asia Minor; hard to get into and hard to leave; with a raw, nasty climate in winter, and hotter than mustard, dry as an ash heap and gritty with dust the rest of the year; not a modern convenience to its name.

It's a typical one-horse Turkish town of the time of the Arabian Nights.

It never was intended to house a capital, and the diplomats literally were hard put to it to find shelter when they landed there. They couldn't stand native accommodations, and there weren't any even of those.

When President Kemal moved to Angora the diplomatic corps tried to get him to let them stay in Constantinople and do business with him at long range.

Kemal said no—they could come to Angora or go home.

He's arbitrary in such matters. He showed it when the issue of extraterritoriality came up directly after he'd elected himself president.

Extraterritoriality's one of the things the "powers" are trying to hang onto in Chna now. They used to have it in Turkey, too.

During the long break in diplomatic relations between Angora and Washington, Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol has functioned virtually as American ambassador in Turkey, under the title of high commissioner.

He's been a great success, but with the restoration of regular relations and Bristol's transfer to the command of the United States fleet in Chinese waters, a real ambassador must be named.

It will be a good job for some chap who doesn't mind roughing it, but Angora's no place to take a wife who wants to figure in swell society. A plaintive report I saw from there the other days describes it as a "miserable hole."

A combination umbrella and bath robe for bathers has been devised.

By a new process rayon is being made from rice hulls.

Raincoats of water-proof paper are proving practicable.

SCHOOL PUPILS ERECT SMALL POTTERY KILN

Ceramics Class Members Busy on Union Street Site.

PORTABLE SHED

First Firing Will Occur Before Vacation Period.

Members of the Ceramics class of the local high school are engaged today in the erection of a small kiln on a Union street site directly back of the Croxall Chemical & Supply Company's property at Broadway and East Fourth street.

The kiln will be housed in a portable sheet metal building, 20 feet square. Space inside the building is sufficient for two kilns as well as two furnaces, which will be installed later.

But one kiln will be erected. It will be a cylinder-shaped arrangement, 18 inches in diameter and 45 inches high, large enough to hold one bung of saggers, and of the down draft type and will be fired with natural gas or oil.

The kiln probably will be fired before school closes, according to Kenneth Smith, ceramic director. All work in connection with the building was done by high school students, working under the direction of Smith. Funds for the improvements were furnished from the ceramics school fund, contributed by district pottery manufacturers.

Thomas Sant of the Thomas H. Sant & Son Company, clay importers, furnished 900 No. 1 fire brick and 150 arch brick for the kiln and flue. The cost of the building was about $150.

Products of the high school ceramic class heretofore have been fired in kilns of manufacturers, no charges being made for kiln space. The completion of the kiln will enable the class to fire its own products.

Turkey's new railway line will start with 100 locomotives and 1,500 cars.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles don't know that quick and permanent relief can be accomplished with internal medicine. Cutting or any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will not remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in many, many cases with a marvelous record of success, such a wonderful record that HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Mathews Original Cut Rate today. It has given quick and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you.

CLEVELAND POLICE HOLD FIVE MEN IN MURDER QUIZ

GIRL, WITH 19 KNIFE WOUNDS IN BODY, FOUND EARLY SUNDAY

CARDS ARE CLUE

Crime Discovered by Maid of Fashionable Apartment House.

CLEVELAND, May 16.—Five men were being held by police today for further investigation, while friends and acquaintances of Elizabeth Reegan, pretty 25-year-old waitress, were being questioned, in an attempt to solve the mystery surrounding her murder.

The girl was brutally stabbed to death sometime between 7 p. m. Saturday and 11 a. m. Sunday. The crime was discovered when a maid, receiving no response to calls, forced the door of Miss Reegan's room in a fashionable east side apartment shortly before noon yesterday. Nineteen knife wounds had been inflicted, sixteen in the girl's left breast, and three in her throat.

When the body was found, the victim was fully clothed, even to her hat and coat. Apparently neither of twin beds had been slept in and the furniture in the room was not disarranged.

A search of the room, detective's say, revealed fifty cards, bearing names and addresses. Many of the cards bore names of music teachers, indicating the girl contemplated the study of music, while several were business cards of men. A sheaf of love letters was found written by a man who signed himself "Jack."

Miss Reegan was the former wife of Policeman Otto Artbauer, of the Cleveland force, from whom she was divorced in 1925. She had been working for some time as a waitress in a downtown restaurant.

"Flying Fool"

Captain Charles Lindbergh, former air mail pilot, who hopped from San Diego, Calif., to New York, via St. Louis, en route to Paris, in a couple of days' flying time, has been nicknamed "Flying Fool"—a term, however, of pride Americans have in him for his achievements. The snapshot above was taken at Curtiss Field, Long Island, N. Y., with Lindbergh standing in front of his "Spirit of St. Louis."

TO answer the scientific question, "what sort of milk do young lions drink?" Captain Schneider, head-keeper of Berlin's zoo, recently milked a lioness at great risk to himself.

Professor Zerngross wanted to make experiments. He will find that lions' milk is much like other milk, so much sugar, so much fat, so much protin, etc.

When a lion is killed the African chief eats its heart, thinking it will make him lion-like, but it doesn't. "Tiger, tiger, burning bright," and the lion burning similarily, get their fearful powers from heredity, the mystery of life, not from milk.

within six hours of the receipt of the wireless report at Director Parker's office.

More than 200 miles of Louisiana railroad is under water and 150 miles more will go under this week, according to a survey of transportation experts at relief headquarters.

Hope is also held out that the main western artery of the Southern Pacific from New Orleans to Texas which swings below the southern edge of Grand Lake, will not be water-covered.

The Bayou Des Glaises levee, approximately 50 miles long protecting a flat 25 miles west of the Atchafalaya, is now dotted with crevasses, at least two of which are of immense proportions, and all enlarging. The Bayou Des Glaises levee has been practically abandoned. The flood on the west side of the Atchafalaya will extend to the Gulf of Mexico. It will gradually increase to very great proportions, with the levees east of the Atchafalaya holding, the area west of that river must take care of the flood waters now in the Tenas basin.

HOLD ELYRIA MAN IN DEATH QUIZ

ELYRIA, O., May 16.—Mary Sokoloff, 30, alleged common-law wife of Alex Sokoloff, 31, was dead today, following an attack by Sokoloff at South Amherst, 12 miles west of here, Sunday, when, in a jealous frenzy, he knocked her down, jumped on her, breaking her neck and then slashed her wrists with a knife.

Nick Zumakoff, who witnessed the attack and interfered, is in a hospital suffering from a possible skull fracture, sustained when Sokoloff struck him with a hatchet. Police say Sokoloff became enraged over the alleged attention paid Mrs. Sokoloff by another man.

$3,544 Collected At First Methodist Protestant Church

Approximately $3,544 was taken in at the First Methodist Protestant church yesterday when the fourth anniversary of the new church edifice, on Jackson street, was celebrated. This is more than $500 of the amount sought by the church trustees to liquidate the mortgage on the church property.

Rev. Thomas H. Lewis, D. D., Li. D., Washington, president of the general assembly, occupied the pulpit of the church at both the morning and evening services. Special music featured all services.

Court Is Adjourned.

On account of the death of Attorney J. Frank Johnston, at New Waterford, common pleas court adjourned at noon today until tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 16.—Speculative interest was directed to the railroad shares at the beginning of trading today. After an irregular opening, in which the major trend of prices was upward, the industrials sold off on profit-taking, with the usual buying demand being in evidence at a slightly lower range of prices.

The first reports from industrial centers in the new week were generally favorable. General Motors corporation reported retail sales of 180,106 cars in April, against 146,275 in March and 136,643 in April, 1926, which was in keeping with its record-breaking pace. Call money renewals were posted at 4½ per cent., a slight increase over the final rate last week. Distressing news from the southern flood districts also pointed to the certainty of heavy losses in agricultural products, principally sugar and cotton.

Further advances in fairly active trading. The list included Western Maryland, Chicago Great Western, Katy, Kansas City Southern, Nickel Plate and Erie also received further attention from professionals, with Chesapeake & Ohio extending its "peak" to above 184. The market as a whole was dull and inactive in the second hour, with prices inclined to sag. Commodity markets exhibited a mixed trend, with cotton down about 10 points and grain fractionally higher. Raw sugar prices were advanced about 10 points to 6.20 cents a pound. Atlantic Refining company cut gasoline 2 cents a gallon in its territory, but similar action was not immediately taken by the big distributors in New York. Foreign exchanges were steady and foreign bonds quiet.

May Establish Bus Line Between This City and Youngstown

The East Ohio Motor Bus company has filed an application with the public utilities commission at Columbus for permission to operate a motor bus between East Liverpool and Youngstown, over State routes No. 7 and 164, through Columbiana and Mahoning counties.

Six 12-passenger Studebaker cars will be put into service on the proposed line according to the application. Four round trips between the two cities will be made daily, if the application is approved.

Solicitors For Magazine Work This Direction

Local police today received word from Wheeling asking them to be on the lookout for two men who are soliciting subscriptions for a publication known as the "International Magazine."

The men, who formerly worked for the magazine were discharged a few days ago but did not turn in their credentials, receipt books and other literature. The pair are no longer authorized to take subscriptions for the magazine and are believed to be working in the direction of this city.

Should the men make their appearance in the city, police headquarters should be notified.

SHERIFF RAIDS CHICKEN FIGHT

NEW LEXINGTON, May 16.—Sheriff Harley McNabb today was conning a list of more than 100 persons, many of them from Columbus, Cleveland, Cincinnati and other large Ohio cities, following a spectacular raid on one of the largest cock fights ever found in the state. He took the names of 100 of the spectators, seized 15 dead cocks, many steel spurs and other equipment, and arrested Robert Brunton, of Buckingham, as the operator of the fight.

The fight was being held Sunday at the Green Place, near Somerset, and is said to have been advertised widely throughout the state.

EUROPE HOODOO FOR MAURICE

Twice before Maurice Mouvet, dancer of international fame, who was stricken ill in Switzerland, fell ill while in Europe. In 1920 he underwent a serious operation in Paris and his first wife, Florence Walton, also his dancing partner, rushed to his bedside. Two years later he had a hemorrhage of the lung while on a dancing tour with Eleanor Hughes. Maurice and his wife, Eleanor Ambrose, who has been resting with him abroad, are seen in dancing pose above. Top, left, Barbara Bennett, his partner after Eleanor Hughes quit his dancing act to marry; top, right, Eleanor Hughes and below Florence Walton, his first wife.

John Felton, Aged 46, Dies in Rocky Glenn Sanitarium

John A. Felton, 46, 1256 Erie street, East End, died Saturday in the Rocky Glenn sanitarium, McConnellsburg, O., where he had been a patient since last November.

Mr. Felton, who was employed by the National Drawn Steel company was a resident of East Liverpool for 26 years. He was a member of Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Pennova lodge, No. 880, and Tri-State encampment No. 354, Odd Fellows.

He is survived by his widow, one son and two daughters, Wilbert, Ruth and Anna. He also leaves four brothers and two sisters: William and Edward, New Matamoras; Wesley and Oscar, Chester; Mrs. Levi Miller, Pughtown, and Mrs. Wallace Hall, New Matamoras.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home, in charge of Rev. George C. Westlake, pastor of the Pennsylvania avenue Methodist Episcopal church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Friends may view the body at the home.

Donahey Approves $33,000 Appropriation For Guilford Park

Governor A. V. Donahey today approved an appropriation of $33,000 for proposed improvements which are to be made to the state park property at Guilford, five miles north-west of Lisbon.

This appropriation is in addition to that of $40,000 which was set aside for the state park project by the legislature two years ago. Owners of property to be included in the state park project must act before July 1 to clear up the abstract for the land to meet the approval of the attorney general.

Improvements for the park are expected to start this summer. Opening in the dam is to be closed, the entire area to be flooded. This will afford a lake which will cover approximately 500 acres.

Ordinance Held Valid.

WASHINGTON, May 16. — The supreme court today held valid an ordinance of Cincinnati, Ohio, prohibiting the granting of a billiard room license to an alien. The case was appealed by James Clarke, an Englishman, who contended the ordinance violated treaty rights with Great Britain and the federal constitution.

Red Cross Passes Quota.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The National Red Cross drive for flood relief funds reached $11,748,991 today.

A Voice That Wants to Reach Every Mother

Girard, Ohio—"I can recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Pleasant Pellets' both of which I used during expectancy, and I want to say I have a strong, healthy baby boy an dhad comparatively no suffering. I had great pain in my sides before I took the 'Prescription' but I must say that with a few days' treatment with the 'Favorite Prescription' I had ease, and within a week the trouble had disappeared.

KLAN LEADER SEEKS PAROLE

INDIANAPOLIS, May 16. — D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, serving a life term in the state prison for the murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, 28, former Butler university co-ed, today petitioned Governor Jackson for a parole.

Stephenson asks for a temporary parole on the plea that only through such action can he expose the machinations of his enemies and save the $200,000 which still remains of a fortune once rated at a million dollars.

The petition, 18 pages long, full of his characteristic oratorical vituperation is the most comprehensive defense Stephenson has ever made. During his trial for murder at Noblesville, Ind., he did not take the stand and his defense lacked spirit.

SEEK RULING ON DRY ENFORCER

COLUMBUS, May 16.—The question whether a mayor's court has jurisdiction to hear and try a person accused of violating state prohibition laws, instead of a municipal ordinance, is raised in a suit filed in the state supreme court today.

The case is that of M. J. Dugan, who asks the supreme court to reverse the action of the Green county courts which affirmed the decree of the Xenia mayor's court which found Dugan guilty of unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor.

Law is Constitutional.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—California's criminal syndicalism law was held constitutional today by the supreme court, in affirming the conviction of Charlotte Anita Whitney, of Oakland, under that statute.

Preaches at Salvation Army.

Rev. E. J. Richardson, pastor of the Second Baptist church, will preach at the Salvation Army citadel, West Third and Market streets, at 7:30 o'clock, Tuesday evening.

NO TRACE OF FRENCH FLYERS

ST. JOHNS, N. F., May 16.—While French vessels scour the Newfoundland coast for traces of Captain Nungesser and Captain Coli, inquiry here leads to doubt as to whether the French fliers ever reached these coasts.

The one fact that tends to the theory that they did is the evidence of five reputable citizens of Harbor Grace that they heard an airplane pass overhead last Monday. This fact, however, is questioned by some because they are of the opinion that if an airplane had passed over there would have been more who would have heard it.

The belief that the French airmen never reached this coast is becoming stronger as search fails to indicate any trace of them, and careful inquiry into many reports shows that most of these reports are based on hearsay.

BAPTISTS OPEN STATE MEETING

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 16.—Rev. K. H. Lloyd, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, president of the Ohio Baptist Association, is presiding at the annual four-day convention of the association which opened here today. Over 500 Baptist ministers and laymen are in attendance.

Speakers were to include Mrs. George L. Brooke, of India; Dr. Avery Shaw, recently elected president of Denison university at Granville and Dr. R. Y. Mullins, president of the World Baptist Mission Alliance.

THREE KILLED, TWO HURT IN CRASH

DAYTON, May 16.—Three persons were dead today, and two others suffering from injuries, as the result of an automobile crash on the Dixie highway at Vandalia.

The dead are: Theodore Efhelman, 20; his son, Richard, 4; his niece Miss Mary Margaret Smith, 11. Another son, Robert, 5, and Mrs. Thelma Efhelman, 24, wife of the dead man, were injured.

The crash occurred when Efhelman's car and another machine going in the opposite direction crashed head-on.

Millionaire Offers $25,000 Reward For Missing Flyers

NEW YORK, May 16.—Rodman Wanamaker, millionaire merchant and aviation enthusiast, today offered a reward of $25,000 for the discovery of Capt. Charles Nungesser and Capt. Charles Coli, missing French aviators, dead or alive. The fliers disappeared more than a week ago while attempting a non-stop Paris to New York flight.

LINCOLN SCHOOL PLANS OUTING

Thompson's Park to be Scene of Picnic Friday.

Five hundred persons are expected to attend the first annual picnic of the Lincoln school, which will be held at Thompson's park, Friday afternoon of this week. The affair is being sponsored by the Lincoln Home and School association.

School will be dismissed for the afternoon and the program will start at 3 o'clock. The athletic committee, consisting of Karl W. Gero, Emmett Myler, B. F. Laughlin, G. L. Brokaw and Henry Gruen, has worked out a program for children of all grades. This will be followed by a ball game between one team composed of seventh and eighth grade boys and the other of the fathers. Ice cream and lemonade will be served.

Dinner will be served at 5:30 o'clock. The committee in charge of the dinner is made up of Mrs. Ira Burbick, chairman; Mesdames Carl Leibschner, Harry Brokaw, Walter Cronin, Fred Pollock, Fred H. Burbick, W. H. Cook, Jr., Albert Evans, Frank Witherow, H. J. Kaufman, Marcus McCullough, Emmett Myler, H. Dan Smith, Clarence Duff, E. A. Baker, B. F. Laughlin, Emmett Gaston, Otto Ladzinski, L. C. Cooper, G. L. Brokaw, James Bennett and Henry Gruen. Meeting of this committee will be held at the school at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon when final plans will be made.

Five Killed When Train Hits Auto At Rail Crossing

AKRON, May 16. — Five persons were dead here today, victims of a railroad crossing collision Sunday night between a Pennsylvania passenger train and a sedan. They are:

J. M. Mull, 38, Mrs. Hester Mull, 40, his wife, Edith Mull, 5, their daughter, William Jones, 38, and Wendell Harper, 29, all of this city.

Mrs. Margaret Jones, 35, wife of William Jones, one of the dead, was in a critical condition in a Barberton hospital.

WEIRTON MAN ENDS HIS LIFE

Stephen Wirres, 32, Sends Bullet Into Brain at Noon Yesterday.

Stephen Wirres, 32, employed by the Weirton Steel company, ended his life yesterday morning by sending a .38 calibre bullet into his brain in his home, Fourth street, Weirton. Death was instantaneous.

Wirres' wife and two sons, Frank 9, and Steve 12, were it was said, warned by the husband and father that he was going to kill himself before they left the house to attend church. They thought he was joking and paid no attention to the threat.

Shortly before noon neighbors hoard a shot and rushing into the house found him stretched across the bed with a gaping bullet wound in his skull and the revolver tightly clutched in his hand.

Coroner George A. Arner, of Chester, later in the day conducted an inquest and returned a verdict of "suicide by shooting."

FORMER AUDITOR ADJUDGED INSANE

Former State Auditor John C. Bond was found insane by a jury Saturday at Charleston, thus preventing his immediate trial on charges of embezzlement on which he was indicted by the Kanawha county grand jury.

The jury, however, found Bond was sane in 1923, the time the checks were issued against funds for support of the state auditor's office, which formed the basis for the indictment, and consequently the prosecution of the charges is not banned should he be subsequently released from a hospital as cured.

Bond will be committed to a state hospital this week.

FIVE MEN HANDED FINES BY MAYOR

Frank Bowers, who was arrested Saturday night in Carolina avenue by Chief of Police William Smith on a charge of disorderly conduct, was fined $50 and costs when arraigned yesterday before Mayor Frank H. Riley.

Chief Smith also made a raid on a poker game near Carolina avenue and Dunn street arresting four men who gave their names as Homer Lance, Eugene Beal and Charles McLaughlin. A brother of the latter was also taken into custody. They were fined $5 and costs when arraigned before the mayor.

PASTOR PREACHES FAREWELL SERMON

MAY M'AVOY AT THE STRAND

"Matinee Ladies" Story of Force and Beauty.

"Matinee Ladies," a Warner production, with lovely May McAvoy as the star is the attraction at the Strand. And it is an attraction! In support of Miss McAvoy is the popular Malcolm McGregor, who is cast as a young law student who turns dancing-man to raise funds to pay his way through college. At the roadhouse he meets Sallie, the cigarette girl, and the two manage to steer clear of entanglements overly serious, with lackadaisical matinee ladies who would ensnare the youth, and pot-bellied rounders who would inveigle Sallie from the straight and narrow path.

A story of force, beauty and humaneness and at the same time of the utmost modernity is the result of Graham Baker's adaptation of the work of Albert S. Howson and Sidney R. Buchman. Others in the cast are Hedda Hopper, Margaret Seldon, Richard Tucker, Jean Lefferty, Cissy Fitzgerald and William Demerast. Byron Haskins directed. No one should miss the pleasure of seeing "Matinee Ladies."

Church Dedicated.

Bishop Joseph F. Berry, of Philadelphia, dedicated the new Brookline Methodist Episcopal church last night. Rev. Alexander Steele, pastor of the church, was formerly in charge of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Chester.

Efforts are being made in Turkey to increase aviation revenues.

Special Meeting of Federal Grand Jury Called for May 23

CLEVELAND, May 16.—A special federal grand jury to consider the cases of 34 prisoners who are held here on various charges will be called May 23 according to an announcement made today from George Stauffer, U. S. Marshal.

Failure of the last congress to pass the deficiency appropriation gill made it necessary to postpone calling of another grand jury until July. A surplus of $3,000 from the Youngstown and Toledo district will make it possible to summon a jury this month, Stauffer said.

Several prisoners have been held in jail here since last November while their cases were pending. In some instances prisoners have already remained in jail for a longer period than their sentences would have been had they been found guilty, it is said.

Automobile Thief Had No Use for Lilies In Stolen Machine

DEFIANCE, O., May 16—Two lilies, appropriate flowers, were found in the wrecked automobile of George Schmeiser, that was stolen from in front of his house here, when police recovered the car Friday. The sedan had crashed into the ditch and was badly damaged.

Evidently the thief was alive enough that he did not have use for the lilies, and abandoned them with the machine.

'STELLA DALLAS' SCREEN WINNER

Picturization of Celebrated Novel at American Theatre.

"Stella Dallas," Samuel Goldwyn's first photoplay production for United Artists Corporation, might well be called "the great American photo-drama." This picturization of Olive Higgin's Prouty's celebrated novel was produced under the direction of Henry King, who has given the world an endless succession of masterful cinematic offerings, including "The White Sister, "Tol'able David," and other plays which will live for years.

In "Stella Dallas," which opened a four-day run today at the American theatre, King has put forth his best efforts, and surrounded his principals with minor players of unusual ability, until the story, read by millions, is said to live before one's eyes.

Belle Bennett, well-known actress of stage and screen, was chosen for the title role fro ma field of 73 interesting possibilities. Tests were made of that number of capable players in Hollywood and New York before a choice was made. Miss Bennett was the only one who seemed the very incarnation of "Stella."

Ronald Colman, as Stephen Dallas seems also to fit the part perfectly. As the debonair man-about-town, he always registers with great success, and this role give him opportunity for much more than the usual amount of dramatic accomplishment.

Alice Joyce, as Helen Morrison, completes the interesting triangle. As the refined and wealthy widow whose charms supplant the neglected ones of Stella in Dallas' affections, she has rarely if ever enjoyed a more telling characterization.

The juvenile leads are in the capable hands of Lois Moran and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Miss Moran is the 13 year-old child wonder discovery of Samuel Goldwyn's while recently in Paris. She is a native American, however, and in this, her first American screen effort, interprets the difficult role of Laurel Dallas in a masterly and at the same time naive manner which is irresistible, foretelling a future of unlimited possibilities for the little lady.

Young Fairbanks is a "chip off the old block," not only in appearance but in mannerisms, and in the role of yeung Grovesnor, places himself squarely in the ranks of young leading men.

Jean Hersholt, famous character artist, interprets the part of Ed Munn, the low-brow riding master with such finesse as to surprise even his countless admirers. In this role he is given a latitude such as he has seldom enjoyed and that he makes the most of of it is very evident.

The supporting players are meticulously chosen and all adequate. "Stella Dallas" is undoubtedly one of the best cast pictures yet released.

SIX MAJOR ROAD JOBS LAUNCHED

Work Inaugurated on Projects in Various Parts of County.

Six major road projects are now under construction in this county, and each was previously outlined in the road improvement program outlined by the county commissioners during the summer of 1925.

"The only thing that now stands in the way of the early completion of these surfacing and grading projects is the weather," remarked County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk. "The contractors have the materials at hand, and there is no scarcity of labor. Each contractor is anxious to complete his or their project, and the only thing now that will delay speedy completion of the roads now under construction will be the weather.."

The Mellert-Weidener company of Medina have started pouring concrete on the Salem-Hanoverton road, and so far about three-quarters of a mile of road has been surfaced. This firm has done other work in this county, and speed records were hung up on their former contracts. This road extends from Hanoverton on the Lincoln highway northward to connect with the paved Salem-Winona road. The paved road, however, will not tap Winona as did the former dirt road.

The Holmes Construction company of Wooster is now pouring concrete on the Summitville-Salineville road, this project beginning at the Columbiana-Carroll county line and working eastward to Salineville. This road, it is now made known, will form a part of a new East Liverpool-Columbus intercounty highway.

The sub-grade on both the Salem-Hanoverton and the Summitville-Salineville road is exceptionally good, and because of this condition, the hauling of materials can be resumed almost within an hour after a rain.

After this road has been improved to Summitville, the contractors will remove their equipment both unloading and surfacing to the Salineville section, when the surfacing will be continued from the county line southward to the improved street in Salineville.

J. C. McCann, of Columbus, recently awarded the contract for grading the Lisbon-Salineville road, now has a force of men on this contract. One steam shovel is to be put on the job this week, and another is expected to be delivered within a few weeks. In addition to starting grading, concrete culverts are now being poured on this road.

A new route is to be followed on this project. Excessive grades have been eliminated on the new route, which will tap the Wellsville-Salineville road at Tidball hollow.

It is likely the Salem-Franklin Square road will be finished before May 30, providing favorable weather prevails. This contract was recently awarded to J. D. Paxson of Salem. The first course of slag has been spread over the entire distance on this road.

Good progress is beig made by Lewis & Copeland, of Lima, on the grading project on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road from Middleton northward to tap the Cox highway in Fairfield township. It has been indicated by the county commissioners that should the grading on this section be finished at an early date, there is a possibility that the surfacing contract will be awarded so that this part of the road may also be finished before cold weather sets in.

Excavation for culverts on the East Liverpool-East Palestine road has begun under the supervision of Contractor Herman C. Armstrong of Lisbon. The contract for grading this road was awarded a fortnight ago by the county commissioners to the Allison-Harris company of East Liverpool. Actual grading on this project will begin as soon as a steam shovel can be taken to the road, and later a second shovel is to be employed.

Armstrong has also completed the pouring of the concrete bridge at Cannons Mills, although the railing on this structure is to be poured. This section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road is now ready for surfacing, the contract having been awarded Lewis & Copeland of Lima some months ago.

Lewis & Copeland are also at work on an extension to a bridge at New Waterford, from which point the village of New Waterford proposes to complete top surfacing further into the corporate limits.

Of more than passing interest to motorists is the fact that the Carroll county commissioners propose to grade and drain all of the Carrollton Salineville road this year. The proposition, however, has been held back by the legislature. It is the intention of the Carroll county commissioners to award this contract in two sections, one that will have to do with the grading and drainage work from Carrollton to Mechanicstown, and another contract on the section from Mechanicstown to Salineville.

The improvement of this road between Salineville and Carrollton will be the last lap to be surfaced on the recently designated East Liverpool-Columbus inter-county highway. All of this road from Carrollton westward to New Philadelphia, thence to Columbus is now surfaced.

There are several state road projects in this county that are to be considered by the county commissioners for current year attention, but on account of no definite information from the state highway department at Columbus, the commissioners are merely marking time, but are anxious to put the projects over. These projects have to do with the Rogers-Negley road and also the Lincoln highway west of Kensington. Included in this latter proposition is also several small sections of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road.

While these road projects have not been discussed by the commissioners and Surveyor Kirk with the state highway department, during a general conference, these county officials, however, feel certain that these road projects are taken out of the possibilities and placed among the probabilities by the legislature enacting the additional one-cent gasoline tax law.

Whitney Stables May Set New Record For Track Earnings

Makes Substantial Addition to Roll Started Last Week by Bostonian, Who Turned in $53,400 in Preakness at Pimlico.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, May 16.—To him who hath, all things are given.

Harry Payne Whitney, son of rich but honest parents, today was on the verge of breaking all records, including that of Harry Sinclair, another notable victim of circumstances, for total winnings on the race track during one and the same season. Mr. Whitney was down to his last fifty million on Saturday but the situation fortunately improved very rapidly and by nightfall Harry's condition was not so desperate.

For between sunrise and sunset his horse, Whiskery, had won the Kentucky Derby as only a good horse can and the circumstance was worth precisely $51,025, which is rather critical money even to a man who doesn't get it. The sum, in fact, was important enough to keep a man like Harry in collar buttons for at least a week but, in case he starts to run short, he can draw on the $53,400 that he won last Monday. For Harry is the sort of fellow who has more than one horse and another of his string, Bostonian, happens to have been the winner of the Preakness.

To him who hath, all things are given, and it must be conceded that Harry Payne Whitney is receiving today. The horse owner doesn't live who wouldn't give his right nostril to win either of the big stake races at Pimlico and Churchill Downs. The man who wins both is just naturally a born beneficiary.

If all goes well, the Whitney stable's ernings should total around a halfmillion dollars at the end of the 1927 campaign. They are saying today that Whiskery mightn't have won the derby if Jock, the early trail blazer, had had a rider like Sande on his neck. Maybe they are right, for it isn't possible that men can be wrong all the time. However, the writer didn't see the race that way. He saw only that Whiskery had all the running of the field in the stretch, where running counts, and the colt looked the part of the fastest and best thoroughbred in the race.

In fact, no reasonable doubt existed in my mind about the honesty of Whiskery's victory and, while conceding that Sande gave Osmand a million dollar ride, it is obviously unfair both to Whiskery and the boy who rode Jock to draw comparisons that alike are odious and mean nothing. If ever a race was truly run, it was Kentucky's great derby on Saturday.

No horse was interfered with, no horse had the slightest excuse. And so the inference must be accepted that colts like Black Panther, Rolled Stocking and Rip Rap, which ran tenth, twelfth and thirteenth, respectively, were good horses when they had it, which probably was never.

Bostonian ran a typical race in closing ground in the stretch just as he did in winning the Preakness but his lack of early speed is fatal particularly in the big fields that inevitably go to the post on the stake races. He finished a good fifth behind Hydromel, which also did as well as might have been expected in view of the fact that he ran a fever early in the week. But when a horse like Buddy Bauer can beat off only a fair rally in the stretch to finish sixth there seems to be nothing for it but to believe that the others don't belong.

And that doesn't mean maybe in the case of Scapa Flow. The Man O'War colt was in a position to score in the Preakness and didn't. He was up with Jock's early pace on Saturday and again he muffed his chance when the pressure came. Scapa Flow just doesn't care for a distance of ground.

In brief, he may be the world to his father but he's only a plug to me.

CITY LOOP SCHEDULE IS CHANGED

Week's Contests Shifted About as Result of Rain.

Games this week in the City Industrial League will be pretty well shifted around as a result of weather conditions.

Manager Frank Riley, of the Chester Superior Cords, today announced that the game scheduled with Laughlin at Smith Field tonight has been postponed.

Manager John Fowler, of Turk Nash will send his club to Wellsville tomorrow night instead of playing the down river nine at Patterson Field. The K. T. K. game at Turk Nash on Thursday night will probably be changed to Columbian park as well as, possibly, the Turk Nash tilt with Wellsville again on Friday night.

The umpire assignments for the week as announced by President C. W. Davis, follow:

Tuesday—Wellsville at Turk Nash (at Wellsville) Berger; Chester at Laughlin, Kinsey.

Thursday—Chester at American Billiards—Shaw; K. T. K. at Turk Nash (probably Columbian park) Hall.

Friday—Tury Nash at Wellsville (probably Columbian park) Duffy.

Saturday afternoon—American Billiards at Wellsville (play-off of tie game) Berger.

Indian Certain to be Member of Olympic Team.

NEW YORK, May 16.—That Quanowahu, Hopi Indian runner and snake dance priest from Oraibi, Ariz., will be a member of America's next Olympic team was considered a certainty today as a result of his brilliant performance in winning the marathon yesterday from this city to Long Beach, N. Y.

Competing against 135 crack distance runners, the Indian covered the 26 miles and 385 yards in the time of 2:47:43 1-5, bettering the American record of 2:48:23 3 5 held by Albert Michelsen of Stamford, Conn. Michelsen finished second yesterday, trailing the winner by 100 yards. He lost about 14 seconds when a train blocked him at a crosing near the finish.

It was estimated that 250,000 persons saw the race as the runners wound their way through heavy auto traffic. Quanawahu was always among the leaders. He is accustomed to an altitude of 7,000 feet but raced tirelessly despite the low Long Island altitude.

Four far western Indians started the race. Lino finished twenty-ninth but the other two dropped out, one being overcome by gasoline fumes from the long line of automobiles and one suffering blistered feet.

BUCS DOWN ROBINS AND OUST CARDS

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The Pittsburgh Pirates today have displaced the St. Louis Cardinals as runners-up to the Giants in the National league race. The Pirates defeated Brooklyn yesterday, while the Cardinals were idle and advanced to second place, although they did not gain on the speeding Giants.

The Pittsburgh-Brooklyn game was a slam-bang affair, seven pitchers being used. Brooklyn tied it up after staking the Pirates to a six-run lead, but eventually lost, 9 to 6. Jay Partridge, Brooklyn second baseman, made an error after having accepted 92 chances.

The Cincinnati tradition that no Red pitcher ever finishes a game he starts, was maintained when the Rhineland outfit lost to the Giants again, 6 to 3. Hugh McQuillan was the winning pitcher and Eppa Jeptha Alpha Omega Rixey was the goat. Hornsby got three hits and tied Eddie Farrell for league batting honors.

Some powerful slugging featured the Browns' 8 to 6 victory over the Athletics. Schang and Bing Miller of the Browns and Lamar of the A's each had a perfect day at bat. Schang's homer with the bases full broke up the game, while Miller's four hits boosted his total to eight bingles in two days.

The White Sox got the hits but the Red Sox got the breaks and won, 2 to 1. The Back Bay boys got only four hits off Al Thomas, but bunched three of them with an error in the first inning. Tony Welzer was the winning twirler.

The other teams did not play. Snow in Detroit kept the Yankees and Tigers idle.

Absence of Collett Leaves British Open Colorless.

BELFAST, Ireland, May 16. — The absence this year of Miss Glenna Collett, scintillating American star of golfdom, from the British ladies' open golf championship being decided here today, tomorrow and Wednesday over the Newcastle course, leaves the affair rather colorless.

Had Miss Collett decided to compete it is very probable that either Miss Joyce Wethered or Miss Cecil Leitch would have turned up in the list of entrants.

In fact, no previous holder of the title has entered this year, with the exception of Mrs. Cuthell, who, as Miss Rhona Adair, won the title in 1900 and 1903.

The entrants number 91, five of these coming from the United States.

The American entrants are: Miss Virginia Watson of Ontwentsia, who gets a bye into the second round; Miss Jane Brooks of Englewood; Miss A. Lee Beadlestone, Rockaway Hunting; Mrs. M. L. R. Spaulding, Buffalo County, and Mrs. George Merriam Lewis, Los Angeles. Mrs. Lewis, getting a bye into the second round, will meet the chief British hope, Miss Molly Gourlay of the Camberley Heath club.

Mlle. Simone de la Chaume, the French champion, is favored to win the title.

Conquers Bad Breadth and is Popular Again

"The day I started taking Carter's Little Liver Pills," says Mr. John A. Perry of New York City, "my habitual bad breath and bad stomach stopped. I strongly recommend them to all those afflicted with these nasty troubles. I assure you that my own case was a bad one, causing me untold embarrassment, and Carter's helped me right from the start."

Bad breath comes from sour stomach and can usually be relieved quickly by Carter's Little Liver Pills.

They are wonderful for constipation, sick-headache and indigestion and they physic the system in a mild and gentle manner, no bad after effects.

Recommended and for sale by all drug stores.

Sports Done Brown

KNOWING Connie Mack as I do I feel that Ban B. Johnson's criticism of him in connection with the Cobb-Simmons-Ormsby case was entirely uncalled for.

It is another indication that Johnson is acting headstrongly, with an abandon that will keep baseball in a ferment as long as he carries on the duties of his office.

This is said in full realization of the debt baseball in general and the American League in particular may owe hi mfor past services.

Connie Mack is the most mild mannered, gentlemanly person in baseball. Everyone who knows him laughs at the idea of Connie even countenancing rowdyism, let alone suggesting it or approving it.

The only criticism toward Connie as a baseball manager has been his lack of aggressiveness in any way. Connie plays baseball and wants his men to play it with sportsmanship the outstanding feature. Being a thorough gentleman himself he expects others to be his kind.

How Johnson expected Connie, from his place on the bench, to prevent the action on the field which led to the suspension of Cobb and Simmons is a mystery.

Sad Sam Jones, who appeared about done with the New York Yankees last year, seems to have found the elixir of life in St. Louis. Won a total of nine games with the pennant winning hard hitting Yanks behind him last season. Has won half that number so far this year.

MALONEY IS FAVORITE

Made 7 to 5 Bet to Lick Jack Sharkey Thursday.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Jim Maloney was a 7 to 5 favorite today to defeat Jack Sharkey in their fifteen-round bout at the Yankee Stadium here Thursday night for the championship of Boston and a crack at the heavyweight title.

The odds shifted to Maloney because of a slight injury suffered by Sharkey while training at a local gymnasium. A cut was opened over his left eye when he was butted by his sparring partner, Fred Mays.

As a result of the injury Sharkey will do no more boxing until the fight. Maloney will box a dozen rounds or so today at his camp in Long Branch, N. J. Maloney is now down to 204 pounds, while Sharkey weighs 193.

SOFT BALL FOES CLASH

Three Games Tonight if Weatherman Permits.

Recreation League rivals will resume warfare tonight with games scheduled on three district diamonds.

Newell Laughlin, hitherto undefeated, will take on the Review-Tribune aggregation on the Newell lot. The Laughlins have copped two games in their first two starts and will be out to keep their perfect record intact.

The National Furnitures and the Roselawns, both in the .500 class as a result of one victory and one defeat apiece, will tangle at Klondyke and the clash should be an even battle all the way.

The Ohio Power and Johannes Drugs nines will mix on the Northside diamond in the third tilt on tonight's bill, all three games, of course, depending on the weatherman.

The Heimies, another of the loop's undefeated starters, will tackle the Ohio Powers, at Upper Columbian park Tuesday night, the Smith News and National Furnitures will play at Northside and the Johannes Drugs and Y. M. C. A. at Klondyke.

Tonight.

National Furnitures at Roselawns; Klondyke; umpire, Waters.

Review-Tribune at Laughlin, N.; umpire, Lorah.

Ohio Power at Johannes Drugs; Northside; umpire, Davies.

Tuesday.

Heimies at Ohio Power; upper Columbian park; umpire, Waters.

Smith News at National Furniture; Northside; umpire, Lorah.

Johannes Drugs at Y. M. C. A.; Klondyke; umpire, Davies.

TEX TO REFEREE AMATEUR BOUT

NEW YORK, May 16. — Promoter Tex Rickard will act as a referee tonight for the first time since he officiated at the Jeffries-Johnson battle 17 years ago. He will referee an amateur bout which is to be part of the entertainment at a dinner given in his honor by the Madison Square Garden club.

Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, numerous celebrities and 142 sports writers of the east and middle west will be present.

Postpone Contests As Result of Poor Condition of Track

Wind-up Events, Originally Setback to Tuesday, Postponed Again as Result of Continuous Rainfall; May Decide Date Today.

Approximately 2,500 cinder path fans from various points of the county were disappointed Saturday as rain forced the postponement of the 24th annual Columbiana county interscholastic track and field meet to either Wednesday or Thursday afternoon, after officials had attempted to run off one event, the 220-yard hurdles.

It was decided Saturday afternoon to run off the finals tomorrow but almost continuous rains since then has made another postpouement necessary.

Preliminaries in eight events were successfully negotiated in the morning, despite light showers. The rain became heavier toward noon and at 1 o'clock when the rival schools were scheduled to go to the barrier in the finals, the track was covered with a slippery coating of mud that made running almost impossible.

Following a let-up in the downpour meet officials decided to attempt the first event, the hurdles. Three runners slipped and toppled over in the mud as Gregg, of Salem, went on to win despite the treacherous footing.

Realizing that the condition of the track invited falls and possibly serious injury to any of the runners in the various events, the meet officials conferred again and decided to postpone the affair.

East Liverpool qualified in six of the eight preliminary events, including: Ward in the 220-yard hurdles; English and McConville in the 100-yard dash; Larkins in the javelin throw; Larkins in the shot put; English in the 220-yard dash, and Kirkham in the discus throw.

East Palestine showed its hand in the shot put when two members of the Brown and White broke the county record set by Hum, of Lisbon, back in 1912. Cook tossed the 12-pound ball a distance of 44 feet, 5½ inches and Collela 44 feet, 4¾ inches.

According to officials of the association, the new record set by Cook will stand unless the mark is bettered in the finals.

AT NOGALES, SONORA, Mexico—Bert Colima, Whittier, Cal., Mexican middleweight, knocked out Mickey Wallace of San Francisco, in the third round Sunday.

GRID CZAR TO SELECT OFFICIALS

Ten Eastern Colleges Sponsor Naming of Arbiter.

NEW YORK, May 16.—A football arbiter has been chosen by representatives of ten leading eastern college to select the officials of all games between them next fall. Subject to ratification by athletic boards in some cases, the institutions which adopted the new plan at a meeting here are the Army, the Navy, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell, Brown, Dartmouth, Yale, Harvard and Princeton.

Tad Jones, the Yale head coach, who sponsored the idea, said that the name of the new official would be made public within a day or two. He said that about fifty other colleges would be asked to join in the move.

"It was unanimously agreed that some method of appointment which would free officials from any feeling of obligation or responsibility to either contending team would be desirable," Jones explained.

He said that in the case of intersectional games with western conference teams, the official would cooperate with Major John L. Griffith, the conference's commissioner of athletics.

Australia's 44-hour week has been approved by the courts.

DINNER STORIES.

A Professional Attitude.

He came home late for supper. He was a professor of chemistry and she was a wife who tried to have a good supper for him every night. When he'd be late her good cooking would be spoiled and then he'd start to find fault. He was late again tonight. The supper was cold. The argument was on. The wife finally broke down crying. But he was a professor of chemistry.

"Stop crying! Your tears have no effect upon me. What are they? A shall percentage of phosphorous salts, a little sodium chloride. All the rest—water. Bah!"

By Request.

"Son, what are you doing home from school?"

"We had a big fire down at school."

"You did!"

"Yes, me and two other fellows were fired out."

RICHARD DIX SCORES AGAIN

"Knockout Reilly," at Ceramic, is Screen Hit.

The ever pleasing Richard Dix, whose athletic ability has become a byword in cinema circles, is again displaying his own particular brand of physical prowess for four days this week at the Ceramic theatre, where "Knockout Reilly," his latest Paramount starring offering is playing.

Cast in a different role from anything he has hitherto portrayed, Dix plays the young wage earner who climbs to fame as an exponent of the "squared circle." As Dundee Reilly chief puddler in a steel mill, he finds little time for recreation, except of a Saturday night when it is his habit to repair with his friends to a cabaret where Mary Malone, is an entertainer. Reilly suddenly discovers that he is the possessor of a wicked punch when he knocks out Killer Agerra (Jack Renault) champion fighter, for making advances to Mary. Mary's brother Pat, former champion who has fallen before Agerra in a fight that he learned afterward was framed, upon hearing of Reilly's escapade, offers to train him for the ring. But Reilly prefers the industrial life to the packed arena. He changes his mind when he is beaten to a pulp by the vengeful Agerra at the latter's gymnasium.

From this time on, life for Reilly is a series of successful fights. Under Malone's tutelage, he rises rapidly until he is matched to met Agerra for the championship. Agerra on hearing of Reilly's remarkable condition trembles for his laurels. But before the fight comes off, Reilly finds his career as a boxer suddenly cut off. A lumberjack is shot in a fight at a village store near Reilly's training camp and Reilly is convicted on circumstantial evidence of the crime. Life behind the prison bars does not prove a physical softener for Dix. Under Mary's urging he applies to be sent to the rock pile where for two years, he keeps up his training. On his release a clever ruse wins for him his long sought chance at Agerra still the champion.

How he manages to take the place of a fighter matched to meet Agerra makes a deliciously humorous incident. The Reilly comeback is a spectacular one full of thrils and gasps. How with the help of the faithful Malones he succeeds in proving his innocence of the crime for which he was convicted, gives rise to a series of dramatic scenes that had last night's audience sitting on the edge of their sets.

Mary Brian, who sprang into screen prominence at Wendy in Paramount's version of Sir James Barrie's "Peter Pan," and who subsequently was much in evidence in "Behind the Front," the Beery-Hatton comedy classic, plays Dix, sweetheart and gives further proof that she is another Paramount screen find.

Malcolm St. Clair always to be depended upon for the subtly humorous touch, directed.

Silver Foxes Subject To Personal Property Tax Turner Rules

COLUMBUS, O., May 16.—Silver foxes are subject to a personal property tax, according to a ruling here of attorney general E. C. Turner. Turner ruled that silver foxes, reared, maintained and confined are personal property of their owner and as such are subject to taxation, and should be so listed. The ruling was asked by Ross county authorities, where many large silver fox farms are located.

American capital has been heavily invested in Cuba and has proved one of the potent factors in the island's rapid development, for a large share of the American dollars are backed by American business methods and efficiency. All told, our stake in the "Pearl of the Antilles" amounts to a billion and a quarter. Of this amount, $750,000,000 are invested in sugar properties, $110,000,000 in railroads, and $100,000,000 in public utilities, telephones, and telegraph companies. Other investments include: Hotels and office buildings, $80,000,000; miscellaneous manufacturing, $40,000,000; tobacco and cigars, $50,000,000; agricultural lands other than sugar and tobacco, $35,000,000; merchandising, $20,000,000; docks, warehouses and terminal facilities, $10,000,000, and banking $20,000,000.

With an area of slightly over 44,000 square miles—almost equal to that of the state of Pennsylvania—Cuba has a population, as of the last census, of 3,413,216. Of these 2,315,928 were whites, 829,201 colored, and 268,087 immigrants unclassified. Havana, the capital, has 432,000 inhabitants, and there are ten other cities with populations ranging from 40,000 to 100,000, while the Isle of Pines has a population of 4,817.

Cuba struggled for independence from Spain for almost three quarters of a century with an almost unbroken succession of revolts, conspiracies, insurrections, and filibustering expeditions from the United States, all provoked by Spanish oppression and cruelty. A decree in 1825 placed the lives and fortunes of all Cubans at the mercy of the Spanish captains-general. At one time more than 3,000 Cubans were tortured, imprisoned, banished, or executed for real or alleged complicity in plots against the government, and during the Ten Years' War, 1868-78, Captain-General Valamaseda declared that the aim of the Spaniards was to convert the island into a desert.

During that war Spain sent 257,000 men against the insurgents and lost 208,000 of them, according to official reports. The cost of the war was $300,000,000, exclusive of the property destroyed. Again, from 1895 to 1898, the whole island was laid waste once more and "Butcher" Weyler earned a bloody infamy that will never be forgotten.

In the circumstances it is not surprising that the Cubans celebrate the birthday of their republic with patriotic fervor, mingled with which is a deep feeling of gratitude to this country for keeping faith with them.

South of the Atlas

BY MAJ. SHALL D. HALL
AUTHOR OF "THE VALLEY OF STONE" AND "RIDDLE OF THE DESERT"

SYNOPSIS.

LARRY GRENFALL, American traveler and student of Eastern magic, receives a telephone call from BEN MANSOUR, cosmopolite and old friend, saying he must see him at onse.

GILES, Mansour's servant, drives Larry to his friend's house. While the two are talking a turbanned head appears at the window, Mansour opens it and a Moor steps in. He gives Mansour a ring as a token, set with a magnificent ruby. Mansour throws it on a table. Through the Moor it is revealed that Mansour is a Moor and ruler of his tribe. For some reason he must die but he insists that his son rule after him. Mansour says that he has taken poison and the Moor goes, tossing into the room a tiny ivory tiger—the Striped Death. Mansour asks Grenfall if he will go to Morocco, find the Temple, endure the Ordeal and crush the Group—all of which is Greek to Grenfall. He is to find a certain Omar ben Medjad. Then Mansour dies. Giles has instructions to open a certain trunk and take care of the letters he will find therein.

Giles and Grenfall open the trunk, finding Mansour's will and a letter to Grenfall asking him to carry out the instructions he gave him before he died. Grenfall takes the ruby ring and tells Giles he is going to Morocco.

Larry arrives in Morocco and is solicited for alms by a mendicant.

He shows the token—the ruby ring and the mendicant guides him to an alley where he changes his costume for that of the mendicant and he is pulled into a house by a Moor to whom he again shows his token.

CHAPTER SEVEN.

Larry followed the one-eyed man down another twisting passageway, then up a flight of stairs into a room that was barren of life or furnishings. Here, the other opened the door and the American felt the fetid breath of the African night fanning his cheeks. As from a distance he could hear the night life of the market.

His guide emerged into another of the apparently numberless alleyways and hurried swiftly off, Larry behind him. For ten minutes they proceeded thus, dodging and twisting a myriad of byways, until they paused before a low nondescript building which had no windows. The guide fumbled briefly, then the door opened and Larry was shoved inside. The door closed again and a light flared. Now Larry's guide greeted him cordially, speaking perfect English:

"Mr. Grenfall, welcome to the home of Omar ben Medjad. Permit me to extend my sincere apologies for the sorriness of the outside appearance, but I have reasons for it; also, permit me to say I am sorry I had to receive you as I did, but, my friend, it was necessary. I had intended that you come to the Shop of Hold, but times are perilous at the present and without my shop I would be useless in the work I am doing, hence at the last minute I had to change my plans and receive you otherwise. Now, we can talk, but let it be in English, please. I fear no prying eyes here, and no distended ears; still it is ever the part of wisdom to play safe."

The man now removed the patch from his eye and stood revealed with perfect sight. The patch had been, it was plain, a disguise. He bowed and turned from the room.

"Be seated, Mr. Grenfall, and be comfortable while I make coffee; also, I must cleanse myself of this disgusting filth. When the coffee is ready, I shall re-join you here. You will, I trust, help yourself to my cigarettes." He pushed forward a taboret with a jar of cigarettes sitting on it.

Larry lit one, then threw himself full length on a low divan, waiting. In a half hour Omar ben Medjad returned, bearing cofee, cups and a couscous. Larry was startled at the transformation in the man's appearance. His beard no longer was matted, but was combed to a neat point; his skin was several degrees lighter, thanks to having been cleansed of its dirt, and his clothes were those of a man of wealth and station. He sat the coffee on a taboret and proceeded to pour it. Then, as Larry sipped at the strong, aromatic decoction, he said:

"When you are quite finished with your coffee, let me have that bournouse and turban. Abdu will be here shortly and I shall return it to him."

"That miserable fool caused an uproar that—"

Omar laughed in his beard.

"It was but a ruse, Mr. Grenfall, I must confess that I was back of it all. You are to disappear this night, my friend, and Abdu and I could think of no better way to put you out of the road than to have you murdered. Therefore, consider yourself dead, this very minute, and your body thrown into the muddy waters of the town canal."

Larry rose, startled.

"What do you mean?" he snapped, and his hand hovered near the butt of his heavy automatic.

Again Omar laughed.

"Simply, my friend, that it is necessary for you to drop from sight without the knowledge of the commandant at the fort. You are here, seeking. Very well; but to seek, you must seek as one of us. To do this you must disappear as an American and never be heard from in Ab Dukkar again. How could you be made to disappear easier, pray tell, than by my little plan?"

"That plan is—?" Larry's voice still was a little thin.

"The plan is that Abdu, the Doukkala mendicant, raised a hue and cry that you had robbed him. A crowd of men were seen to pursue you down a dark alleyway. You were never seen again, but certain blood spots were left at intervals in the alley and the ground has the appearance of having been struggled over. The blood spots and the signs of the struggle will be found tomorrow. Likewise, some of your clothing which you will give me tonight, will be found near these blood spots in the dirt. The French commandant will write in his red book the details of another murder at unknown hands, adding that the whereabouts of the body also is unknown. Simple enough, is it not?"

"But, I do not understand, I'm afraid," Larry confessed.

"For one who has written of the intrigues of my country, you are woefully dense this night," Omar rejoined. "I have merely staged a murder, Mr. Grenfall, to throw the military off the scent; also their Partisan soldier allies. It is necessary that tonight you become a Moor. Inasmuch as the commandant does not know you, did not even see you, he probably will think you were someone who amounted to little or nothing and after a cursory examination he will forget the incident. The mendicant started that row for that purpose. When you leave here this night, my friend, you will leave as Youssef el-Habassi, a powerful wizard. After that—Allah alone may say."

"It is a good thing I faked a passport so that when they hunt down my record they'll find it was only a sailor who had shore leave and deserted that was murdered." Larry chuckled, appreciating the situation. Then he added: "When I leave here, I leave to find a Temple and fetch to you—"

"A casket," Omar ben Medjad rejoined gravely, his eyes glittering. "Now, I see you have finished your coffee. To work please. Lay aside your clothing and don the apparel I have prepared," and he indicated a pile of Moorish clothing nearby.

Larry rose and emptied his pockets, laying twelve small cubes down with extreme caution. Then, removing his American-made apparel, he donned the garb of the Moor, the flowing brown burnouse covering him almost to his ankles. Deftly he wound his turban, so that anyone watching would never have known it was not experienced Berber or Algerian hands that performed the trick.

"Curse it, Omar; it is imperative that I have places to carry some of these things I've brought with me. Great guns, man, I couldn't wizard worth a cent if I lost my paraphernalia."

Omar laughed.

"Search about your new togs; pockets have been prepared especially. You see, I knew you would bring a magician's acouterments, for you were destined from the very start to play the role of a taleb, and I made ready for you."

Larry stared at the other in wonder.

"I must say that you are either an infernally good guesser or you have had what we Americans call inside information concerning me."

In a few minutes he had disposed of his things and when he had finished he turned to Omar and, speaking in guttural Chleuh, said:

"Father of jackals, what of my costume? Offspring of the hill wolves, will I pass muster?"

A grim smile crossed Omar's face.

"So much, so, moulay, that the Sultan himself would accept you as a true Believer. Al, Mr. Grenfall, you will do; now, from this moment you are Youssef el-Habbassi, wizard. You will find you are already known, for I have taken pains to have word of your coming spread in advance and your reputation has not suffered at my hands. But I hear Adbu knocking. Peace, till he enters."

Like a breath of the mysterious night without, the Doukkala mendicant slipped through the door, salaaming to Omar ben Medjad. He threw a curious glance toward Larry and raised his eyebrows questioningly, whereat Omar laughed in his beard.

"Ha, my friend; you could wish for no better recommendation for your disguise since Abdu, here, does not recognize you."

The mendicant, grasping the situation, salaamed in turn to Larry, muttering gruffly that Allah alone would have known the nasrani in his new attire.

"What success had you, Adbu?" Omar asked the mendicant, sipping avidly at the black coffee his host had placed for him, told them.

"At an intersection of alleys in the Ber Kedjiz we killed a goat, and made a goodly scatterment of blood about the place. When the Partisan police and soldiers arrived there was naught to be found save signs of a struggle and those bloody splotches. The commanding officer routed from their houses those who live in the neighborhood, among them being this humble follower of Allah. We did report sounds of a struggle in the night, of harsh voices and the frightened wailing of a nasrani; we also told of having heard blows struck, then a sound as though a body had been dragged hurriedly away. True enough we must have spoken, for the Partisan police found signs of the fighting, saw the blood and picked up a mark which seemed to indicate a heavy object had been dragged across the ground. These signs disappeared at the canal and the search ended there. The Partisans could not know that a weighted sack had made the marks, nor that the sack even now lies at the bottom of the muddy waters. Al, it will be an excellent report the commandant will be given on this," and the medicant chuckled grimly.

"You have done well, Abdu," said Omar, seeing the man had finished his coffee. "You may go."

Behind the Mask

LOOK into the faces you see about you—the faces of people both familiar and strange. Did it ever occur to you that behind those sparkling eyes and smiling lips there may lie secret turmoil—a seething drama of love, a story of passionate hate, an epic of self-sacrifice, a poem of sorrow and tears?

How little we know of the inner lives of those we see about us! How thrilling it would be if we could lift the mask of pretense and see what the curtain of each soul conceals!

Yet that is exactly what happens every month in True Story Magazine. In its pages, men and women who have lived, struggled, suffered and conquered or failed, frankly bare the secrets in their lives. There are 19 such startling features in the June issue of True Story. Your newsdealer has it. Get it today.
